Empowered by Special Act of Parliament.

CAPITAL. ONE MILLION.

Assurances are granted on the lives of the general public as well as on those of Clergymen and Ministers, and the rates of Premium are very moderate.

Endowments for Children may be secured on favourable terms.

"Free" Assurances are granted which can never entirely lapse through non-payment of Premiums. Combined Assurance and Investment Policies are issued which unite all the facilities and resources of Savings Banks to the benefits of Life Assurance.

Annuities granted on a new and beneficial principle.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Assurances are granted at Low Premiums, and the convenience of Policy-holders is especially consulted. A reduction of Ten per Cent. on Clerical and Scholastic risks.

ANDREW FRANCIS, Secretary.

N.B.—Special Grants are made from the Proprietors' Profits in aid of Life Assurances effected by Clergymen and Ministers, and by Schoolmasters and Schoolmistresses.

SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL £2,000,000
ACCUMULATED FUNDS 2,500,000

FIRE INSURANCE.

THIS COMPANY insures against Loss or Damage by Fire every description of Property at Home and abroad, at the Lowest Rates of Premium corresponding to the risk.

RENTS OF PROPERTY INSURED ON SAME TERMS AS THE BUILDINGS.

N.B.—Insurances for Seven Years, by a Single Payment, charged for Six Years only.

POLICIES TRANSFERRED FROM OTHER OFFICES FREE OF EXPENSE.

LOSSES SETTLED WITH PROMPTITUDE AND LIBERALITY.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE System of the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company combines that of Mutual Assurance with the Safety of a large Protecting Capital, and thus affords all the facilities and advantages which can prudently be offered by any Life Assurance Office.

NINETY PER CENT. of the Whole Profits is divided among the assured on the Participating Scale. This is as large a share of the profits as is allowed by any office, and larger than that given by most other Proprietary Offices.

The Profits are ascertained and divided every Five years.

The NEXT DIVISION OF PROFITS will take place as at 81st Dec., 1875. Intending Assurers are reminded that by effecting a Policy during 1875, they will, in conformity with the rules of the Company, secure One Year's Bonus at the next Division of Profits

THE TABLES OF PREMIUM are moderate, and include several Tables peculiarly well adapted to meet special requirement—such as the Half-Prenium, Half-Credit, Double Assurance, Assurance and Annuity Tables, &c., all of which are fully explained in the Prospectuses of the Company.

The Hotel adjoins the General Post Office; as also the Commercial Building, where Merchants meet on "Change," and the earliest Telegraphic News is received, to the Reading Room of which the Visitors to the Hotel have free access. It has been patronized within the last few years by their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales, Prince Alfred, Prince Napoleon, the Duc D'Orleans, the Comte de Paris, and the Count de Flandres, the successive Lords Lieutenant of Ireland, as well as by the Nobility, and most of the leading Gentry visiting Cork.

THE CHARGES WILL BE FOUND MOST MODERATE.

The Imperial Omnibuses attend the arrival and departure of each Train.

Extract from SIR CUSACK RONEY'S "Month in Ireland:"

"Judge Haliburton (Sam Slick) says, 'There are two things to be recommended to the notice of Visitors to Ireland:—If you are an admirer of beautiful scenery, go to the Cove of Cork; if you want a good Hotel, go to the Imperial.' The Hotel in question is situated in Pembroke Street, having an entrance also in the South Mall, through the Commercial Buildings, the splendid News Room of which is open to visitors to the Hotel. For convenience and comfort their is not a Hotel superior to it in the Empire."

Francis Guy, in submitting the first issue of his County and City Directory, trusts any delay in its publication will receive the kind indulgence of the public. In its compilation, difficulties which belong to every first effort have operated with great force on this, especially as regards the county information. Rather, however, than compromise the interests of the work, and to render the directory of each postal district as accurate as possible, proof-sheets were forwarded to resident clerical and other gentlemen, petty sessions clerks, postmasters, constables, etc.; these were, with very few exceptions, promptly examined and returned. Though this very considerably retarded the publication, it has conduced materially to the accuracy of the work. While acknowledging his obligations to those whom he is thus indebted for their disinterested assistance, the publisher must also express his especial gratitude for the ready and valuable aid accorded him by the officials in the county and city offices, the head postmasters at Cork and elsewhere in the county, and other public authorities.

If this undertaking should achieve that success which the extensive list of subscribers gives reason to anticipate, it is the intention of the publisher to re-issue the work in the Spring of 1877, and so on at like intervals; he has therefore taken steps to secure the copyright of his County and City Directory, the collection and arrangement of the contents of which involved a considerable amount of labour and expense.

In a work of this kind, consisting chiefly of details of an everchanging character, it is impossible that occasional inaccuracies and omissions may not be found, in spite of the most indefatigable exertions to attain correctness; the publisher also asks consideration for any observable defects, and hopes to be able to present the next issue in a more perfect form. Any suggestion for the improvement of future editions will be thankfully received, also any reliable corrections, alterations, and additions.

POST OFFICE REGULATIONS.

ALL INLAND LETTERS and PACKETS must be prepaid in stamps, at the following rates of postage:—

For a letter not exceeding I oz. Id. exceeding I oz. but not exceeding 2 oz. 2 02. 4 OZ. 2d. 99 2 1d. 6 oz. 99 8 oz. 6 oz. 3d. 39 8 oz. IO oz. 3 d. 9, I2 oz. 40. IO oz.

A letter exceeding the weight of 12 oz. is liable to a postage of 1d. for every ounce, beginning with the first ounce. A letter, for example, weighing between 14 and 15 ozs. must be prepaid fifteen pence.

No Inland Letter or Packet must exceed 18 inches in length, 9 inches in width, and 6 inches in depth.

Postage stamps are of the respective values of $\frac{1}{2}d$, 1d, $1\frac{1}{2}d$, 2d, $2\frac{1}{2}d$, 3d, 4d, 6d, 9d, 10d, 1s, 2s, and 5s.

INLAND POST CARDS bearing an impressed halfpenny stamp are available for transmission in the United Kingdom only. On the front or stamped side nothing more than the address must be written or printed; on the reverse side any communication, whether of the nature of a letter or otherwise, may be written or printed. The official "stout" Post Cards are sold at the rate of 8d per 12 cards, or 4d per 6 cards. The "thin" cards are sold at the rate of 7d for 12 cards, or $3\frac{1}{2}d$ for 6 cards. Neither the stout nor the thin cards are sold singly.

FOREIGN POST CARDS intended for transmission to the foreign countries comprised within the General Postal Union are sold at the rate of $1\frac{1}{4}d$, each.

NEWSPAPERS.—The postage of a newspaper within the United Kingdom is one halfpenny, which must be prepaid either by a postage stamp or a stamped wrapper. No newspaper can be sent through the post a second time for the original postage. For each transmission a fresh postage is required.

BOOK POST.—The postage is one halfpenny for every 2 oz. or part of that weight. A book-packet may contain any number of separate books, magazines, reviews, pamphlets, and maps, photographs when not on glass or in frames, and circulars wholly or in part printed, engraved, or lithographed; but a book-packet may not contain any letter, unless it be a circular-letter or be wholly printed, nor any enclosure sealed or in any way closed against inspection. Entries merely stating who sends the book, etc, or to whom it is given, are not regarded as a letter. The letter rate of postage must be prepaid for any communication of the nature of a letter, not wholly printed, whether it be placed in a closed envelope or an open cover, unless a post card is used for the purpose. No bookpacket may be above 5 lbs in weight, nor above 18 inches in length, 9 inches in width, or six inches in depth.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registering a letter, newspaper, or book-packet passing between two places in the United Kingdom is fourpence. Letters, newspapers, book-packets, and patterns may also be registered to the British Colonies, the United States of America, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland (via Belgium), and the German States, and also to the British post-office in Egypt and Constantinople, but to other Foreign Countries only letters and packets prepaid at the letter rate can be registered. Registered Letters, however, addressed to France, or to any Foreign Country, the correspondence of which is sent by the French mail, is chargeable with a registration fee of the same amount as the postage. The registration of a packet makes its transmission much more secure, inasmuch as under ordinary circumstances a registered packet can be traced through its whole course. All inland or colonial letters which contain coin, and all inland letters which contain watches or jewellery, even though they be posted without registration, are treated as registered, and charged on delivery with a double registration fee of eightpence in addition to the ordinary postage.

SAVINGS BANK.—Deposits of One Shilling, or of any number of Shillings, or of Pounds and Shillings, may be made by any person at the Post office Savings Banks, provided that each depositor shall not make deposits amounting to more than 30l. in any year, ending the 31st December, or make any further deposit when the amount standing in his name, exclusive of interest, exceeds 150l. When any depositor's principal and nterest amount together to 200l, all interest will cease so long as the balance of the account continues to amount to the said sum of £200. Interest, calculated yearly at the rate of 21 per cent. per annum will be allowed on every complete pound deposited.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCES AND ANNUITIES. - The Postmaster-General is empowered under the Act 27 and 28 Vic, c. 43, to insure the lives of persons of either sex, between the ages of 16 and 60, for not less than 20%. or more than 100%. He is also empowered, under the same Act to grant Immediate or Deferred Anuuities of not more than 50% per annum, on the lives of either sex, and of the age of 10 years and upwards.

TRANSMISSION OF MONEY, BY MONEY ORDERS. - The commission on Inland Money Orders is :-

For sums of 51. and under 61. 7d. 8d. For sums under 10s. Id. 71. 81. "· 61. of Ios. and under Il. ... 2d. . " 22 ,, 7l. ,, 8l. ,, Il. ,, 2l. ... 3d. 94. 22 29 ,, 2l. " 31. ... 4d. - " " 91. ... IOd. ,, ,, 3l. ,, 4l. ... 5d. ,, 4l. ... 6d. ,, 91. ,, 10l. ,, IOI.

Except in cases of Firms (where usual designation is sufficient), money orders are issued in the full surname, and at least one Christian name, both of sender and receiver, together with the sender's address. When the remitter directs at the time of issue (which he is at liberty to do), that the Order by being crossed like a cheque, be made payable only through a bank, it is left to his option to give or withhold the name of the payee; and when the order is thus presented the question put on the presentation of an ordinary Money Order is dispensed with.

Money Orders are issued in the United Kingdom on the following Colonies, British agencies, and Foreigh countries :-

Alexandria Mauritius South Australia Denmark Natal Berbice (New Am-Egypt Falkland Islands Straits Settlements New Brunswick Suez sterdam Belgium France (Paris only) Newfoundland Switzerland New South Wales Belize (British Hon- German Empire Tasmania New Zealand Gibraltar United States British Columbia Gold Coast Nova Scotia Valparaiso Cape of Good Hope Heligoland Prince Edward Isld. Victoria Canada Oneensland West Coast of Africa Holland St Helena West Indies Ceylon (Colombo) Hong Kong Seychelle Islands Constantinople India Western Australia Shanghai Coquimbo Yokohama Italy Smyrna Demerara (Georgetn) Malta

The scale of commission for Orders payable abroad is as follows:-

If payable in Belgium, France, the German Empire, Heliogoland, Holland, Italy, Switzerland, Gibraltar, Malta, or Constantinople, for sums not exceeding 21., 9d.; above 2l. and not exceeding 5l., 1s. 6d.; above 5l. and not exceeding 7l., 2s. 3d.; above 71. and not exceeding 101., 3s.

If payable in any other place abroad (including British India, the United States of America, and most of the British Colonies), authorized to transact business with this country, for sums not exceeding 2/., Is.; above 2/. and not exceeding 5/., 2s.; above 51. and not exceeding 71., 3s.; above 71. and not exceeding 101., 4s.

FOREIGN MAILS are made up in London, and become due as follows :- Austria, France, German Empire, Holland, Italy, Russia, Switzerland, etc, twice daily, (Sunday excepted).

Australia (via Brindisi), made up about 3rd Friday monthly, due about 2nd Monday monthly; (via Southampton or San Francicso) made up 1st Thursday monthly, due 3rd Monday monthly.

British West Indies, made up 2nd and 17th of each month, due about 13th and 28th. Cape of Good Hope, made up 5th, 15th, and 25th of each month, due about 5th, 15th, and 24th. India (via Brindisi), made up every Friday, due every Monday; (via Southampton) made up every Thursday, due every Monday, United States and Canada, made up in Cork (via Queenstown), at mid day every Sunday, Wednesday, and Friday.

GENERAL POSTAL UNION .- The counties which have formed themselves into a union are Austro-Hungary, Belgium, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Luxemburg, the Netherlands. Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Servia, Spain, Sweden. Switzerland, Turkey, and the United States; but, as regards France, the treaty will not take effect until the 1st January, 1276. The general union rate of postage established by the treaty is twopence-halfpenny per half-ounce letter. A new postage stamp of the value of twopence-halfpenny has been issued for sale to the public, and may be obtained at all post offices. Foreign post cards, bearing an impressed stamp of the value of one penny farthing, may also be obtained for transmission to any of the countries of the union. The rates to other Foreign Countries per half-ounce letter remain as heretofore, viz.:—Australia and New Zealand (via Brindisi) 9d., (via Southampton) 6d.; Canada (via United States), 4d.; Cape of Good Hope, 15.; India (via Southampton) 9d., (via Brindisi), 15. Newspapers can be sent to the Colonies and most Foreign Countries for 1d.

TELEGRAMS.—The charge for Telegrams throughout the United Kingdom, but excepting the Scilly, Orkney, and Shetland Islands, is 14 for the first 20 words, and 3d. for every additional five words, the names and addresses of the sender and receiver not being counted. When the office from which the message is delivered is a Head Post Office, the amount paid for the transmission of a message covers the cost of delivery within the town postal delivery of that office; but when it is not a Head Post office, the message is delivered free only within the limit of one mile. When the addressee resides beyond the above-described limits, porterage is charged at the rate of 6d. per double mile, provided the whole distance to be traversed does not exceed three double miles. Either a stamped telegram card, or a telegram form enclosed in an envelope, addressed "Telegraph Office," may be posted without additional charge in a wall or pillar box, or in the letter box of a Receiving Office or Sub-Post Office. Telegranns so posted are sent on to the nearest Postal Telegraph Office by the first collection from the letter-box in which they are deposited, and are thence transmitted by wire as soon as possible. Payment of messages may be made be made by affixing postage stamps to the message-forms which are supplied gratis at all postal telegraph offices.

EXAMPLE.—to find the number of days from the 15th June to the 15th March following. Find June in the first column, and then in a line with that under March, is 273 days. If it were from the 15th June to 25th March, it would be 10 days more, or 283 days; but if from the 15th June to the 5th March, it would be 10 days less, or 263 days. In leap years, when the last day of February is included between the two times, there will be one day more than by the table.

LETTER PRESS DEPARTMENT.

RANCIS GUY has now erected the Largest Printing Works in the South of Ireland, and fitted up additional steam machinery, in order to facilitate the operations of his increasing trade. Considerable additions also to his already extensive assortment of modern type, and the employment of a permanent staff of skilful workmen, enable him to execute orders in the various branches more promptly than any other office in the South of Ireland, and in style equal to the first London firms. Special arrangements for the speedy execution of urgent printing.

The following have been selected from the very many flattering comments by the Press, in reviewing works issued from his establishment:—

"A tasteful volume beautifully printed."-The Graphic.

"In printing and general style it reflects great credit on Mr. Guy, who has produced it in as good a style as if it had issued from one of the best London houses."—Quarterly Archaeological Review.

"The volume is beautifully got up. In typographical accuracy and elegance it does credit to the Irish Provincial Press."—Northern Whig, Belfast.

"The volume is most creditable to the establishment of Mr. Guy."-Cork Examiner.

"The typography of the work reflects great credit on Mr. FRANCIS GUY of this city"—Cork Constitution "It is a credit to the publisher, as it is universally acknowledged to be to the author."—Cork Herald.

"Elegantly printed by F. Guy, of Cork."-Waterford Citizen.

- "The material get up of this book is not only neat, but elegant."-Munster News.
- "I have pleasure in testifying that nothing could be more satisfactory than the manner in which all work was executed; in style it was equal to the very best London work, the prices were singularly moderate, and it was supplied with remarkable punctuality."—John George Mac Carthy, M.P., F.R.S., Author of History of Cork, &c.

"You really do things with such taste, and your charges are very moderate, and everything you did for us was first rate."—Miss Cusack, Authoress of History of County Cork, &c.

"Having received estimates from Scotch and Dublin extensive publishing firms for the printing and binding of this little work, and from Francis Guy's establishment in this city (the recent publications of which house are a sufficient guarantee of style), and finding Francis Guy's estimate the cheapest, I have resolved on entrusting the introduction of this little book into material life to him; assured that, both in exterior and interior appearance, it will present an aspect worthy of his reputation and character."—Editor of Popular Poctry, Street Ballads, and Household Songs of Ireland; the Harp of Erin, &c.

LITHOGRAPHIC DEPARTMENT.

RANCIS GUY possessing the advantages of efficient Draughtsmen and Lithographic Writers on the premises, is in a position to execute orders in this Department very quickly, in superior style. Sketches and Estimates submitted for every description of Bankers' Cheques, Bill of Exchange, Show Cards, Receipt Forms, Memorandum Forms, Note Headings, Invoices, Business Cards, Share Certificates, &c., &c.

MAPS AND PLANS, IN CONNECTION WITH RENTALS, ETC., ENGRAVED OR LITHOGRAPHED.

FRANCIS GUY'S COUNTY AND CITY CORK ALMANAC

PRICE 6d.

The Largest, Best, and most Useful Commercial and Family Almanac ever published in Cork.

Besides the usual contents of an Almanac, this work contains Tide Tables for the year—Phases of the Moon and Stars—Equation of Time—Rising and Setting of the Sun—Commercial and Agricultural Tables—Calendar—Fairs of Munster (specially collected and arranged for this Almanac)—County Information—Stamp and License Duties—Imperial and Local Taxation—Railway, Steam Boat, and Postal information—Postal and Telegraph Guide for Ireland—Clerical and Professional List—County and City Magistrates and Officials—Poor, County, and City Rates—Military Staff—Civil Service Officials—City Business Guide—Agricultural, Sporting, Business, and Legal Memoranda for the year—Quarter Sessions—Petty Sessions Courts—Stamp and License Duties—Public Institutions—City Street Guide—Map of the City of Cork—Banking, Insurance, and other valuable and important information.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the "Cork Constitution"—This is a new candidate for public favour; and in our judgment is sure to win a success, which it richly merits. Besides the ordinary contents, this Almanac gives a large collection of local information admirably arranged and digested. The Calendar contains the usual astronomical notices, the equation of time, a tide table, and a considerable amount of miscellaneous information. It is, moreover, interleaved with blank pages, which will be found useful for memoranda. The Almanac contains a well executed map of the City of Cork, with alphabetical list of street. The feature of the book is the "Professional and Trades' Directory," which, being very comprehensive and generally accurate, will be of considerable value to the public. In every department this Almanac has been compiled with evident care and intelligence. It need hardly be observed that the printing and whole "get up" of the volume are perfection, and highly creditable to Mr. Guy's establishment.

From the "Cork Daily Herald"—Mr. Francis Guy, Patrick street, has published an admirable Almanac, to which is attached a carefully compiled professional, trades, and business directory, and a map of Cork, with reduced map of the harbour, and and an alphabetical list of the streets, sub-streets, &c., of the city—aids which must prove of the greatest value to strangers visiting this district. Opposite the page devoted to each month is a blank sheet for memoranda. It is also remarkable for the copiousness and accuracy of its local, commercial, and general information, and in fact is wanting in nothing that goes to make it a first-class Almanac. The entire is printed on fine toned paper, and on its first appearance we have to congratulate its publisher on the excellent character of his work.

STATISTICS OF CO. CORK.

IN EXTENT of surface, Cork is the largest county in the United Kingdom, except that of York: comprising an area of 2,700 square miles, or 1,849,686 acres. Its greatest length (east and west), from Youghal harbour to Dursey Head, 110 miles; its width, from the Old Head of Kinsale to Charleville, 56 miles. It is bounded on the north by Limerick, south by the Atlantic, east by Tipperary and Waterford, west by Kerry. The county is situated under the same parallel of latitude as several of the most southern counties in England. The city of Cork is in the latitude of 51 deg. 46 min., and its longitude 8 deg. 30 min. west of Greenwich. Dublin mean time (25 mins. later than Greenwich) is observed at Cork and all railway stations.

Territorial Divisions.—The county is divided into twenty-three baronies; and again into 243 civil parishes, sub-divided into 5478 townlands. Irrespective of the foregoing, the county is divided under the Poor Law Act into Poor Law Unions, fourteen of which are wholly in the county, and five partly in adjoining counties. These Poor Law Unions are divided into electoral divisions and dispensary districts; these latter, for the medical relief of the poor under the Poor Law Acts, and for the purpose of Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages (26 and 27 Vic., c. 11 and 90), are composed of a certain number of electoral divisions, the registrar's district being identical with the dispensary district.

Postal Districts.—There are eleven head postal and telegraphic centres in the county, viz.—Bandon, Bantry, Buttevant, Charleville, Cork, Fermoy, Kinsale, Mallow, Midleton, Skibbereen, and Youghal. These offices serve 122 sub-postal districts, many of which are also telegraph stations and money order offices.

Parliamentary Boroughs.—The county returns eight members to Parliament: two for the county at large, two for Cork city, and one each for the boroughs of Bandon, Kinsale, Mallow, and Youghal. There were formerly in the county four walled towns—Cork, Youghal, Kinsale, and Bandon; and eight others that sent members to Parliament, viz.—Mallow, Baltimore, Clonakilty, Charleville, Castlemartyr, Midleton, Doneraile, and Rathcormac—the seven last mentioned towns were disfranchised in 1800.

Townships and Towns.—The county includes nine townships, and six towns of more than 2000 inhabitants. Townships: Bandon, Clonakilty, Mallow, and Youghal, are governed by town commissioners under the Act 9, Geo. iv., c. 82; Fermoy, Kinsale, Midleton, Queenstown, and Skibbereen, under the "Towns Improvement Act" for Ireland (17 and 18 Vic., c. 103). Towns: Bantry, Charleville, Dunmanway, Macroom, Mitchelstown, and Passage West; these towns have no local government. The city of Cork is divided into seven wards, and governed by a mayor, and town council consisting of two aldermen and six councillors for each ward.

Judicial Divisions.—For the purpose of holding general sessions of the peace, the county is divided into East and West Ridings. Quarter Sessions are held (Hilary, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas terms) in the towns of Bandon, Bantry, Clonakilty, Cork, Fermoy, Kanturk, Kinsale, Macroom, Mallow, Midleton, Skibbereen, and Youghal; there are also fifty-two Petty Sessions Districts. The county is in charge of a Lieutenant, an indefinite number of deputy lieutenants and magistrates, who act gratuitiously. The judicial establishment consists of two chairmen of Quarter Sessions, a recorder (whose civil jurisdiction extends to the borough and barony of Cork), and six stipendiary magistrates, who act at Petty Sessions and elsewhere with the county justices of the peace. The city of Cork is governed by its own magistrates. The assizes are held—spring and summer—in the city of Cork.

Ecclesiastical Divisions.—In this county there are three dioceses—Cork, Cloyne, and Ross. The parishes of Drishane, Cullen, Dromtarriff, Killmeen, and Nohavaldaly are in the Protestant Episcopalian diocese of Ardfert and Aghadoe; these five parishes, together with Kilcorney, Killaconenagh, and Kilnamanagh, are in the Roman Catholic diocese of Kerry. The Roman Catholic clergy consists of three bishops, 86 parish priests, six administrators, 175 curates and chaplains, besides orders of regular clergy; the Protestant Episcopalian clergy consists of one bishop, three deans and chapters, 163 rectors, and 27 curates—(see p. 41).

Military Divisions.—Cork city is the head-quarters of the Cork or South-Western Military District; and the county, in conjunction with the counties of Clare, Kerry, and Limerick, forms No. 70 Military Sub-District, the Brigade Depôt of which is at Tralee. The stations of the Cork District are: Ballincollig, Bandon, Bantry, Clonakilty, Charles Fort, Cork City, Cork Harbour (including Camden and Carlisle Forts, Hawlbowline, Queenstown Hospital, Ringaskiddy Tower, Rocky Island, and Spike Island), Kinsale, Macroom, Skibbereen, and Youghal; Fermoy District: Buttevant, Fermoy, Kanturk, Killarney, Mallow, Millstreet, Mitchelstown, and Tralee.

The Militia of the county, when embodied, consists of four regiments: North Cork Rifles, stationed at Mallow; Royal Cork City Artillery, stationed at Cork city; South Cork Light Infantry, stationed at Bandon; West Cork Artillery, stationed at Macroom.

The Constabulary Force consists of two county inspectors, twenty-one sub-inspectors, and 808 men; there are 149 constabulary barracks in the county.

The Climate of Cork is remarkable for its mildness and humidity, the average annual rainfall at Cork, for instance, being about 40 inches, and the average temperature about 52° Fahr—the arbutus, lauristinus, myrtle, agapanthus, and fuchsia growing healthily in the open air. The excess of rain, however, is chiefly confined to the autumn and winter months. The warmest part of Ireland, in January, February, and March, is the corner lying south of a line drawn from Killarney to Cork, where the mean January temperature is 42° to 43°, about 1° below that of the warmest part of England, and 2°.5° above that of Pau, in the South of France (40°5°); in April, Cork has the same temperature as England south of London (49° to 50°); in July the warmest part of England is 2° warmer than Cork, whose mean temperature is then 62°.

Geology.—The Lower Silurian is the oldest formation that has a surface exposure in this county, an area of about four and a-half square miles occurring on the northern boundary, on the south-west of the Galtee mountains; the formation in this district consists of hard quartzose grits and slates. The Old Red Sandstone and Upper Old Red Sandstone strata cover about half the area of this county, the largest band of it stretching continuously from Dursey Head to Mine Head (co. Waterford). The Old Red Sandstone formation consists of silicious grit, clay slate (argillaceous schist), and purple and grey slate-this strata is almost entirely unfossiliferous; the Upper Old Red Sandstone, of red and yellow sandstone, yellow shales, and purple slates—in this formation have been found many plant and animal remains. The thickness of the Old Red Sandstone, in this county, seems to be from 4000 to 10000 feet. Sections about the southern part of the Pass of Keimaneigh give a thickness of 9800 feet; of these sections about 800 feet is given to the Upper Old The whole south-western district of the county is abundantly traversed by metalliferous veins, but there is no connection between the veins and containing rocks, as they occur in different formations. The metals found are, copper, lead (silver-bearing and otherwise), manganese, and iron, many of which have been, or are being, worked; but, although there is so much ore scattered about, it is comparatively seldom enough is collected in one place to make the working of it remunerative. The Berehaven copper mine Alli hies), discovered in 1812, is one of the richest in Ireland, and yields more than 2000 tons of ore annually—the ore occurs in a large quartzose vein, which generally intersects clay-slate rocks from north to south, but in some places runs parallel to the strata. Iron seems to have been extensively worked in former times; but the metal being smelted with wood, the works were abandoned when the fuel was used up. The Carboniferous Slate and Limestone strata are extensively developed in this county, except in those places where older rocks appear on the surface. Where the slate and limestone come together, the former lies beneath; but in the greater part of south Cork the slate occupies the whole of the formation to the exclusion of the limestone altogether—being directly overlaid by the Coal Measure—as near Bandon, where its thickness is at least 3800 feet. Anthracite coal is abundant near Kanturk. There are two lines of colleries, beginning two or three miles south-west of Kanturk, and running for eight or nine miles westerly; of these the Dromagh and Lisnacon colleries are the most important. The Coal Measure of this county also includes culm, used for burning lime, and a bituminous shale sometimes used for fuel. Of the other useful products [see p. 44] of the county, limestone and variegated marbles are the principal; slates for roofing, flags, clays for pottery and brickmaking, fuller's earth, ochres, magnesia limestone, etc. A calcareous sand, which is dredged off off Bantry and elsewhere, is extensively used for manuring the land, and consists of the debris of white coral and marine shells. The mineral waters discovered in this county are mostly chalybeates—as near Castlemartyr, Bandon, Kanturk, Macroom, and elsewhere—and the thermal springs about Mallow. The traps, or igneous rocks, in Cork are of small extent, but of great interest. The tillage lands of this county, though not so rich as the pasture lands in Tipperary, Limerick, and Meath, are also of great fertility.

Zoology.—The Fauna of Cork generally resembles that of the neighbouring island. In consequence, it is presumed, of the humidity of the soil and climate, venomous reptiles are unknown, as also is the mole.

are unknown, as also is the mole.

Mamalia.—Seal, otter, fox, badger (rare), stoat, common shrew, hedgehog, common marten, field and common mouse, black rat (rare), grey rat, Irish hare, rabbit, long-eared and pipistrelle bats.

Birds.—Eagles, Falcons, and Hawks—The golden eagle breeds on the borders of Cork and Tipperary, also at Gougane Barra; cincreous, or sea eagle, the ciffis of the coast; sopery, or fishing hawk (rare); common buzzard, one of the handsomest of the falconide (rare); merlin, the most brilliant and dashing of all the hawks: peregrine falcon kestril, goshawk, sparnow hawk, hen harrier, marsh barrier.

Resident and Common Species.—Song thrush, blackbird, hedge accentor, stonechat, common wren, great titmouse, blue titmouses, cole titmouse, pied wagtail, grey wagtail, meadow pipit, woodlark, skylark, common linnet, chaffinch, common bunting, reed bunting, house sparrow, common strling, jackdaw. magpie, jay, chough raven, carrien crow, hooded crow, rook, kingisher, ring dove, red grouse, partridge, golden plover, ringed plover, lapwing or peewit, heron, sandpiper, saipe, curlew, moor hen, common wild duck, teal, dabchick or little grebe, common guilemot, common gull, herring gull, black-headed gull, gannet or solau goose, common tern or sea swallow, cormorant, barn owl, etc.

Summer Visitants.—Spotted flycatcher, wheatear, sedge warbler, blackcap warbler, whitethroat, willow wren, chiffichaff, cuckoo, swallow, martin, swift, nightjar, turtle dove, common quall, landrail or corncrake, puffin, etc.

Winter Visitants.—Short-eared owl, field fare, redwing, woodcock, jack snipe, bean goose, pintail, grey plover, wigeon, pochard, gooseander, wild swan (occasionally), etc.

Botany.—At present Cork is not a well-wooded country, a defect which is fast being remedied by extensive plantations; but we have historical evidence that at no very remote period large tracts were covered with a gigantic growth of forest trees. Boate, in his Natural History (1652), mentions the great extent of wood then standing; and all the scenery of Spenser's Faëry Queen is drawn from the river Bandon, which he celebrates as the "pleasant Bandon wood y-crowned," as it is to this day. There are still, however, in a few favoured spots, some remains of the ancient oak and ash woods, as at Glengariff, Killarney, etc. There exists here, in a native state, over three hundred rare varieties of flowering plants, alpine plants, mosses, lichens, etc, many of which are found also in Spain, the islands of the Mediterranean, and South America. The arbutus unedo (strawberry tree) of Killarney is found in the neighbourhood of Glengariff; many of the most scarce and beautiful varieties of ferns are to be met with in the county, as the beech fern, mountain buckler fern, lanceolate spleenwort, black maidenhair spleenwort, European bristle fern, Wilson's film fern, etc.

Rivers.—The county is extremely well watered, and the rivers are numerous, some navigable to a greater or less extent. The first in magnitude is the Blackwater, which, for the greater part of its course, belongs to this county. It has its rise in a bog on the borders of Cork and Kerry; entering this county at Millstreet, it flows in an easterly direction, through Mallow and Fermoy, into co. Waterford. The Lee, the next in importance, is thirty-two miles from its source at Gougane Barra to the city of Cork, and eleven miles from thence to Cork harbour. The Bandon, Ilen, and Arigadeen are also considerable These and their tributaries exceed 300 miles in length, and the whole district is rich in salmon and white and brown trout.

The Coast.—The coast line of Cork extends from Youghal harbour to the mouth of the Kenmare river, about 110 miles, and is indented with numerous deep and safe bays, suitable for coasting and other vessels, besides numerous inlets for fishing craft. bours of Cork and Bantry bay are specially spacious and well-protected: Bantry bay being about 26 miles long, and from three to five miles broad; Cork harbour, exclusive of its numerous creeks and bays, four miles in length by two in breadth. The other harbours and bays are—Youghal, Oysterhaven, Kinsale, Courtmacsherry, Clonakilty, Glandore, Castlehaven, Baltimore, Roaring-water, Skull, Crookhaven, Dunmanus, Kenmare river, etc. Off the coast are the islands of Cape Clear, Whiddy, Bear, Sherkin, and Dursey, and several smaller islands. There are in operation eight lighthouses, viz.—at Youghal, Ballycotton, Cork harbour (Rochespoint), Old Head of Kinsale, summit of Fastnet rock, Bantry bay, Crookhaven, and off Dursey head. Mackerel, pilchards, herrings, and sprats frequent the coast in large quantities, and the surrounding sea abounds with fish both round and flat, as-skate, turbot, plaice, soles, conger and other eels, cod, whiting, smelts, haddock, hake, mullet, etc.; lobsters, crawfish, crabs, shrimps, prawns, and other shell Sunfish, from 12 to 30 feet long frequent the coast; whales visit it occasionally, we been cast up on the shore. The dolphin and porpoise are common, large comand have been cast up on the shore. panies of the latter being frequently captured on different parts of the coast; the blue shark, sea devil, and cuttle fish are met with; seals breed in caves worked into the pre-Rare species of algæ have been discovered on various parts of the cipitious headlands. coast; and carrageen, or Irish moss, is a seaweed of some commercial importance. are many fine caves on the coast which have been worked out by the sea; as, for instance, near Rosscarbery. Some of them have puffing holes opening up to the surface of the ground above, through which the waves send jets of spray to a great height. There is one of these on the east side of the south entrance of Baltimore harbour, called Hell Hole. There are some great sea caves on the outer side of Bear island.

The Census of 1821 is the first that affords means of comparison with those of subsequent decades.

The Navy and Military serving in Ireland, as well as the wives and families of such persons, are included in the Population Tables in 1861 and 1871, but not in previous Censuses. The number in the county and city of Cork in 1861, 7,214; in 1871, 5,803.

Decrease in Population .- The decrease is chiefly attributable to Emigration (see Table VI.)

IV .- LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACTS.

By the Act 35 & 36 Vic., c. 69, passed in 1872, the functions of the Lord Lieutenant, the Privy Council, and the Chief Secretary, relating to the government of towns, the administration of the poor laws and sanitary laws in Government Ireland, have devolved upon the Local Government Board (late the Poor Law Board) for Ireland.

Local Board.

Local

Ireland)

Act, 1871.

On the 21st August, 1871, a previous Act was passed, which is called the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1871. That Act applies to all towns in Ireland which are under any form of local government, whether Town Council or Commissioners, under the Act 9 Geo. IV., under the Act 3 & 4 Vic., c. 108, under the Towns Improvement Act, 17 & 18 Vic., c. 103, or finally under any local Act.

Government The main purpose of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1871, was to give to the governing body, in any case, some power or powers which they did not possess, and which that body desired, with the assent of the ratepayers, to possess, but which heretofore could not be obtained without direct application to Parliament at considerable expense to the ratepayers. Under this Act, after petition presented, the Local Government Board will cause all necessary inquiry to be made, at little expense to the locality concerned, and the desired power or powers will be given, if objection is not made and sustained, by what is called a Provisional Order, which passes through the Legislature usually without discussion, and without expense to the parties asking for it.

The following powers may be obtained, and two or more powers may be included in the same order :-

1. Power to purchase land for certain defined purposes of public utility;

2. To incorporate adjoining district with the town;

3. To separate any part of the town from the jurisdiction of the govern- Powers to be obtained ing body;

4. To transfer to the governing body from the grand jury of the county under the Act in which the town is situate all authority with regard to roads, bridges, footpaths, and public works within the town, and all taxation for such purposes, and to make the necessary provisions in relation to such transfer;

5. To authorize the making of further rates in addition to the maximum at present authorized;

6. To provide for the future execution of, or alteration or repeal of, any Local Act affecting the town, or any part thereof;

7. To extend the borrowing powers it certain cases.

There are other provisions which can only be understood by reference to the Act itself. They relate chiefly to markets and fairs, the auditing of accounts, the borrowing of money, and other matters affecting the execution of the Act.

The Acts specially transferred to the Local Government Board are-The Towns Improvement Act (17 & 18 Vic., c. 103); Sanitary Act, 1866 (29 & 30 Vic., c. 90); Sewage Utilization Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vic., c. 75); Nuisance Removal, 1855 (18 & 19 Vic., c. 121); Diseases Prevention, 1855 (18 & 19 Vic., c. 116); Amendment on two last Acts (23 & 24 Vic., c. 77); Sanitary Act Amendment, 1868 (31 & 32 Vic., c. 115); Sanitary Loans, 1869 (32 & 33 Vic., c. 115); Common Lodging House Act, 1860 (23 Vic., c. 26); Burial Grounds (16 & 20 Vic., c. 98, and 23 & 24 Vic., c. 76); Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1874.

The Sewage Utilization Act (1865), and the Sanitary Act (1866), contain clauses making their provisions specially applicable to Ireland, and a number of the provisions of the Local Government Act of 1858 have thereby been extended to Ireland, and the Irish law with regard to sewers and public health has been assimulated to the latest English provisions.

V .- GENERAL SURVEY AND VALUATION OF PROPERTY.

Townland Valuation.

The Townland Valuation of Ireland, under the Act 7 Geo. IV., cap. 62, was commenced in 1826 by Sir Richard Griffith, bart, LL.D., the Commissioner appointed under the Act. The object of the valuation was to provide for the more equally levying Grand Jury Cess and county charges.

Poor Law Valuation.

The Poor Law Valuation, under the Poor Law Act, passed in 1838, required each tenement to be rated separately, according to its net annual value, and was made in each union by local valuators.

In order to remedy the inconvenience arising from different systems of valuation, the Act 9 & 10 Vic., c. 110, was passed in 1846, for a Tenement Valuation, which provides, that every tenement which is a rateable hereditament. under the provisions of the Poor Law Act 1 & 2 Vic., c. 56, shall be separately valued upon an estimate of the net annual value, i. e., of the rent at which, one year with another, the same might, in its actual state, be reasonably expected to let from year to year; the probable annual average cost of repairs, insurance, and other expenses, necessary to maintain the hereditament in its actual state, and all rates, taxes, and public charges, except tithe-rentcharge, being paid by the tenant. This Act has been amended by another Act (15 & 16 Vic., c. 63), passed in 1852, in which one uniform principle of valuation for all kinds of assessments was extended to the whole of Ireland, having reference to the intrinsic worth and capabilities of the soil, its adaptation to different descriptions

Tenement Valuation. of produce, and the value of the same according to a scale of prices of agricultural produce, embodied in the Act; but taking the net annual value, as in the Poor Law Act, for houses, mines, fisheries, buildings, &c., to which such principle of comparison could not be applied. Under this Act, the whole of Ireland has been valued. The cost of making the Tenement Valuation, and subsequently revising it annually, was advanced to the counties and cities from the Imperial Treasury, and repaid in full from the Grand Jury Rates until the year 1860, when, in consideration of the various public purposes for which the valuation is used, the Act 23 Vic., cap. 4, transferred the cost of making the annual revisions to the Consolidated Fund, one moiety of which is repaid by the counties and cities. Under the Act 37 & 38 Vic., c. 70, the proportion of the expense of the annual revision chargeable to this county is fixed at £505 per annum from 1st July, 1874.

Duties of Valuation -

Powers of

Cost of Valuation.

The principle duties of the Valuation Department now consists in revising annually, in cases where changes occur in the boundaries, occupancy, or proprietorship, and in making such additions as may be neccessary in properties Department, of a variable nature, such as buildings, railways, mines, gas and water works, &c.

VI.-GRAND JURY FOR COUNTY CESS.

The Grand Jury Cess is a tax peculiar to Ireland. The purposes for which it is raised are chiefly those provided in England and Wales by the highway rate, tumpike tolls, county rate, rates for bridges, and police rate. The kinds of property assessable in Ireland correspond very closely to that rateable to the poor-rate in England and Wales. The power of the Grand Juries in Ireland was (in 1836) limited by the creation of a tribunal called Presentment Sessions Grand Jury, for each barony and for the county at large, consisting of the magistrates of the county, and a certain number of the highest cesspayers chosen by ballot out of a list fixed by the Grand Jury, except as it provided in the Act 6 & 7, Wm. IV, ch. 116, then passed. At these Presentment Sessions nearly all the presentments as to which the Grand Jury have any discretion are required to be first passed.

Previous to the passing of the Act 15 & 16 Vic., ch. 63 (1852), Grand Jury Cess was assessed exclusively on land, but that Act, as also the Act 19 & 20 Vic., ch. 63, made all property that was liable to the payment of Poor Rates, liable also to the payment of County Cess, exempting all property used exclusively either for public or charitable purposes, but rating the landlord on that the annual rent received by him from such institutions. And up to the passing of the Landlord and Tenant (Ireland) Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vic., ch. 46), the occupiers of rateable premises were in all cases liable to the entire Payment of Grand Jury Cess, but that Act authorises the occupier of any Agricultural or Pastoral holding, valued over £4, under any tenancy whatsoever, created after the 1st August, 1870, to deduct from his rent one-half of the County Cess paid by him; and where the value of such holdings does not exceed £4, the County Cess is payable by the landlord. In all cases of County Cess specially levied as compensation for any Malicious Injury, either under the Act 6 & 7 Wm. IV, ch. 116, or "The Peace Preservation (Ireland) Act." the occupiers are solely liable for the full amount of such special levies

Every application to be made at the Presentment Sessions must be lodged with the Secretary of the Grand Jury ten days before the day appointed to hold the first Presentment Sessions; and in case of new roads, a appointed to hold the first recentificities essions; and in case of new roads, a map of the proposed line must accompany the application. All applications for fees, salaries, or payments whatsoever, for which the Grand Jury has power Applications to present, without previous application to Presentment Sessions, are to be for Works. lodged with the Secretary of Grand Jury, with full details, six clear days previous to the day to be appointed under the Act for empalies the Grand Jury. In cases of malicious injury to property, an application to be lodged with the Secretary of Grand Jury ten days before the first Presentment Sessions, and a notice in writing of such injury served on the High Constable of the Barony, and Churchwardens of the Parish, and at the nearest police station, within six days after the commission of the injury; and an examination on oath, before any county justice, shall be given in within three days after the commission of the injury; and notices posted of such application, as is prescribed in cases of other applications to Presentment Sessions.

Malicious Injuries.

Notice in writing of every application to Sessions, for any work, must be posted on, or adjacent to, the doors of every police station within the parish where the work is proposed to be executed, and at the posting places, if any, appointed by the Grand Jury in the said parish; and a copy of such notice to be delivered to every Clerk of Petty Sessions for the district where the work is intended to be made, or the greater portion thereof to be performed, and to the County Surveyor, ten days previous to the day of holding the Sessions at which the application is intended to be made.

Every person intending to traverse any Presentment generally, on the merits, or for inutility; cr any application for payment of money, must give notice in writing to the Secretary of the Grand Jury, within two days after the Presentment Sessions at which the application for such Presentment has been taken into consideration; and every person intending to traverse any Presentment for damages, must give the like notice to the Chairman of the Presenting Sessions, and to the Secretary of the Grand Jury, stating the amount of damages intending to be claimed, previous to the commencement of the next assizes.

Opposing ments.

When the Presentment Sessions have approved of the Applications for the execution or maintenance of County Works, tenders are then invited and submitted to the Magistrates at a subsequent Sessions held for that purpose, usually Tenders for called Adjourned Sessions (the time and place being appointed at the Presentment Sessions for the Barony previously held) and the lowest tender is accepted, Works, &c. if not in excess of the amount allowed, provided the securities be approved of. In cases where no tenders are accepted at such Sessions, the Grand Jury, under the Act 20 and 21 Vic., ch. 15, have power either to accept a tender, or to authorise the County Surveyor to execute the work, but the expense is limited to the amount allowed at the Presentment Sessions.

Grand Jury Cess is levied, under votes of the Grand Jury, at Assizes, for the following purposes:—

1. Making new roads, bridges, quays, and gullets; 2. repairing same; 3. building and repairing courts of justice; 4. building and repairing prisons; 5. prison expenses; 6. police expenses; 7. salaries to county officers; 8. public charities; 9. repayment of government advances; 10. miscellaneous. Purposes for Some of those presentments are imposed and rated at the discretion of the which Grand Grand Jury; but the following are imperative by Act of Parliament:—County infirmary and fever hospitals; district fever hospitals and infirmarys (partly); building and repairing diocesan schools; expenses of inquests; constabulary force (partly); prosecution of offenders; expenses of the general valuation (partly); expenses of Commissioners of Public Works; compensation for malicious injuries; expenses under the Arms Act; repayment of government advances; and some others of minor importance. Presentments for works for the general use of the county are levied on the county at large; those for particular districts on the baronies enjoying their benefit.

Presentments for compensation for malicious injuries are levied either off the county at large, or off the barony, parish, townland, or sub-denomination where the outrage occurred, as the Grand Jury may think proper.

The following is an extract from Proclamation of Lord Lieutenant and Privy Proclamation Council, dated 15th July, 1843, "Ordering and directing that certain detached portions of Counties and Baronies shall be altered and annexed to, and become Baronies. portions of other Baronies," as follows :-

VII.-LOCAL TAXATION.

The chief local taxes in Ireland are Grand Jury Cess, Poor Rates, Town and Harbour Taxation, Petty Sessions Stamps, Arterial Drainage Taxation, Dog Licence Duty, Tolls, etc.

The Poor Rate is levied under the assessment of poundage rate on the net Assessment annual value of the property rateable, which annual value is declared to be "the rent for which one year with another the property might be let from year Poor Rate, to year, the probable annual average cost of repairs, insurance, and other necessary expenses for repairs, and all public charges, except tithes, being paid by the tenant." The property liable to poor rates is: all land and buildings; mines seven years open; commons, and all profits out of land; navigations; rights of way, and other rights and easements upon lands; tolls,

The following kinds of property are exempt: -turf bogs, for which rent is Property exempt from not paid; places of worship; buildings used exclusively for charitable purposes;

Poor Rate. buildings used for public purposes; burial grounds.

The persons liable are: -the occupier of the rateable property at the time the rate is made, and in default of his payment, the subsequent occupier; but the occupier of tenements under £8 value in certain boroughs, and at and under Poor Rate. be rated instead (except where the occupier holds under a lease made before The owner of any rent (except owners of rentcharges) the passing of the Act.) is liable to allow the person paying him rent one-half the amount of the rate. The owner of tithe is liable to allow the payer of the tithe the entire poundage paid on the property out of which the tithe arises. Persons deriving any private profit or use from property exempted, are rateable for rents received in respect of such exempted property, to the extent of one-half of the poundage Rates for expenses incurred on account of the whole union, are assessed by an equal rate on the whole; and they are assessed for each electoral division for the special expenses incurred by such division.

Act 13 and 14 Vic., c. 69, requires Poor Rate Collectors or Deputies to Payment of attend for receipt of Rates in respective baronies, boroughs, &c., on 1st July Poor Rate. and three preceding days, exclusive of Sunday, at places to be named, due notice thereof being given.

The rates for drainage are all levied under the code of drainage laws, consisting of the Act passed in 1842 (5 & 6 Vic, c. 89), continued and amended by subsequent statutes, and the rates levied are partly for the repayment by instalments of the principal sums expended upon the works and partly for works of maintenance. The drainage works prior to 1863 were executed by the Commissioners of Public Works, and the instalments to be repaid were fixed by their award, which also ascertained the amount of benefit to each proprietor and the proportion in which he was liable to rates for maintenance. By the Act passed in that year (26 & 27 Vic., c. 88), drainage districts are for the future to be constituted by order of the Public Works Commissioners whenever application is made to them for the purpose, and the order of the Commissioners requires in each case to be confirmed by statute. The execution of the works is thereupon intrusted to the local trustees, and when completed, the Commissioners of Public Works frame an award fixing the charge upon the district, and the proportion payable by each proprietor for the repayment of instalments and for the works of maintenance.

In all towns under Town Councils or boards of Municipal Commissioners or Burial Rate. Town Commissioners acting for the borough or town, the Town Council or Commissioners are empowered to constitute themselves a Burial Board by resolution of their own body, and have power as such to levy burial rates to be expended in the maintenance of old and the purchase of new burial-grounds, under statute 19 and 20 Vic., c. 98, passed in 1856. The burial-rates are made and levied at the same time and in the same manner as the ordinary town rates, and are included in the returns of the Town Commissioners. In all other places the Guardians of the Poor have a like power to constitute themselves Burial Boards for the Union, and to levy rates for like purposes under the provisions of the same Act.

Act 28 and 29 Vic., c. 50, requires owners of dogs to obtain a licence (duty Dog Licence 2s. each dog) from magistrates at Petty Sessions of the district where owner After the expenses of administrating the Act, the surplus is paid over to the Counties, Boroughs, Towns, and Townships, in aid of their local taxation.

VIII. - URBAN AND RURAL SANITARY DISTRICTS.

By the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1874, a certain defined part of each Poor Law Union has been constituted a "rural" sanitary district, and the guardians of the union, as such, declared the sanitary authorities for such sanitary district; and other parts of Poor Law Unions have been declared by the Act to constitute "urban" sanitary districts.

Sec. 10 of the Act enacts that Dispensary District Medical Officers shall be the sanitary officers of their respective districts, together with such other sub-officers as the guardians, with the consent of the Local Government Board, shall appoint. Relieving officers and collectors of poor rates are alike eligible for the office of sanitary sub-officer.

The guardians are also required to appoint a consulting sanitary officer, and for this office every medical officer of the union is eligible, or any other medical practitioner possessing the necessary qualifications; also to appoint an executive sanitary officer, for which office the Clerk of the Union, or any assistant of the clerk appointed by the guardians, shall be eligible.

To the Dispensary Medical Officers and Sauitary Sub-Officers are assigned the respective duties and functions in the discovery or inspection or removal of nuisances, in the supply of pure water, in the making or repairing of sewers or drains, or in generally superintending the execution of the sanitary laws within their district, as follows :-Every sanitary sub-officer who shall observe or be informed of any matter demanding, in his opinion, attention from the sanitary officer of the dispensary district in which he has discovered the same, shall notify it forthwith to the sanitary officer in writing, specifying the nature of the case. Every sanitary officer who shall have been apprised officially or shall otherwise become cognisant of any matter demanding his attention as aforesaid, shall, as soon as conveniently may be, visit the locality, and if, after due inspection, he finds such matter dangerous to public health, he shall report thereon to the Board of Guardians.

The duty of the executive sanitary officer shall be to attend every meeting of the guardians, acting as a sanitary authority, and to take their directions from time to time on the sanitary business of the board, and on the reports of the sanitary officers, and all proceedings arising thereon, and to see that the same are carried out and brought to a conclusion where practicable, in pursuance of In furtherance whereof, is is directed that every the orders of the board. sanitary officer and sub-officer shall, on receiving directions from the executive sanitary officer, attend and assist in all proceedings in which his attendance or assistance may be required.

The duty of the consulting sanitary officer shall be to attend meetings of the guardians, acting as sanitary authority, whenever required to do so, and to advise them on all matters and proceedings requiring medical knowledge and advice in the administration of the sanitary laws. It shall be the duty of the consulting sanitary officer and of the sanitary officers to furnish from time to time to the Local Government Board such statistical returns of sickness and disease in the workhouse and its hospitals, and in the dispensary districts, as shall from time to time be required from them respectively.

The proceeding of the Board of Guardians, acting as the sanitary authority, shall be recorded in the same manner as the minutes of the proceeding of the Proceedings board under the Poor Law and Medical Charities Acts, and a copy of such of Sanitary record shall be annexed to the ordinary minutes of the proceedings of the Authorities. Board of Guardians, and shall be transmitted to the Local Government Board by the clerk of the Union, with such last mentioned minutes.

IX .- POOR LAW UNIONS.

The Poor Law came into operation in 1838, but none of the workhouses were opened for the admission of paupers till 1840. Prior to that date there was no systematic provision for the poor, but the country was by no means Irish system destitute of institutions designed for their benefit. Legislative enactments had of Poor Law. progressively, during the last century, established county infirmaries, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, houses of industry, and receptacles for destitute infants and old people; and similar institutions, together with schools, lying-in hospitals, houses of refuge, and mendicity houses, had been set on foot in various places by private benevolence. But the Irish system of poor law relief differed in one respect from the systems in force in England and Scotland, the relief being administered solely in workhouses. Again, the legal right which desti-

not insist upon it as a right. Under this singularly ineffective law, which has of late years undergone several important modifications, the expenditure for the year ending 1st January, 1846, was only £316,026, and the number of paupers receiving indoor relief 43,293. In 1848, under a recurrence of the famine, and an attack of cholera, the poor rates rose to £1,627,700; in 1850, £2177,651 was disbursed for the relief of the poor. Since 1857, under 10 Vic., c. 31, the system of out-door relief, under certain restrictions, has been progressing; and the present system of poor relief (especially in the matter of out door) is being gradually assimilated to those in force in England and Scotland. In 1873, the total number of paupers in Ireland was 319,342, being an increase of 22,986 on the preceding year. Of these 249,133 were in receipt of indoor relief; 69,507 in receipt of out-door relief; and 602 were in blind and other asylums. In 1857, the total number of out-door paupers on the last Saturday in February was 1096; at the same period in 1874, it was 30,649. This increase is due to the decrease of indoor relief, the daily average recipients of which having fallen from 53,017 in 1867-8, to 46,573 in 1873-4. The total cost of poor-relief in 1873, was £790,560, being an increase of £61,229 on the amount of the pre-The number of persons assisted by boards of guardians to emigrate from 1849 to 1874 was 30,167, the amount so expended being £129,421. In explanation of the fact, that while in England out-door relief is continuously declining, in Ireland it is the reverse, it is officially explained that, in England the prevailing opinion is that out-door relief has been for a long time past in excess of what it ought to be, and active exertions have been made by the authorities to reduce its extent; while in Ireland the popular opinion is that there has been too little out-door relief in comparison with the indoor, and it is the operation of this feeling at boards of guardians that the continuous increase Out-door poor-relief, under its latest modifications, may be summed up as

Election of Poor-Law Guardians.

Notices of the Election of Guardians of the Poor are required to be issued by the Returning Officer for each union during the month of October; voting papers are issued on the 18th March, and on the 25th the election takes place, and those guardians previously in office, and not re-elected, retire. Ex-Officio Guardians of the Poor, not being clergymen, assistant barristers, or stipendaries, are selected on the 29th September. The 18th February is the last day for receiving owners statements of claims to vote at elections.

X. -MEDICAL CHARITIES.

Dispensary Districts.

The provisions of the Medical Charities Act, 14 and 15 Vic., cap. 68, passed in 1851, by which Boards of Guardians were empowered to form the Poor Law Unions into Dispensary Districts, subject to approval by the Poor Commissioners, and to provide Dispensaries for the same, took effect on the 12th November, 1851. Each dispensary district is composed of a certain number of Poor Law electoral divisions—an average of five to each district, and a population of from 7000 to 8000. Every district is under a separate committee, and has one of more dispensaries and medical officers, whose duties are regulated by the Act.

XI .- REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS, DEATHS, AND MARRIAGES.

Deaths, and Marriages.

Districts for The Act for the Registration of Births and Deaths in Ireland (26 Vic., Registration cap. 11), came into operation on the 1st January, 1864. The Act provides that every Poor Law Union, from and after the 31st December, 1863, should be a Superindendent Registrar's District; and that each dispensary district of such Union should be a Registrar's District for the purposes of this Act. In accordance with these provisions, the Clerks of the Poor Law Unions are appointed as Superintendent Registrars, and the Dispensary District Medical Officers as Registrars in their respective districts.

Registration The Act 7 and 8 Vic, c. 81, for the Registration of Marriages came into operation in 1845, but marriages of Roman Catholics were exempted (Act 7 & 8 V. from its operation; however by the Act 26 and 27 Vic., cap. 90 (1863), such marriages were directed to be registered on and from 1st January, 1864, as well as those of all other persuasions,

A copy of the entries in the Registers of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, Copy of Refor the preceding three months, must be sent by the Registrars to the Superin-gisters transfor the preceding three months, must be sent by the Registrars to the Superinmitted to Retendent Registrars in the months of January, April, July, and October, for gistrar-Getransmission to the Registrar-General.

Parents and others must give notice, within 21 days, to the Registrar of their Registration district of the birth of any child; and intimation of death to be given to the compulsory.

Registrar within 7 days: penalty for failing to give notice, 20s.

XII. - VACCINATION.

Act 34 and 35 Vic., cap. 98, requires every Registrar of Births and Deaths to Vaccication transmit to the vaccination officer of the place, once in every month, a return of within six the births and deaths of all infants under 12 months of age, which have been months comregistered by him.

Act 26 and 27 Vic., cap. 52, makes it compulsory for parents and guardians to have such children vaccinated within six months after birth.

XIII .- COUNTY INFIRMARIES AND FEVER HOSPITALS.

These are supported by Grand Jury Presentments, Local Subscriptions, and Hospitals. Parliamentary Grants. By the Medical Charities Act, these allowances are to be discontinued when the officers receiving them at the time of the passing of that Act cease to hold their respective offices.

XIV.—DISTRICT LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Under the management of a board of governors appointed by the Lord Lunatic Lieutenant and Council, and supported out of Grand Jury Cess. By order of Asylums. the Lord Lieutenant, lunatic may be transferred from gaols to asylums; and magistrates have now the power, under 30 and 31 Vic., c. 118, sec. 10, to commit all dangerous or insane persons direct to these institutions.

XV .- REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Industrial Schools were first authorized in Ireland in 1868 (31 Vic., cap. 25), Industrial for orphans or deserted children under 16 years of age. Reformatory Schools and Reformatory were authorized in Ireland in 1858, by 21 and 22 Vic., cap 103, for the recep-matory Schools. tion of children under 16, who have been committed to gaol for some offence.

These schools are under the care of denominational bodies, and maintained partly out of Government grants, partly out of Grand Jury Cess, and partly out of voluntary contributions.

XVI .- ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY.

The first regular police force established throughout Ireland was originated Police Force by the Act 54 Geo. III., cap. 131, passed in 1814—"To provide for the better execution of the Laws in Ireland, by appointing Superintending Magistrates execution of the Laws in Ireland, by appointing Superintending Magistrates and additional Constables in Counties in certain cases. Other Acts followed, but all were consolidated or repealed by the 6th Wm. IV., cap. 13, passed in 1836. The reserve force was established in 1839, by the Act 2 and 3 Vic., cap. 75. Originally the expense was defrayed partly by Grand Jury presentments, and partly out of the Consolidated Fund; but the Act 9 and 10 Vic., cap 97, passed in 1846, provides that the whole expense shall be borne by the Consolidated Fund, except a moiety of the cost of additional Constabulary Force applied for by the Magistrates of any county or district, or of the reserve Force applied for by the Magistrates of any county or district, or of the reserve force when employed therein, or of an increased force stationed there by the Lord Lieutenant. The Constabulary Force consists of an inspector-general, How Constideputy inspector-general, three assist. inspector-generals, county inspectors, tuted. sub-inspectors, head-constables, constables, acting-constables, sub-constables.

XVII. - RESIDENT MAGISTRATES.

Act 6 Wm. IV., cap. 13, authorizes the Lord Lieutenant to appoint resident Resident Stipendary Magistrates, to act in disturbed districts, or in districts where, owing Magistrates. to the absence or non-residence of the local Magistrates, or for any other sufficient cause, it should appear to be expedient.

XVIII. - FISHERIES.

Inland and Coast Fisheries .- In 1848 the Act 11 & 12 Vic., c. 92. passed, Irish Fishwhich imposed a licence duty on engines used for the capture of salmon and eries. trout, and constituted, for the first time, an organised body for the general proConservators tection of the salmon fisheries, giving them, for this purpose, the disposal of the of Fisheries. funds so raised. This body, called by the Act of Parliament "Conservators of Fisheries," was elected by the persons who paid this duty in the different districts into which Ireland was divided by the Commissioners: and this, it may be said, first gave effect to the laws then governing the salmon fisheries. By the 5th and 6th of Vic., c. 106, the principle of a uniform close season for Ireland was first observed, and the Commissioners altered the seasons during which it was not lawful to take salmon or trout; but the 23rd section of the Act 26 and 27 Vic., cap., 114, declares angling by means of rod and line to be legal from the 1st of February till the 1st of November.

Under the Act 26 & 27 Vic., cap. 114, passed in 1863, Special Commissioners No fixed engines to be used in fish- for Irish Salmon Fisheries were appointed. From their Report in 1866, it. eries without appears that prior to the Act of 1842, the use of fixed engines in the tidal waters licence. of Ireland was illegal; but a section of that Act empowered, under certain conditions, the owners of several or exclusive fisheries to erect them. The Act 32 & 33 Vic., c. 92, imposes a penalty of £50 for fishing with fixed engines for salmon without a certificate. This Act amalgamates the Deep Sea, Oyster, and Salmon Fisheries Departments. Boards of Conservators of Fisheries elected for three ensuing years on the

XXII. -THE BALLOT ACT.

Nomination. - In place of the system of nomination at the hustings, the following method has been substituted: - Candidates for counties and boroughs Nominations are to be nominated in writing. The writing is to be subscribed by two regis-under Ballot tered electors as proposer and seconder, and by eight other registered electors Act as assenting to the nomination.

> The Poll.—Votes must be given by ballot. The ballot paper must show the names and descriptions of the candidates, and must have a number printed on the back, and have attached to it a counterfoil with the number printed upon the face. The voter, having received his paper, must proceed to one of the compartments in the station, and with the pencil provided in the compartment, secretly place a cross on the right hand side, opposite the name of such candidate for whom he votes, thus X. He must then fold up the ballot paper so as to conceal his vote, but so as to show the official mark at the back. After having shown the presiding officer the official mark at the back, the voter must place his ballot paper, in the presence of such officer, in the ballot box.

> Miscellaneous Provisions .- The "local authority" of every county must, by order, divide the county into polling districts, and assign a polling place to each district, so that, as far as practicable, every resident elector in the county shall have a polling place within four miles. The local authority of every borough, if they think fit, may, by order, divide the borough into polling districts in the most convenient manner. The returning officer at a parliamentary election may use, free of charge, for the purpose of the poll, any room in a school receiving a grant out of moneys provided by Parliament.

> Criminal Provisions.—Every person who (1) Forges or fraudulently defaces or destroys any nomination paper, or delivers to the returning officer any nomination paper, knowing the same to be forged; or (2) Forges or fraudulently destroys any ballot paper, or the official mark on any ballot paper; or (3) Without due authority supplies any ballot paper to any person; or (4) Fraudulently puts into any ballot box any paper other than his proper ballot paper; or (5) Fraudulently takes out of the polling station any ballot paper; or (6) Without due authority, destroys, takes, opens, or otherwise interferes with any ballot box, or packet of ballot papers then in use for the purposes of the election; shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and be liable, if he is a returning officer, or an officer or clerk in attendance at a polling station, to imprisonment for two years, with or without hard labour, and if he is any other person, to imprisonment for six months, with or without hard labour. Any attempt to commit any of the above offences is punishable in the same manner as the offence itself.

XXIII.-RAILWAY ACTS.

Plans, sections, and books of reference relating to any projected line of railway must be deposited on or before the 30th November with the Clerk of the Peace, and at the Board of Trade, London, prior to application to Parliament for Act of Incorporation. Notice of application for any Railway Act must also be inserted in Dublin Gazette and local newspaper, in October and November. And on or before 23rd December, applications to be made to all owners, lessees, and occupiers of land affected by any proposed railway; also plans, sections, and books of reference to be deposited with clerks or Poor Law Unions, and at Private Bill Office, House of Commons.

Religious Bodies in County Cork.

Irish Episcopalian Church.—A Royal Commission on the revenues of the Established Church in Ireland having been issued, the Commissioners presented their report to Parliament in 1868-9. They found the Irish Church Establishment to consist of two archbishoprics, ten bishoprics, thirty corporation's of deans and chapters, twelve minor corporations or quasi-corporate bodies connected with cathedrals, thirty-two deaneries, thirty-three archdeaconries, 1,509 incumbencies, and 500 stipendiary curates. There were 1,075 benefices, the net income of which was returned as under £300 a-year. About 355 or these were above £200 a-year, about £200 of the remainder above £100 a-year, and about 300 under £100 a-year. The total annual revenues of the Church from all sources, including the aggregate net value of houses and lands in the occupation of bishops, beneficed clergy, &c., and the net income for maintaining cathedral and choral services, amounted in all to £772,574. In 1869, "the Irish Church Act" (32 & 33 Vic., c. 42) was passed, disestablishing the Episcopal Church in Ireland. This Act received the Royal assent on July 26, 1869, and came into operation on the 1st January, 1871. Existing interests were provided for and the rejuyate herefactions left to the Church were retained. of these were above £200 a-year, about 420 of the remainder above £100 a-year, and about interests were provided for, and the private benefactions left to the Church were retained to the amount of £500,000, together with the national historical edifices, including several cathedrals. Immediately on the passing of the Act, in accordance with its 11th and 12th clauses, the Irish Church Temporalities Commissioners took over all the property which the late Ecclesiastical Commissioners had under their control, and issued forms of claim to be filled up by every clergyman or other person entitled to receive a continuance of income or compensation, under the terms of the Act. The 19th sec. of the Act provides for the reorganization of the Church, in accordance with which a clerical Synod met at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on 14th September, 1869, to consult on the representation of the clergy and laity. A meeting of laymen was subsequently held in Dublin, at which it was resolved that "the clerical and lay representatives should sit and discuss all questions together in the General Synod of the Church, with the right to vote by orders, if demanded by three of either order present at the meeting." A resolution was also carried affirming the expediency of fixing the number of lay representatives in the General Synod, in the proportion of two to one of the clergy. On the second day of the meeting it was resolved, "that the dioceses should be divided into three groups, and allotted a representation as follows:—Down, 71; Armagh, 72; Dublin, 59; Derry, 36; Kilmore, 34; Cork, 38; Ossory, 36; Tuam, 19; Meath, 23; Killaloe, 19; Limerick, 19; Cashel, 20.—total, 446." The Representative Body is composed of three classes—the ex-officio, the elected, and the co-opted members: the first being the archbishops and bishops for the time being; the second, clerical and lay representatives, elected by dioceses; and the third, "persons equal in number to the dioceses, to be elected by the ex-officio and elected members." The co-opted members must, however, be specially approved of by the General Synod. It was also resolved that "no question should be decided except by a majority of the bishops present, and a majority of the clerical and lay representatives present, whether voting conjointly or separately, provided always, that when any motion has been carried by a majority of each of the other orders present, and voting, it shall pass, unless seven at least of the existing bishops be present, and shall concur in a dissentient The mode of election of bishops and ministers was decided by this meeting of general convention. Claims numbering above 8,000 were received from archbishops, bishops, lay patrons, incumbents, permanent curates, temporary curates, vicars-general, diocesan registrars, and schoolmasters, officers of cathedral corporations, parish clerks, sextons, organists, choirmen, &c. The amount of commutation money paid (including bonus, where payable), in respect of claims investigated up to February, 1873, is as follows :--

Archbishops, Bishops, and Incumbents,	613,821	7	5 5
Total,	£8,259,673	19	9

In 1861 the number of benefices with incumbents in the United Dioceses of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross were 170, with a total tithe rent-charge of £54,538, and a church population of 43,228. In 1874 the number of parishes in the diocese were 162, with 162 rectors and 27 curates, and a church population of 40,331.

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland.—The Roman Catholic hierarchy consists of four archbishops and twenty-four bishops. The bishops are nominated by the Pope, generally out of a list of three names submitted to him by the parish priests and chapter of the vacant diocese, and reported on by the archbishop and bishops of the province. In case of expected incapacity from age or infirmity, the bishop names a coadjutor, who is usually confirmed by the Pope, with the right of succession. In many of the dioceses a chapter and cathedral corps have been revived, the Dean being appointed by the cardinal The diocesan dignitaries are the vicars-general, of whom there are protector at Rome. one, two, or three, according to the extent of the diocese, who have special disciplinary and other powers; vicars-forane, whose functions are more restricted; the archdeacon, and the parish priests or incumbents. All of these, as well as the curates, are appointed The episcopal emoluments arise from the mensal parish, or two, the by the bishop. incumbency of which is retained by the bishop, from marriage licenses, and from the cathedraticum—an annual sum, varying from £2 to £10, paid by each incumbent in the diocese. The incomes of parish priests arise from fees on marriages, baptisms, and deaths, or Easter and Christmas dues, and from incidental voluntary contributions. All the places of public worship are built by subscription, legacies, and collections. Communities of priests, of various religious orders and rules, called Regulars, minister in their own churches, and, though without parochial jurisdiction, greatly aid the secular clergy. There are numerous monasteries and convents; the latter are supported partly by sums, usually from £300 to £500, paid by those who take vows in them, and partly by fees paid for the education of children. Various communities of monks and nuns also devote themselves to the gratuitous education of the children of the poor. There are three Roman Catholic dioceses in the county Cork. The Diocese of Cork includes Cork and part of Kerry: the Diocese in the county Cork. The Diocese of Cork includes Cork and part of Kerry; the Diocese of Cloyne includes a large portion of the county Cork; and the Diocese of Ross includes a portion of county Cork. The Diocese of Cork comprises bishop, thirty-one parish priests, two administrators, seventy-four curates and chaplains, thirty-four in convents, seventy churches, seven convents, thirteen nunneries, two monasteries, three Christian Brothers' schools, three Presentation Monks' schools, three Presentation Nuns' schools, five Sisters of Mercy schools, and one Sisters of Charity school; with a church population in 1861 of 206,918, in 1871 of 201,442. The Diocese of Cloyne—bishop, forty-five parish priests, two administrators, eighty-two curates, four in college, 133 secular clergy; 103 parochial and district churches, twelve convents, 205 members in community, seven Christian Brothers' establishments; this diocese is 68 miles long by 29 miles wide, and with a church popula-tion in 1861 of 202,294, in 1871 of 183,943. The Diocese of Ross is very small and poor, and consists of bishop, nine parish priests, two administrators, fourteen curates—total 26; twenty-two parochial and district churches, two convents, forty-eight members in community; with a church population in 1861 of 64,540, in 1871 of 61,491.

Religious Orders in the County .-

Orders of Regular Clergy—St. Augustine, St. Dominic, St. Francis, and Congregation of the Mission of St. Vincent, at Cork; Capuchin Community, at Cork and Rochestown; Carmelites, at Kinsale; Order of Charity, at St. Patrick's Reformatory, Upton. Christian Brothers-Cork, Charleville, Doneraile, Fermoy, Mallow, Midleton, Mitchelstown, and Youghal. This order has three schools at Cork, and one each at the other mentioned piaces, educating (without State aid) about 8000 boys.

Presentation Brothers. This order has three schools at Cork, at which about 2000 boys receive education.

Loretto Convents-Fermoy and Youghal.

Sisters of Mercy of the Sacred Heart-Clonakilty.

Sisters of Mercy of the Immaculate Conception-Skibbereen.

There are twenty-four schools for the poor in the county under the care of the ladies of the above convents, at which 9500 girls and about 600 young boys receive education. Twenty of these schools have State aid.

Presbyterian Church.—The Presbyterians, who are found chiefly in Ulster, are formed into congregations, each of whom is under the ecclesiastical government of a court called a session, consisting of the minister and elders of the congregation. An indefinite number of the ministers of these congregations, with a lay elder for each, constitutes a Presbytery. which has the charge of the congregations represented in it. Delegates from each of these Presbyteries, consisting of all the ministers, with a lay elder for each, constitute the General Assembly, which is presided over by a Moderator, chosen annually, and regulates the Ecclesiastical concerns of the Body. The ministers are supported by voluntary contributions, the rents of seats, and the proceeds of the commutation of the annual Parliamentary grant of about £40,500, called the Regium Donum, or Royal Gift (first granted in 1672 by Charles II.), made by the Church Temporalities Commissioners, under the Act of 1869. There are three non-subscribing Presbyterian Bodies in Ireland—the Remonstrant Synod of Ulster, United Presbytery or Synod of Munster, and the Presbytery of Antrim; and the Reformed Presbyterian Synod of Ireland is unconnected with the General Assembly. The number of Presbyterians in the county Cork in 1861 was 1999, in 1871, 2244.

Methodisl Church and other Religious Bodies in County Cork.—The Methodist Body was founded in 1739 by the Rev. John Wesley. The ministers are itinerant, three years being the longest period they can remain in one place. Two are generally appointed to a circuit, which comprises several congregations; and they are assisted by lay preachers, leaders, and prayer leaders. Out of these is formed the leader's meeting, at which the ministers attend, one of them called the Superintendent presiding; and this Board, which meets weekly, manages the affairs of the circuit. A number of circuits form a district. The Conterence, composed exclusively of ministers, meet annually, and is the supreme court, but all financial matters are arranged by committees, one-half of each being laymen. The Wesleyan Body in the United Kingdom forms one connection, the President of the British Conference being also President of the Irish one. The number of Methodists in the county in 1861 was 2653, in 1871, 2946.* Independents, next to the Wesleyan Methodists, are the largest dissenting body in the United Kingdom. In 1730, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Independents were united under the name of the Three Denominations, which held Conferences, ultimately disturbed by the withdrawal of the Presbyterians. This body has one place of worship only in the city of Cork. Baptists.—There are supposed to be $8,500,000 Baptists in English speaking communities, and in England and Wales the ministers number 2,000. Baptists are distinguished by holding that baptism is to be administered to those who are capable of exercising faith, and by immersion only, and they are divided amongst themselves regarding communion. There is a Baptist church at Cork city, and missions in Bandon, Blarney, Queenstown, Youghal, and Mallow. Society of Friends.—These number 17,000 members in the United Kingdom, and have places of worship at Cork, Youghal, &c.†

Colleges and Schools.

Queen's College.—Under 8 & 9 Vic., c. 66 (1845), for establishing new Colleges in Ireland, a charter was granted in 1849 for establishing three colleges, called Queen's College, Cork; Queen's College, Belfast; and Queen's College, Galway; and statutes issued for their government. New charters, amending the former ones, passed the great seal in 1863. The corporale body of each college consists of the President and Professors, the general government and administration being vested in a council, consisting of the President and six members of the council elected by the Professors from amongst themselves. The members of the council hold office for three years, the two senior in each year retiring. The duties of the Council are to make regulations for the government of the College in cases not provided for by the statutes; to prescribe the course of instruction to be given; to provide for the maintenance of discipline and good conduct among the students both without and within the College precincts; and to exercise a general supervision and control over the income and expenditure of the College. An appeal is given from decisions of the council to the visitors. The visitors are appointed by the crown. They are empowered to hold extraordinary visitations at any time, upon giving three weeks' notice to the President, and are required to hold their ordinary visitations at intervals of three years.

Those in this County are as follows: -Bandon, Kinsale (founded 1753), Youghal Grammar School (1613), and Midleton College (1696). Students from the Midleton school are entitled to two exhibitions, after examinination, at Trinity College, Dublin; one of £30 and one of £20 per annum.

National Schools.—In 1831, grants of public money were made for the education of the poor, and entrusted, under the Lord Lieutenant, to the Commissioners of National In 1845, the Commissioners were incorporated, under the title of "The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland," and adequate powers conferred on them. The principles on which they act are: that the schools shall be open to Christians of all sects; that no pupil shall be required to attend any religious exercise, or to receive any religious instruction, which the parents or guardians do not approve of; and that sufficient opportunity shall be given to the pupils of each religious persuasion to receive separately, at appointed times, such religious instruction as their parents or guardians think proper.

PARISHES AND BENEFICES.

The Civil and Ecclesiastical Parishes in the county are not conferminous: the number of civil parishes is 243, amalgamated into 99 Irish Episcopahan and 95 Roman Catholic benefices or parishes.

The statistics adopted are those of the Census Returns of 1871, with the religious profession of persons five years of age and upwards.

POOR LAW UNIONS,

(OR SUPERINTENDENT REGISTRARS' DISTRICTS.)

Poor Law Unions wholly within the county—Bandon, Bantry, Castletown, Clonakilty, Cork, Dunmanway, Fermoy, Kinsale, Macroom, Mallow, Midleton, Millstreet, Skibbereen, and Schull; partly within the county—Kanturk, Kilmallock, and Mitchelstown (the remainders of which three unions are in the Co. Limerick), and Lismore and Youghal (the remainders of which are in the Co. Waterford).

Under Acts 26 & 27 Vic., caps 11 and 90 (1863) the Clerks of the Poor Law Unions are appointed Superintendent Registrars of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

Guardians of the Poor are elected for each Union on the 25th of March in each year, and those previously in office, not re-elected, retire from office. Those elected for 1875-6, together with the Ex-Officio Guardians, Sanitary and Medical Officers, and other Poor Law Officials, will be found in the latter part of this work.

REGISTRARS' DISTRICTS.

[DISPENSARY DISTRICTS.]

For the purposes of Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, Poor Law Unions are termed "Superintendent Registrars' Districts." and each Union or Superintendent Registrar's District is divided into Dispensary Districts for the Medical Relief of the Poor under the Poor Law Acts. The Registrar's District, save in a few instances, is identical with the Dispensary District. Each Dispensary District is composed of a certain number of Poor Law Electoral Divisions.

Table No. 7 (p. 6) shows the number of Births, Deaths, and Marriages Registered in each of the Poor Law Unions from 1864 to 1871.

Births-26 Vic., cap. 11.

Notice of the Birth of every child must be given to the Registrar of the District in which the child was born within Twenty-one days after the Birth. Penalty for neglect, Twenty Shitlings.

Deaths-26 Vic. cap. 11.

Notice of the Death of any person must be given to the Registrar of the District in which the Death occurred within Seven days after the Death. Penalty for neglect, Twenty Shillings.

Penalty for refusing to give information to the Registrar concerning Births and Deaths, when required to do so, Forty Shillings.

Marriages-26 and 27 Vic., cap. 90.

Every Marriage celebrated by the Roman Catholic Clergy must be Registered in the District in which the Marriage was Solemnised within Three days after the celebration Penalty on the Husband for neglect, Ten Pounds.

Civil Bills should be given to the process servers within a reasonable time before the last day for service at each Sessions, otherwise they will not be held accountable for the service. Process servers are allowed to serve processes in any part of the division to which they are appointed; and any complaints against them on account of unserved processes will be heard immediately before the commencement of civil business.

Richard Ówens

Millstreet Patrick Riordan

Every process server is r-quited to enter in his book the day on which each process is delivered to him for service, and the manner, time and place, and the person on whom it was served, and the age, when it is necessary, of such person should be stated to be above the age of sixteen, and all special or peculiar circumstances (if any) connected with such service, and if not served, the cause of non service.

Pro ess servers are strictly forbidden to interfere in the preparation, filling, or altering of processes, or to interfere in any manner with a party in the employment of an attorney, or to place themselves in the predicament of being called as witnesses in a civil bill suit.

ADRIGOLE.

Sub post-office, on the north side of Bantry bay; 80 miles from Cork, 42 from Dunmanway, 24 from Bantry (head office), and 9 from Castletownbere. The greater portion of this district is wild and mountainous: the loftiest mountain is Hungry hill, 2160 feet above the level of the sea, and remarkable for its singular and picturesque waterfall. The water cascades from a lake at the top of this rocky and almost perpendicular mountain; gathering force as it goes, it breaks into a tremendous cataract of 800 feet, expanding as it falls, and flinging a spray around it that seems to cover with a thick mist a third part of Four miles to the east is the large Sugar-Loaf, 1112 feet above the level of the sea; and of the other mountains in this neighbourhood, the principal are the Knocknafouka, the Ghoul, and the Esk. Along their summit runs the boundary line between cos. Cork and Kerry. Iron and copper ore abound, though neither are at present worked. Iron ore was formerly very extensively procured, and considerable remains still exist of smelting works. The Protestant church is a small edifice, with low square tower; the R. C. church is at Massmount, near Adrigole.

AGHADOWN and CHURCH CROSS.

Sub post-office, on Roaring-water bay, opposite Schull; 61 miles from Cork, 23 from Dunmanway, and 7 from Skibbereen (head office). Roaring-water bay is broad and spacious, about three miles in length, with from eight to two fathoms of water. Half-way up the bay are Castle and Horse islands; on the latter is a copper mine; and traversing the mouth of the harbour are several smaller islands. In the demesne of Whitehall are the remains of Rincolisky castle, a seat of the Coppingers; at the head of the bay are the ruins of Kilcoe, a castle of the Mac Carthys, lords of Clan-Dermott; and on the grounds of Ladyview are some picturesque remains of an ecclesiastical edifice, called by the people of the neighbourhood the Abbey of Our Lady. The Protestant church, on the margin of the river Hen, is a small neat edifice; and the R. C. church, a large and handsome building, occupies an elevated site near Currabeg. The surface is very uneven, and in some parts rocky and unproductive, and of bog there is a considerable extent. Several good roads intersect the parish.

Postmaster-Daniel Twomey-

ALLIHIES.

Allihies, or Cluin, is a sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, overlooking Bally-donegan bay. This primitive, wild, and highly picturesque district is 101 miles from Cork, 62 miles from Dunmanway, 45½ from Bantry (the head office), and 10½ from Castletownbere. It is a rising place, situated at the western extremity of the peninsula separating Bantry bay from the Kenmare river, depending chiefly for its support on the Berehaven mine. This mine was discovered in 1812, and is one of the richest in Ireland, yielding over 4000 tons of copper ore annually. There is a fishery here, which would be a prolific source of wealth, if properly worked, the neighbouring shores literally swarming with fish. Coals are unloaded, and copper ore shipped, at a jetty on the Allihies side of Ballydonegan bay. Hence is a prospect of the "Skelligs" and the Durseys.

BALLINADÉE.

Sub post office on the Bandon river; 21 miles from Cork, 7 from Bandon (the head office), 9 from Kinsale, and 5 from Innishannon. From Innishannon to Kinsale the Bandon river runs through a rich loamy soil, its banks here and there clothed with luxuriant foliage. Here also are the ruins of several old castles, the principal of which are Kilgobbin and Carriganass, fortresses of the MacCarthy-Reaghs. The surrounding scenery is picturesque and interesting, especially in the neighbourhood of Kilgobbin castle, and the glen near the village of Ballinadee. The land is generally good, and nearly all under tillage. Protestant and R.C. churches.

BALLINAMONA.

Sub post office, 16½ from Cork, and 4½ miles from Mallow (the head office). By an inquisition taken at Cork in 1854, Ballinamona, now the name of a few houses near the church, was found to be an ancient corporation. It was destroyed in the reign of Edward IV., by Morrogh O'Brien, who ruined several walled towns in Munster, amongst them Mourne and Buttevant in this county. Mourneabbey, a mile nearer Cork on the old coach road—a preceptory, first of knights templars, who were suppressed in Ireland in 1307, and afterwards of the knight hospitallers—gives the name to the parish. At Quartertown, on the banks of the Clyda, are extensive flour mills; on the opposite banks of the river is Castlemore, an ancient fortress of the Barretts. Protestant church at Ballinamona, R. C. churches at Ballinamona and Burnfort. Ballyknockane is memorable as the scene of the Fenian rising in the south, on the 5th March, 1867.

Four trains a day to and from Ballincollig (Cork and Macroom Ry); fares, single 1/4, 1/, 7d, return 2/-, 1/6, 1/-. Posting cars in the village. Here are extensive gunpowder mills and artillery barracks. It is situated on the south banks of the Lee, over which is a stone bridge connecting it with the parish of Inniscarra, and on the line of road through Magourney to Macroom. About a mile from the town stands Barrett's castle of Ballincollig, said to have been built in the reign of Edward III. The ruins stand on an isolated limestone rock in the midst of a plain, and consist of a square keep, about forty feet in height, and enclosed bawn. This castle was garrisoned both by Cromwell and James II.; it now belongs to William Wise. D.L, J.P. The land in the district is of excellent quality: it forms part of the limestone district that extends from near the source of the Bride, along its southern banks, across the vale to the west of the city of Cork, and passing through its southern suburbs, terminates at Blackrock. Protestant church of parish at Carrigrohane; R. C. church at Ballincollig.

BALLINSPITTLE.

Sub post-office, 25 miles from Cork, and 5 from Kinsale (head office). This postal district includes Ballinspittle and the promontory called the "Old Head" of Kinsale anciently called Duncearma, and said to have been an old seat of the Irish kings. On this promontory is a lighthouse, the lanthorn of which has an elevation of 294 feet above the level of the sea; the ruins of the castle f Ringrone, built by Miles de Courcy, which give the title of baron to Lord Kingsale; and ruins known as the church of Courtmather. The latter building is oblong, measuring about 35 feet by 20; it is built of unhewn stone, and mortar made from burned shells. It was entered by a low narrow door in the western gable, and lighted by slits like those in the staircase of an old castle, two of which remain. The eastern gable is surmounted by a rudely constructed circular arch. The Old Head has been tunnelled through by the waves in one place, called Holeopen bay, so that there is a stupendous arch, under which a small boat may pass from one bay to the other. At Ballinspittle are the ruins of old Coolmaine castle, a fortress of the Mac Carthy Reaghs: Coolmaine castle, the marine residence of Hon. H. B. Bernard, is a modern castellated mansion.

Garrettstown lands and strand are so named from the family of the Cores, many of whom were successively named Garrett, who were before the rebellion of 1641 proprietors of this place. This demesne consists of a handsome mansion, partly built of hewn stone, and pleasantly situated on a rising ground commanding a fine prospect of the ocean and surrounding country; with a large walled-in park, a deep well-wooded glen, and extensive gardens. The land is light, but fertile, and in tolerably good cultivation; there is a quarry near the Old Head, producing excellent flags.

-BALLYCLOUGH.

Sub post-office, on the Blackwater; 26 miles from Cork, and 5 from Mallow (hea.' office), a station on the Great Southern and Western Railway. One of the finest demesnes on the Blackwater is Longueville, the seat of Richard Longfield, D.L., J.P. Opposite Longueville, at the other side of the river, stands the old ivy-clad and stately ruins of Dromineen castle, built by the O'Callaghans, and now the property of J. A. Newman, J.P. In the Williamite wars the English kept a garrison in this castle for a considerable time. The castle of Ballyclough, now the property of Charles P. Coote, D.L., J.P., was built by a family of the Barrys, that went by the name of Mac Roberts or Mac Robert Barry. Near the village is Blossomfort, the demesne of Richard Smith, J.P. Protestant and R. C. churches. This district rests partly on the limestone and on the shale, and the calcareous portions are tolerably fertile. The portions resting on the shale are stiff and retentive of moisture, and need drainage; when drained, limed, and well tilled, these clays give excellent crops of wheat and clover. There was a spa in this town of good repute, but it is now overflown by an adjacent brook.

BALLYCOTTON.

Sub post office, 24 miles from Cork, 11 from Midleton (Cork and Youghal Ry), head office, and 7 from Cloyne, a money order and telegraph office. Cars ply between Aghada pier and Ballycotton, to meet the river steamers. Ballycotton is a good fishing village, much resorted to in summer by sea bathers. The strand is about 4 miles long; near the eastern point is Ballycrenane castle, built by the Carews; at the western extremity Ballycotton island. This island is crowned by a lighthouse, and in the proper breeding season is covered with sea-fowl. The view seaward from the cliffs is very extensive and pleasing. The sea water is particularly beneficial, as its strength is not lessened by any admixture of fresh water—no river flowing into the bay. In Ballycotton bay and coast are taken several excellent kinds of fish, and there is a salmon fishery, owned by John Litton, J.P.; the adjacent land produces large crops of wheat and barley, and early crops of garden stuff.

BALLYFEARD.

Sub post office, 12 from Cork, and 8 miles from Kinsale (head office). Carrigaline is the nearest money-order and telegraph office. In the parish of Tracton there was an abbey of Cistercian monks, founded by the Mac Carthys in 1224. This foundation was confirmed by Edward III, and the abbots of it formerly sat in Parliament. The monks, who came from Alba Lauda, in Wales, called the abbey De Alba Tractu. Great multi-tudes resorted here on every Holy Thursday, as it was reported the monks were in possession of a portion of the true cross. On this part of the coast are several caves made by the working of the sea, in which seals breed. Protestant and Roman Catholic churches. The land is, in general, very good, and principally under tillage.

BALLYHOOLY.

Sub-office, on the Blackwater river, at which is a station of the Fermoy and Lismore branch of the G. S. and W. Ry.; two trains daily—single 5/3, 4/2, 2/-; return 8/6, 7/-, 3/6; 33 miles from Cork, 13 from Mallow (head office), and 4 from Castletownroche, a money-order and telegraph office. Ballyhooly is called in the Book of Lismore Ath-Ubhla (the Irish Ubhla signifying apple trees, or place of apples); Joyce gives the meaning as "The town of the Appleford." This district extends on both sides of the Blackwater; the land on the south side of the river is chiefly mountain pasture, forming part of the Nagle mountains, and based on a substratum of brown stone; that on the north side has Listowel, beautifully situated along the banks of the Blackwater, and commanding an interesting view of the valley of the river, and the ruins of the ancient castle of Ballyhooly, which with the present church, erected in 1774, and the ruins of the former, present a highly picturesque and interesting group. Ballyhooly castle was formerly one of the principal fortresses of the Roches. About a mile above Convamore the Awbeg (the Mulla of Panney At Spenser) meets the Blackwater, and then passes beneath the rocky cliffs of Renny. At Renny is a fine old tree called "Spenser's oak." There is also a handsome Gothic R. C. church at Ballyhooly, lately built, in early English style.

BALLYNEEN or BALLINEEN.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 30 miles from Cork and 10 from Bandon (head office). Ballineen, at which is a station of the West Cork Ry, is a healthy and pretty little town, overhanging the Bandon river, in the parish of Ballymoney. It consists of one street running east and west, and of another street starting from its centre, and running due south to the Bandon river. It contains a market-house, court-house, one or two good inns, a Wesleyan chapel, a new gothic Protestant church, etc.; the R. C. church of the district lies between Ballineen and Enniskeane. A farmers' club, presided over by the Earl of Bandon, hold their meetings here on monthly fair days. Three trains daily between this and Cork: fares—single, 5/9, 4/3, 2/8; return, 8/9, 7/-, 4/5

BALLYVOURNEY.

Sub post-office to Cork, served from Macroom; 36 miles north-west of Cork, and 10 from Macroom. Much of the land in this district is mountainous, but a considerable portion has been brought into cultivation. St. Abban, who lived to a very advanced age, and died in 650, founded a nunnery at this place, which he gave to St. Gobnata. The ruins of the conventual church are very extensive and interesting, and in one of the walls is a head carved in stone, regarded with much veneration; adjacent is a well dedicated to St. Gobnata, much frequented by devotees. From the ruins is a fine view of the Kerry mountains, which, like an immense wall, are ranged several miles from north to south, and divide both counties: they are mostly rude naked rocks, of a prodigious height. In the vicinity of Ballyvourney is a circular stone fort, with subterranean galleries. The Prot. church is a small neat edifice, the R. C. church a plain and spacious building.

BALTIMORE.

Sub post-office, 62 miles from Cork, 24 from Dunmanway, and 7½ from Skibbereen (head office). It is supposed to have been a principal seat of Druidical worship—Beal-ti-mor signifying "The Great Habitation of Beal." Baltimore, situated on the eastern side of an harbour of the same name, belonged originally to the O'Driscolls, who, before the English invasion, possessed the whole of Carbery. There was a colony of English Protestants settled here by Sir Thomas Crooke, who leased the place from Sir Fineen O'Driscoll, and through whose interest the town was incorporated in 1613; it had the privilege of sending two members to the Irish parliament up to the Union. In 1631, two Algerine pirates entered the harbour, plundered the place, and carried off about one hundred of the inhabitants captives to Algiers, from which accident it never recovered. Here and at Ardagh are ruins of castles of the O'Driscolls. The extensive and picturesque ruins of Baltimore castle still remain, but of Ardagh castle only a small fragment exists. The surface is hilly, and in some places rise to a considerable elevation. The land is rocky; good freestone is found near the shores of the inner harbour, and slate exists in several places. Many large and handsome houses have been recently erected in the neighbourhood; there is a handsome Protestant parish church, R. C. church at Rath, coastguard station, constabulary barracks, hotel, posting cars, a small pier, etc.

BANDON BOROUGH.

Bandon is a parliamentary borough, market, and head post-town, on the Bandon river—from which it derives its name—20 miles from Cork, by rail. This formed a part of the grant of forfeited estates made to Phane Beecher, in Elizabeth's reign. The patent, which is dated September the 30th, 1588, granted to "Phane Beecher, of London, the castle of O'Mahony (alias Mahoun's castle), and the moiety of all the lands and hereditaments therein—14000 acres—at the yearly rent of £66 13s. 4d." These grants were subsequently purchased by the first Earl of Cork, and Francis Bernard—ancestor of the Earls of Bandon. The town was incorporated 1613. It contains two Protestant and two R. C. churches, a Presbyterian and two Methodist chapels, a convent, endowed superior school, union workhouse, military barracks, court house, bridewell, etc. Christ church, Kilbrogan, was built in 1610, on the site of a Danish fort, and enlarged by the Earl of Cork in 1625; and was the first edifice ever raised in Ireland for Protestant worship. The building is of the early English style of the 13th century, and consists of a nave, chancel, and two transepts. Ballymodan church (dedicated to St. Peter) was built 1849, on the site of the old church erected in 1614. It is of the Decorated style of Gothic architecture, and consists of a nave, two aisles, two transepts, and a chancel. The interior is spacious and of a commanding character. In this church is a fine old monument to the memory of Francis Bernard, justice of the Court of Common Pleas, who died in 1731, and other members of the Bernard family. The present Roman Catholic church of Kilbrogan occupies the site of the ancient church of St. Michael; and the new Catholic church on north side of the river is a large and handsome Gothic structure.

About a mile to the south-west of the town is Castle-Bernard, the splendid mansion and noble park of the Earls of Bandon. The more modern residence, built by Judge Bernard, is incorporated with the old fortalice of Castle-Mahon, built in the reign of The Bandon river rises in Mount Owen, parish of Fanlobbus. In its course King John. to Bandon, the river passes by Dunmanway-Kilcaskan demesne-Manch-Carrigmore-Bailineen-Enniskeane-Palace Anne-Carhue-in its course receiving the waters of the Kaal and Duvawain. From Carhue to the town it flows through a wide valley of the Castle-Bernard demesne-under the shadow of oak trees "of wonderful length," herds of deer here and there dotting its banks. Passing Bandon, it winds through a richly-wooded country, rife with historic recollections, by Innishannon-Ballinadee, to Kinsale harbour, receiving the Bridewell and Mugin, two other considerable rivers. A limited trade is carried on by means of this river, which is navigable for barges to Innishannon. The land is accounted tolerably fertile and good, and in the pastures of this locality are to be found some of the best bred cattle in Ireland.

The West Cork Railway is open to Dunmanway, a distance of 17 miles. together with the Cork and Kinsale Junction, and the Cork and Macroom Railway, runs into the Cork and Bandon Line, the terminus of which is in the centre of the town. Coaches and cars between the Bandon terminus and Bantry, Clonakilty, Courtmacsherry, Kilbrittain, Skibbereen, and Timoleague.

The borough of Bandon returns one member to Parliament, and the lighting, cleansing, and watching are vested in eighteen commissioners, under 9th Geo. IV. c. 82. and Petty Sessions are held here.

BANTEER.

Sub post-office to Mallow, and a station on the Tralee and Killarney branch of the Great Southern and Western Ry.; 36 miles from Cork, and 3 from Kanturk, a money order and telegraph office. Banteer is in the parish of Clonmeen, on the south side of the Blackwater. At Clonmeen was anciently a monastery of the Austin friars, founded by the O'Callaghans; here also are the remains of the castle of Clonmeen, ruined in the wars of 1641, and a range of mountains, called St. Hillary's, from whence several rapid rivulets fall into the Blackwater. This district was formerly a vast tract of wood—since consumed in smelting iron.

BANTRY.

Head postal, money-order, and telegraph office, 56 miles from Cork, and 18 from Dunmanway, a station on the West Cork Railway. This town is seated at the head of the far-famed bay of Bantry. The bay is 26 miles long, from three to five miles broad, with 24 to 40 fathoms of water in the roadstead, and is perhaps unsurpassed by any harbour in the world for natural beauties and natural advantages. It is memorable in history as having been twice entered by a French force for the invasion of Ireland-the first in 1689, in aid of James II, the next in 1796, under Hoche and Wolfe Tone. On the latter occasion Richard White was raised to the peerage of Ireland, as Baron of Bantry, in appreciation of the valuable services which he rendered in opposing the landing of the invaders. There are not many islands in this vast expanse of water, the principal being Bear and Whiddy Islands. Whiddy lies opposite the town, and Bear near the entrance Near Whiddy are some small islands, viz. :- Horse, Hog, Coney, and Chapel. There are few strands around the bay, the coast being all high stupendous rocks. O'Sullivans had formerly several good seats here. The old castle of Carriganass, which belonged to the O'Sullivans, is built on the Ouvane river, seven miles from Bantry, on the road to Inchigeela. It was an high structure, with a square court, and flanked with four round towers. Near Bantry stood a Franciscan abbey, now entirely demolished, founded 1320, by Dermot O'Sullivan. Part of the district between Inchigeela and Bantry is a savage and almost trackless waste. All the north side of the bay is one continued chain of lofty mountains, dividing the counties of Cork and Kerry, among which, it is said, there is no fewer than 365 lakes; and a short distance from the town is the fantastic "Fall of Dunnamark"—it was in this vicinity, according to one of the fanciful traditions of Keating, that human foot first trod upon Irish ground. About the town of Bantry are some well cultivated grounds.

BEAR ISLAND.

Sub post office, 90 miles from Cork, 34 from Bantry (head office), and 1½ from Castletownbere. This island is near the mouth of Bantry bay; and, lying near the western shore, opposite Castletownbere, forms the capacious and sheltered harbour of Berehaven, and is of great use in protecting this noble bay from the fury of the south-west winds. Its surface is rocky and coarse, its length about six miles, and its breadth about one and a-half, with a population of 1225. The fortifications consist of three batteries, redoubt, four martello towers, etc. These are some great sea caves, worked out by the sea, on the outer side of this island. The trap rocks of Bere island and the adjoining mainland are of great variety and interest. There are both contemporaneous beds and intrusive dykes of both greenstone and felstone ash, indicating volcanic activity in this immediate vicinity at two different geological periods. Specular iron ore is found on the island. The temperature of those parts of the island having a southern aspect is considerably higher than that of the mainland, and as a consequence the Bear island farmers supply the market of Castletown with potatoes a month earlier than their neighbours of the mainland. The inhabitants are remarkable for their industry, sobriety, love of peace, and deep religious feelings. It is very rare to see a Bere island man bringing a case into court, all differences being settled by the priest, who up to a very recent period resided on the island. The island contains a Roman Catholic church, a priest's residence, and three National schools.

BELGOOLY.

Sub post office, near Oysterhaven, 12 miles from Cork, and 3 from Kinsale (head office). It was here the Irish had their camp for the first years of the wars of 1641. The newly established South of Ireland and County Cork Distillery Company, Limited, has considerably improved this locality, the company having expended about £25,000 on their premises at Belgooly. When in full operation, this distillery will give employment to a large number of persons, in anticipation of which several new houses are in course of erection. In consequence of the increased facilities for stock-feeding and dairy-farming, land is also changing hands at increased rents.

BLACKROCK (part of).

(For remainder of Blackrock see Suburban Directory City of Cork)

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, two and a-half miles from Cork (head office). This is a pleasant suburb, in the civil parish of St. Finbar's, about five minutes by rail from Cork—trains every hour (C. B. & P. Ry.); fares, single 4d., 3d., 2d., return 6d., 4d., 3d. Blackrock castle, on the promontory of Ringmahon, was originally built by Lord Mountjoy, in the reign of James I. (1604); the present little structure was erected by the corporation for about £1000, and is now in the possession of the Harbour Board. In it the mayors of Cork formerly held an admiralty court—being, by several charters, appointed admirals of the harbour—a custom which has been long superseded by the ceremony of "throwing the dart" of jurisdiction outside the harbour. There are Protestant and Roman Catholic places of worship.

The Ursuline Convent of Blackrock, one of the first training establishments for young ladies in Ireland, is a noble mansion, with grounds of about forty acres. It contains over fifty nuns, some of whom superintend the education of about 70 boarders—(see adot. next page.) They also take charge of an adjoining National School (No. 5940) of about 100 girls, in connexion with which is an Industrial Crochet School. The manufacture of the crochet work in the latter school, under the kind superintendence of the sisterhood, enables a number of grown girls to earn a substantial livelihood. Its excellence and superiority of finish—some having the appearance of the most delicate lacework—can be testified to from personal inspection; and it is a matter of surprise the demand is not more extended at home, as it realizes a ready sale in France, England, and elsewhere.

Ursuline order was founded by Miss Nano Nagle, in the year 1771, in the city of Cork, and was transferred in 1825 to Blackrock.

At Rochelle, Blackrock road, is also a very superior Protestant seminary for young ladies, with an average of 60 boarders. The Protestant church of St. Michael's, Blackrock was formerly a chapel-of-ease to the cathedral, but the Diocesan Council have recently constituted it a separate parish, under the title of St. Michael's. This church is adorned with one of the most beautiful productions of Hogan's chisel-an elaborately finished, group, representing the Resurrection, to the memory of W. Beamish, of Beaumont.

In an ornamental planted enclosure on the Blackrock road, about two milés from Cork, is a handsome monument erected by private friends to the memory of the late Alexander McCarthy, M.P. for County Cork in 1859, to whom a great portion of the neighbouring property belonged.

BLARNEY.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 5 miles from Cork (head office). Blarney is a place of very ancient fame. It was a seat of the great McCarthy family, and a place of Druidical worship. Here are the beautiful grounds and romantic ruins of Blarney castle, a stronghold of the Earls of Clancarthy, who forfeited a great estate in this county, including the castles of Kilcrea and Macroom, for their adherence to James II. In Queen Elizabeth's time it was reckoned one of the strongest fortresses in Munster, and consisted of four large piles joined in one. The castle was erected about the middle of the fifteenth century, by Cormac McCarthy, and is now the property of Sir George Colthurst, bart., "no has recently erected a handsome mansion adjoining. In the grounds are several Druidical monuments, and the neighbourhood has many other remains of antiquarian interest, including some circular raths and square entrenchments, with the usual subterranean cells. Blarney was at one time the seat of several manufactories, which gave a vast amount of employment in the manufacture of articles of chamois and buckskin leather for gloves and clothing, cotton printing, paper making, etc. There was also a large factory for flax spinning, under the protection of the Linen Board of Ireland, which was subsequently, in 1825, turned into a woollen and worsted mill. This woollen mill, the property of Messrs. Martin Mahony Bros, was totally destroyed by fire in December, 1869, and was immediately re-erected in the modern style of factory buildings, and now gives employment to 260 operatives in the manufacture of the celebrated Blarney tweeds. The machinery is driven by two turbines of 105 horse-power, supplemented by a steam engine of 40 horse-power. About a mile and a-half from Blarney castle is the celebrated St. Ann's Hydropathic Establishment (see St. Ann's post-office). There are Protestant and Roman Catholic places of worship; and the Baptist minister of Cork holds services here on the 1st Wednesday in each month. The village of Blarney is about a mile from the railway station (G. S. & W. Ry.)—fares, single 1/2, 1/, 5d., return 2/, 1/7, 9d.

BUTLERSTOWN—(see Courtmacsherry and Timoleague).

Sub post office, in the parish of Lislee, situated on a promontory called "The Seven Heads." between Courtmacsherry bay and Clonakilty bay; 34 miles from Cork, 14 from Bandon (head office), and 4 from Timaleague. This part of the coast consists of stupendous cliffs, with several subterranean caves worked out by the sea, and frequented by sea-fowl, seals, etc. These cliffs are composed of several distinct strata; the fourth from the surface is a soft ferruginous yellow rock, in which masses of iron ore are found, almost pure, and varying in size from 4 ozs. to nearly 1 cwt. There are several ancient circular mounds or raths; that from which the parish is said to derive its name, Lis-ke, is a little to the west of the Protestant parish church, but the more extensive is on a hill about half a mile to the south. On a small peninsula in the bay of Dunworly are the ruins of a castle, and on the cliffs of Seven Heads is an old signal tower. Protestant and R. C. churches, coast-guard station, police barrack, etc.

BUTTEVANT.

Head post, money order, and telegraph office, 27 miles from Cork by rail (G. S. & W. Ry.)—fares, single 5/7, 4/2, 2/4; return 9/6, 7/, 4/. Buttevant was formerly a walled corporate town, governed by a mayor and aldermen, and to judge from its ruins it must have been of considerable importance. Here are the ruins of an ancient abbey, founded by the Barrys in the reign of Edward I. (1251). Within the walls are several tombs of ancient Irish families, as the Barrys, Magners, Fitzgeralds, Prendergasts, Donegans, Meades, Dowlings, Healys, Nagles, Lombards, and Supples. Buttevant abbey must have been a pile of considerable magnitude and grandeur. Close to the entrance was formerly a large heap of skulls and bones—now placed in the crypt of the abbey by the late Canon Buckley—said to be the relics of those who fell at the battle of Knockininoss in 1647, between the Parliamentary forces under Lord Inchiquin and the Irish under Lord Taafe; about halfa-mile distant are the ruins of Ballybeg abbey, also founded by the Barrys. Buttevant and its neighbourhood seems formerly to have been an assemblage of churches and religious houses: in addition to those given above, there are ruins at Kilmaclenine, Lisgriffin, Templeconnell, Ballinguile, etc. Buttevant castle, a fine ivy-clad building on the banks of the Awbeg, was built by the Barrys, and afterwards enlarged by Sir James Anderson; it is now occupied by Mrs. Parsons. Near the castle is a fine flour mill, worked by both water and steam power; this mill is the property of Thomas Walsh, of Mallow, who recently expended about £2,000 in the erection of the steam machinery. This neighbourhood has been rendered classic by the pen of Spenser; at Kilcoleman, near Buttevant, the ruined walls of which still remain, he completed his Faëry Queen. Buttevant is an important barrack station of the Cork or south-western military district. The river Awbeg abounds with white trout. The Protestant church is a handsome structure in the later English style, built in 1826, with a square embattled tower. The R. C. church, erected through the unwearied exertions of the late Very Rev. Canon Buckley, P.P., was commenced in 1831, and is deservedly reckoned one of the handsomest ecclesiastical structures in the south of Ireland.

This district is very fertile, resting as it does principally on the limestone, it is well suited either for tillage or grazing; limestone gravel, which is so efficacious as a top-dressing, is found in the parish of Imphrick, it being almost the only portion of the county where that useful mineral is available. On some of the high-lying districts, on the limestone, water is scarce, and must be dug for; but is always found at a depth of one hundred feet, and in most cases at half that depth. Several splendid specimens of variegated red marble have been raised from quarries in the neighbourhood, and a good description of marble is found in all the mountains of Ballyhoura, north of the town. At Grange a lead ore, with a slight per centage of silver, was discovered by the railway labourers, in a cutting about one and a-half miles of Buttevant; a culm vein has also been discovered in same cutting. Two miles south-west of this town, near Kilmac-lenine, there is a pit of good yellow ochre, which was formerly used for painting. From Kilcoleman bog is obtained a very peculiar kind of peat, called by the peasantry, "moan-ye-nea"; it is found floating on the water, and when fresh it is somewhat like the liver of an animal in consistency and colour; when dried it becomes almost as hard and black as jet, and burns with a beautiful white flame.

CAPE CLEAR and INNISHERKIN ISLANDS. (Post office- Skibbercen.)

Cape Clear, the we'l-I nown landmark to outward and homeward-bound vessels, ' ? miles south-west of Cork, and 16 from Skibbereen, and the most southernmost point is Ireland. The island, the property of Sir Henry Wrixon Becher, Bart, is three miles long by one and a-half in length; and is a parish in itself, containing twelve townlands, sub-divided into about 140 small farms. It is the principal of a large cluster of islands in the Atlantic ocean, lying off the coast of Carbery. The soil is shallow and not very productive; the crops raised are chiefly oats, potatoes, and flax. In the year 1750, The soil is shallow and not there were, according to Smith, about 400 families on the island; the census returns of 1871 give a population of 572 persons, consisting of 125 families, 546 Catholics and 32 Protestants. There is a Catholic chapel, and a National school with about 92 pupils. Protestant service is occasionally performed in the tower of the lighthouse on the south The lanthorn of this lighthouse has an elevation of 480 feet above the side of the island. level of the sea, and in clear weather the light may be distinguished at a distance of 28 nautical miles. About 4 miles west from Cape Clear is Fastnet rock, crowned with a lighthouse, visible 18 miles; this rock is famous for the quantities of ling, haak, etc, taken The island is surrounded by steep and dangerous cliffs, and accessible only by two small harbours, by which it is nearly intersected from east to west. In high winds there is a very heavy sea, consequently there is less intercourse with it than the islands nearer the coast. The men are expert fishermen and excellent pilots. The scenery is extremely wild and romantic: on the south-west point is the remarkable and singularly picturesque ruin of Dunanore, or the Golden fort, formerly a stronghold of the O'Driscolls.

Two miles north-west of Baltimore, between Cape Clear island and the mainland, is the island of Innisherkin. It is about three miles in length by one in breadth, and consists of six townlands of the parish of Tullagh, with a population of 432 persons. island is generally fertile; good freestone is found in several places, and there are valuable slate quarries. The O'Driscolls had formerly castles here—Dunelong and Dunashad which defended the entrance to Baltimore harbour; here also are ruins of an ancient Franciscan abbey founded 1460 by the O'Driscolls. R. C. church at Innisherkin.

CARRIGALINE.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 8 miles from Cork (head office), and 6 from Passage (C. B. & P. Ry.) According to Smith, the first Earl of Cork, out of a pique to the citizens of Cork, intended to build a town at Carrigaline; but the civil war of 1641 ruined This place derives its name from the abrupt rocky cliff near the village, on which are the remains of the ancient and once impregnable castle of Carrigaline, built by Milo de Cogan in the reign of King John, and for nearly two centuries occupied by the Earls of Desmond, by whom it was forfeited in the reign of Elizabeth. grounds of Aghamarta demesne are vestiges of the ancient castle of that name, also a keep of the Desmonds. The appearance of the country is beautifully varied, and the soil is fertile; a considerable part under an improved system of tillage, and the remainder in demesne, meadow, or pasture land. The estuary of the Awenbuny or Carrigaline river is embellished with numerous gentlemen's seats. This river presents the appearance of a miniature Rhine; its banks are clothed from summit to base with magnificent timber, and winding in its course, forms a number of apparently land-locked lakes. In 1589, Sir Francis Drake, with a squadron of five ships, being chased by a Spanish fleet of superior force, moored his vessels safely in a basin under Coolmore, since called Drake's pool, CARRIGROHANE.

Sub post-office, four miles from Cork (head office). The bridge and castle of Carrigrohane, on the river Lee, terminates the liberties of the county of the city of Cork, to the west. The picturesque castle of Carrigrohane, formerly a pile of considerable strength, was founded by the MacCarthies, and came subsequently into the possession of the Barretts, of Ballincollig and elsewhere. Their estates were forfeited in 1641, and the castle dismantled. It afterwards became the residence of Captain Cope, a daring rapparee, who, at the head of a gang of brigands, plundered travellers, and laid the neighbouring country under contribution. A few years ago this ruin was completely restored, and the castle is now inhabited by Captain W. J. Hoare, J.P.

Leemount

CARRIGTOHILL.

Sub post-office, and station on the Cork and Youghal Railway—fares, single 1/8, 1/3, 8d.; return 2/6, 2/-, 1/1,—three trains a day; 9½ miles from Cork (had office). Carrigtohill (or Carrig-toille, "a carved rock,") lies to the north of the Great Island, round which flows a stream of salt water at high water. In the old parish church of Carrigtohill is a monument in Italian marble, erected to the memory of Sir James Cotter, 1666. Sir James lived at Ballinsperrig (now Annsgrove, the property of Francis Wise), and was visited by Queen Anne: a chair is still shewn in the house, used by her Majesty, called "Queen Anne's chair." There is a tradition that James II. also lodged here. Half a-mile to the south of Carrigtohill is the ruin of the castle of Barry's court, which gave title of Baron to the Earls of Barrymore. The castle is a noble ruin, and is now used as a barn and granary. It is a quadrangle structure of the 14th century, about 70 feet high, and has three towers communicating at each story with the principal apartments. The arches of the old castle are beautifully turned. It is said that Barry's court was erected on a more ancient structure belonging to the Lyons or Lehanes of Castlelyons; and also that Giraldus Cambrensis penned a portion of his account of the Irish Norman conquest in this castle. The limestone rock abounds here, and there is a large cavity running under a rock, for a considerable way in the earth.

CASTLEFREKE.

Sub post-office, 39 miles from Cork, 5 miles south-west of Clonakilty, and 14 from Enniskeane, a station on the West Cork Ry. It was formerly called Rath-Barry, from an ancient fortalice of the Barrys which stood here. Almost on every headland on this coast were castles erected by the Irish, seven of which belonged to the sept of O'Cowig, including the castle of Dundeady at Galley head. The promontory of Galley head, like that of Kinsale, stretches itself a good way into the ocean, and is also of a considerable height, and there are several caverns formed at its base by the working of the waves. A handsome lighthouse is in course of erection at Galley head, which will be one of the best under the Board of Trade: its lamp will consist of four lights of different shades, and attached to the tower will be three dwelling houses and five acres of walled-in land.

CASTLELYONS.

Sub post-office, 21 miles from Cork, and 4 from Fermoy (head office). Castlelyons is pleasantly situated on the river Bride, in the midst of a well-watered and rich agricultural district. A Franciscan monastery—the ruins of which still remain—was founded here in 1307, by the Barrys; here are also ruins of two seats of the Barrys—Ballyrobert castle and Castle-Lyons; the latter called Castle-Lehan, from the O'Lehans, an ancient Irish sept that possessed a great part of this country.

CASTLEMARTYR.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 19 miles from Cork (head office), 6 from Ballycotton, and one and a-half from the Mogeely station (Cork and Youghal Ry); trains three times a-day—fares, single 3/4, 2/6, 1/5; return 5/, 3/9, 2/5. Castlemartyr—formerly Ballymartyr—was the seat of the Fitzgeralds, the seneschals of Imokilly. It subsequently came into the possession of the Cork or Boyle family. It was erected into a borough in 1674, by the interest of the first Earl of Orrery, with the privilege of sending two members to the Irish parliament. The town consists of one wide street, and suburbs; with market-house, erected in 1757 bythe Rt. Hon. Henry Boyle; Protestant and R.C. churches, etc. The castle of Imokilly, from whence this place derives its name, was strongly fortified, being a very important fortress commanding the pass from Cork to Youghal; the ruins now form an interesting feature in the landscape, and there are also ruins of the ancient churches of Ballyoughtera and Cahirultan. The seat of the Earl of Shannon consists of a handsome structure (erected by the Rt. Hon. Henry Boyle, Speaker of the Irish House of Commons), situated in an extensive demesne. The town is intersected by a road leading to Mogeely, Fermoy and Tallow; also by one leading to the villages on the sea coast. Millikin, author of the "Groves of Blarney," etc., was born here in 1767.

CASTLETOWN BERE.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 90 miles from Cork, and 33 from Bantry (had office); situated on the western shore of Bantry bay, opposite Bear island. To the south-west is the ruin of the castle of Dunboy, once a stronghold of the O'Sullivans, a few walls only remaining, barely sufficient to point out its locality. In 1602 it was besigged and taken by Sir George Carew, after a most gallant and vigorous defence. In accordance with the barbarous policy of the age, the whole of the surviving garrison were butchered. The promontory of Berehaven, separating Bantry bay from Kenmare river, is a wild, sterile, and comparatively primitive district, abounding in mineral wealth and romantic scenery.

CASTLETOWN-KINNEIGH.

Sub post town, 30 miles from Cork, 12 from Bandon, 8 from Dunmanway, and 3 from Ballineen and Enniskeane (West Cork Ry). Castletown was formerly a place of importance. It was burnt twice: the castle, from whence it derives its name, was burnt by the Cromwellian soldiers in 1651, the town suffering the same fate. Kinneigh was so called from a sept of the Mahony Kanes, who occupied these lands previous to the Mac Carthys. They now belong to the Earl of Bandon. Of the ancient ecclesiastical round towers, two remain in this county—one at Cloyne, and the other in the parish of Kinneigh, about one mile due west of Castletown (or Poldenstown, as it was formerly called). The latter, believed to have been built in 1154 by St. Macomoge, is a peculiar structure, differing from all other round towers in having a hexagonal form for 18 feet of its base, and circular from that to the top: its circumference at the base is 72 feet, exactly corresponding with its height. Near the tower is the Protestant church of Kinneigh, erected close to the site of the old church founded by St. Macomoge, which was the cathedral of Kinneigh, a diocese that existed before the English Invasion. About 300 yards from the tower was the sacred well now dried up: this well according to tradition, possessed great medicinal virtues. well, now dried up; this well, according to tradition, possessed great medicinal virtues, and, until recently, a large concourse of people assembled here annually to pay their devotions. A few years ago Mr. Patrick Harrington, of Kinneigh, discovered, about 15 feet under the surface of one of his fields, quite near the tower, a number of circular cells, to feet in diameter, and which were connected by a narrow passage, barely sufficient for a man to pass from one to another. These cells formed a horizontal circle in the field, and would remind one of the catacombs of Egypt. Old buildings and Danish forts abound in this locality. The river Bride, one of the most considerable tributaries of the Lee, rises in this parish, and after flowing about fifteen miles in a north-easterly direction, falls into the Lee at Inniscarra.

CASTLETOWNROCHE.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, and station on the G. S. & W. Ry. -fares, single 5/3 3/10, 2/, return 8/9, 6/6, 3/6; 28 miles from Cork, and 9 from Mallow (head office). This place derives its name from a castle erected here by the family of Roche, lords of Fermoy, and who were barons of Parliament as early as the time of Edward II. The town is pleasantly situated on the declivity of a steep hill, rising from the west bank of the Awbeg (Spenser's Mulla), over which is a neat bridge of five arches; and on the high road from Fermoy to Doneraile. The surrounding country is celebrated for the richness and variety of its scenery: the soil is fertile, and well adapted to the growth of corn; the wheat raised is of the best quality, and great numbers of cattle and sheep are fattened in its pastures. Limestone is extensively quarried both for building and agricultural purposes. About a mile distant from Castletownroche, between the conflux of the Awbeg and Blackwater, are the picturesque ruins of the ancient abbey of Bridgetown, which contains several monuments of the once powerful family of the Roches, by whom it was founded. The present noble mansion of Castle Widendam is incorporated with the ancient fortress of the same name. The Prot. church is a remarkably handsome structure, the R. C. church is a spacious edifice.

CASTLETOWNSEND.

Sub post office, on the western coast, 60 miles from Cork, and 6 from Skibbereen (head office). Castletownsend (formerly Castletown or Sleughleig) is situated on the north side of the harbour of Castlehaven. This harbour, in which vessels of 500 tons burden can anchor, is half-a-mile wide, and well sheltered. It is famous for a notable sea fight, in 1602, between Sir Richard Levison and Don Pedro de Zuibar, the Spanish admiral. On the eastern side of the bay are the remains of Raheen castle, belonging to the O'Donovans, and now the property of Sir Henry Wrixon Becher; near the entrance are ruins of an old castle of the O'Driscolls, afterwards belonging to the Audley family. George Lord Audley, who was governor of Utrecht, etc., was created Earl of Castlehaven in 1617. Off the bay of Castlehaven is a good fishery. There are several small islands off the coast, and a high promontory called Toe head stands a little to the westward of Castlehaven; two miles of Toe head are three high rocks, called the stags, seen at sea to a great distance, and look like three towers. Castletownsend derives it name from a castle of some strength, situated on the side of a hill, and formerly a seat of Col. Townsend. During the Williamite wars this castle was besieged twice by the Irish; on the first occasion the colonel, with a garrison of thirty-five men, successfully resisted an attack made by a force of 500 men, under the command of Colonel O'Driscoll. There is a ferry from Castletown to Myross. Near the old churchyard at Castlehaven is a deep rocky glen, called Glenbarahane, and a holy well. This glen is now nicely laid out with flower gardens and shrubberies, with a fine modern mansion, the summer residence of Sir John Joscelyn Coghill, bart. Seafield is the summer residence of Judge Townsend, J.P. for co. Cork.

CECILSTOWN.

Sub post-office, 27 miles from Cork and 6 from Mallow (head office). Lohort castle, the property of the Earl of Egmont, and believed to have been built in the reign of King John, is one of the finest old castles in Ireland, and contains some handsome apartments. It is 80 feet high, with walls ten feet thick, and was originally surrounded by a deep moat. Ballygiblin, the seat of Sir Henry Wrixon Becher, Bart, is an elegant mansion of some antiquity, but recently modernised with great taste. The soil is generally fertile, producing excellent crops, and there are several large dairy farms. The parish of Castlemagner-derives its name from a family of the same name, to whom this part of the county formerly belonged.

CHARLEVILLE.

Head post, money-order, and telegraph office, and market town, on the borders of the county Limerick; 35 miles from Cork, Gt. Southern and Western Ry.—fares, single 7/-, 5/4, 3/-; return 12/-, 9/-, 5/-. Charleville, the most northern town in the county, was so named by its founder, the Earl of Orrery, in honour of Charles II.: its ancient name was Rathgoggan. By charter granted in 1671, to Roger, Earl of Orrery, this town was made a free borough, and the inhabitants incorporated, under the designation of the "sovereign, bailiffs, and burgesses of the borough of Charleville". The corporation consisted of a sovereign, two bailiffs, twelve burgesses, and an indefinite number of freemen. The sovereign and bailiffs were elected annually from the burgesses by the corporation, and the burgesses were elected by the freemen as vacancies occurred by death or otherwise. The charter conferred upon the corporation the privilege of returning two members to the Irish parliament, which was regularly exercised till the Union, when the borough was disfranchised. The corporation is since extinct, and the town has now no local government. The public buildings consist of three banks, a Convent of Mercy, Christian Brothers' schools, National schools, Protestant church, and a Catholic church with a fine painting of the Crucifixion on the high altar—all very handsome structures. John McDonnell, commonly called Shane Clarach M Donnell, a celebrated Jacobite bard, who died in 1754, resided here for several years, and was buried within the ruined church of Ballysally, a quarter mile south of the town. The Earl of Cork and Orrery is the principal proprietor, and has a patent for holding six fairs annually, and markets every Wednesday and Saturday. Six new fairs have been recently founded here, which are toll free, unless falling on the old market day (Wednesday). This rising town possesses great advantages, being the junction of the Cork and Limerick Direct Railway, and seated in the midst of a rich and well watered agricultural and pastoral district.

CLONAKILTY.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 32 miles from Cork, 13 miles from Bandon (head office), and to from Enniskeane, a station on the West Cork Ry. Clonakilty (previously spelt Cloughnakilty), founded by the first Earl of Cork, is a seaport town in the west riding, the corn trade of which was considerable, vessels of 150 tons trading to and from the port; the principal imports now are coal, timber, and Indian corn. The bay of Clonakilty is spacious, but ill-protected; the bar at the entrance is a great hindrance, and the port generally is indifferent. In 1613 a charter was granted to the town by James I., by which the inhabitants were incorporated as "the sovereign, free burgesses, and commonalty of the borough of Cloughnakilty." The right of sending two members to Parliament was conferred on the town by this charter, a privilege it continued to exercise until the passing of the Act of Union in 1800, when it was disfranchised. The principal buildings consist of a Protestant church, Roman Catholic church, convent of Sisters of Mercy, Presbyterian and Wesleyan chapels, a small infantry barracks, market house, inns, etc. It is now governed by Commissioners, under the provision of the "Towns' Improvement Act." Clonakilty was once celebrated for its linen yarn, and on market days large sums were expended on the purchase of this-for over two centuries its staple product; but the yarn trade has died out, and the town now relies for support on its dealings with the farmers in the neighbourhood. Butter, eggs, and fowl are largely bought for exportation. Dr. Smith says, "The town flourished greatly before the wars of 1641, but being then entirely burnt down it has since but slowly recovered." The same writer also gives a description of the remains of an ancient heathen temple, o stone circle, abou two miles to the north-east of Clonakilty, in the parish of Kilgarriff The Rev. Dr. Co ins, R.C. bishop of Cloyne and Ross, was born at Clonakilty; it is also the birth place of B ron Deasy, of the Court of Exchequer, member for co. Cork 1855-60. There was forme y a classical endowed school here, of considerable repute: the Right Hon. Mountiford ongfield (known as Judge Longfield, of the Landed Estates' Court) was educated there, a d many others of the gentry and clergy. It has now ceased to exist. Arundel mills is a illage on Clonakilty harbour. "The tract called Ibawn (the fair) territory, was, after the coming in of the English, wrested from the old proprietors, by Lord Arundel of the Strand, and from him it sell to the Barrymore family. There are the remains of an ancient case on the strand of Clonakilty, formerly called Arundel castle, but now Iting castle,"—Smi i's His. In the mouth of the bay is the Island of Inchidonny. Sulphate of bary es occurs a Muckruss and Mountain common, parish of Ardfield.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, distant 17½ miles from Cork, 4 from Midleton (head office), and 4 from Aghada pier. A bishopric was established at Cloyne in the sixth century, by St. Colman Mac Lenin, supposed to have been a disciple of St. Finbar. This place is called in Irish Cluain-Umha, "The Lawn of the Cave." There are some very deep and interesting caves in a lawn or field, called the Rock Meadow, where tradition says the early Christians sought protection from the Druids. A subterranean river or stream runs through these mysterious and dark caverns. It is generally believed that the caves at Cloyne are connected with the great stalactite caves at Carrig-a-crump, about two miles distant; the latter caves have never been thoroughly explored, though penetrated to a distance of one mile. The cathedral, dedicated to St. Colman, and used as a parish church, is a neat cruciform edifice, supposed to have been erected in the 14th century; the interior is also remarkably neat, and in the transepts are handsome monuments to the memory of Drs. Woodward and Warburton, both bishops of this see; and some elegant monuments of the Longfields, Lumleys, and other families of note. The R.C. church at Cloyne is a large, plain, old edifice. Near the cathedral stands a fine specimen of an ecclesiastical round tower. Its conical stone roof was destroyed by lightning in 1749. The tower is 100 feet in height, 9 feet 2 inches in diameter at the sill of the doorway; the door is about 13 feet from the ground, and faces the western of the church. It is divided into storeys by seven offsets. It is built of a yellowish brown sandstone, in spawled rubble work, and not in courses. A small portion of limestone and a few blocks of red sandstone are used at the facings. The land in the neighbourhood of Cloyne is most excellent, and limestone prevails throughout the district. There is a quarry of fine Italian dove-coloured marble at Carrig-a-crump. In the neighbourhood of Cloyne is the castle of Ballymaloe, built by the Fitzgeralds, and afterwards possessed by the first Earl of Orrery, and the Corkers. In the sixth century St. Ite founded an abbey of Augustinian nuns here; it stood a little to the west of the present See house. Castlemary, a mile west of Cloyne, may be seen one of those ponderous masses of stone, termed "cromleachs," and close to it is a smaller one. This druidical altar consists of a large stone 15 feet long, and 8 in breadth, of a rough irregular form, approaching to an oval. The highest part of it is 9 feet from the ground; it is supported by three other great stones. Adjoining to it is a large round flag stone or table, which was probably used for cutting up the victims for the sacrifice. There is a grammar school in this town, founded in 1808 by Bishop Crowe.

COACHFORD.

Sub-office, money order, and telegraph office, 15½ miles from Cork (head office), and 6 miles from the Kilcrea station (Cork and Macroom Railway). A passenger car leaves for Cork at 8.0 a.m. and returns (air.) about 7.0 p.m., on Mondays, Thursdays, and Saturdays [proprietor, Timothy Connell]. The Roman Catholic chapel is an old and commodious building. The Protestant church is a neat modern-built structure, standing near the ruins of the old church of Magourney, the square ivy-clad tower and walls of which still exist. In the new church is a handsome stained glass window, presented by Mrs. Greer, of Dripsey house. In Magourney church is a curious engraved copper tablet, removed from the old church, to the memory of "Mrs. Ann Cox," the inscription on which was written by herself some time before her death, Two and a half miles north-east of Magourney, is the ruined church of the ancient parish of Kilcolman. Adjoining the church of Aghabolloge is St. Olan's well, near which stands a noble pillar stone inscribed twenty-five years since; and in the churchyard is a stone, said to be his tomb, called "St. Olan's cap." This cap is supposed to possess mirroulous healing with the combined to provide the combined with mystic Ugham, brought from another part of Aghabolloge and placed here about in his History of Cork says the people of the vicinage are persuaded that if the stone were removed it would return of itself to its present position. The whole district northwest of Coachford abounds with stone circles, cromleachs, pillar stones, raths, holy wells, and Danish forts. Peake house, the residence of Miss Catherine Frances Lindsay, is a fine strongly-built mansion, erected in the 17th century, and remodelled within the present century. This seat is remarkable for its ancient timber, and for a Danish fort, supposed to communicate with the house and with two other Danish forts on the adjoining lands of South and West Peake. A fine trout stream runs through the demesne. Smith, in his History of Cork, quotes the Rev. Marmaduke Cox, who, writing in 1755, from Peake, parish of Aghabulloge, states: "Last Thursday, as some men were making a ditch to enclose a potato garden, one of them dropped his spade into a deep hole, which obliged him to open the earth to get out his spade, where he found a passage into fifteen, some say seventeen, very large subterranean rooms or caverns, in one of which, by estimation, were about five hundred skeletons, and in another five skeletons, all entire, and laid at a distance of about a foot from each other. . . . 'Tis imagined there must be another passage to these subterraneous chambers from a Danish fort about 150 yards from the present entrance. There are other chambers that are not got into, the entrance being defended by very large stones."

CONNA and BALLYNOE.

Sub post office, 26 miles from Cork and 8 from Fermoy. This is a rich well-watered grazing district, near the Blackwater. Conna (or Knockmourne) was an ancient corporation, burnt down in the Desmond rebellion. Conna castle, belonging to the Fitzgeralds, is a high square tower, built on a steep rock; at Aghern was formerly another castle of the Fitzgeralds. At Ballynoe are vestiges of an ancient abbey, and near it a chalybeate spring; the ruins are extensive, and supposed to have belonged to the Knights Hospitallers. This district is watered by the river Bride, which runs north of Tallow (County Waterford), and discharges itself into the Blackwater. On the banks of the Bride are ruins of several of the Desmond castles. There are some fine orchards in this neighbourhood.

COURTMACSHERRY.

Sub post office, 32 miles from Cork, 3 south-east of Timoleague, and 12 from Bandon (head office). Courtmacsherry is a very pretty marine village, agreeably situated on the southern side of Courtmacsherry bay. It consists of one street, built only on one side, the other open to the sea. The portion of it principally occupied by visitors contains many good-sized houses, built at the foot of a well-wooded hill, which almost surrounds the village on the east, west, and south sides. This place is much frequented for sea bathing during the season, and the magnificent flower garden and grounds of W. B. Leslie, J.P., are open to visitors on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the summer. Between Courtmacsherry and Timoleague are the ruins of Abbeymahon. It was founded by monks of the Cistercian order, and stands close to the waters of the bay. It was endowed by Lord Barry with eighteen townlands, but was confiscated at the suppression of monasteries. The property is now in the hands of the Earl of Shannon. The bay affords plenty of various kinds of fish. The river Arigadeen (the silver stream) rises in Carbery, glides by Timoleague, and empties its water into the bay of Courtmacsherry. This river abounds with salmon, white trout, bass, mullet, etc. There are Coastguard and Life boat stations here.

CROOKHAVEN.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 79 miles from Cork, and 261 from Skibbereen (head office). Crookhaven, once a place of some note, is situated on a peninsula west of Cape Clear, near an excellent harbour, one of the best outlets in Europe for vessels to sail to any place whatsoever. The land about it is exceedingly rocky and barren. The extreme point of this tract is called Brow head, between which and the opposite cape, called Mizen head, is a great bay called Barley cove, and another between that and Three-castle-head, so called from three square towers built on it by the Mahonys; then comes the larger bay of Dunmanus, which has its name from Dunmanus castle, erected on the east banks by that sept. The whole peninsula from Ballydehob to Dunmanus bay is called Ivaugh, and belonged to the O'Mahonys. The postal authorities have a signal tower at Brow head, from which the inward bound mail steamers are signalled to the post office at Crookhaven, and thence reported by telegraph to their respective agents, etc.

CROOKSTOWN and FARNANES.

Sub post-offices, 17 miles from Cork, and 7½ south-east of Macroom. At Crookstown is a station, Cork and Macroom Ry; four trains a day—fares, single 3/2, 2/2, 1/4, return 4/9, 3/3, 2/2. The principal places of interest in the district are: Rye court, the handsome house and grounds of R. Tonson Rye, D.L., J.P.; Castlemore—now in ruins—built by the MacSwineys, but afterwards belonging to the MacCarthys; part of the ruins of Kilbrenan (Strawhall), an abbey of regular canons, founded in the eight century by St. Ædus; and a large stone monument, called "Niall's grave" (who was said to be slain in battle at this place), on the west side of the road from Crookstown to Bandon. From Clodagh, a ruined castle of the Mac Swineys, to the confluence of the river Bride with the Lee, there is a fine valley bounded by hills north and south, which afford several limestone quarries.

CROSSHAVEN.

Sub post and money order office, 12 miles from Cork (head office). Steamers, in connection with the Cork, Blackrock and Passage trains, ply to and from this place—fares from Cork, single 1/10, 1/6, 1/1, return 2/9, 2/2, 1/6; the Citizen River Steamers Company's boats also ply between here and Cork during the summer months. The fashionable marine village of Crosshaven is picturesquely embayed in a creek—the mouth of the Carrigaline river—on the western side of Cork harbour. Of late years this much-frequented place has been very considerably improved, and the pretty cottages and handsome terraces of which it composed are pleasantly situated along the slope of a gently rising and tichly-wooded aclivity, commanding a prospect of the harbour. Behind the village, at a commanding elevation, are two newly-built places of worship—the parish church of Templebreedy, and St. Bridgid's R. C. church; the latter is a very handsome structure of grey limestone, in the decorated Gothic style of architecture, the beauty of which, as seen from the harbour, is enhanced by the cluster of trees in which it is eithbosomed. The principal seats are Crosshaven house, the residence of Thomas Hayes, J. L.

and Hoddersfield (anciently called Kilcrow), the residence of William Moore Hodder, I.P. On the rising ground, overlooking the various bays beneath, are to be had fine views of the harbour, the Tipperary, Waterford, and West Cork mountains, the Atlantic, and a vast tract of sea coast, which is rocky and precipitous, with a few sandy inlets suitable for sea bathing. The neighbouring fort—Camden Fort (called after John Jeffreys Pratt, second Earl of Camden, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in 1795)—is a sea battery of 12 heavy guns. The land side is being remodelled, and is to have 30 additional guns mounted.

Postmistress-Miss Drinan Mail car leaves for Cork at 6 50 p.m, and Cork for Crosshaven at 5 o a.m. Parishes - Templebreedy (p. 100), Kil-

CURRAGLASS.

Sub post office, 28 miles from Cork, 11 from Fermoy, and 3 from Conna. Curraglass, on the borders of Waterford, is a neat pleasant village, in a fertile valley of the Bride. The beauty of the place is considerably enhanced by the extensive ruins of Mogeely castle, one of the principal seats of Thomas, the great Earl of Desmond. The ruins of this castle shew it to have been a very large and stately building. R. J. M. Gumbleton, J.P., of Glenatore demesne, is the possessor of one of the finest herds of Booth shorthorns in the county, being a first prize-taker at the Bath and West of England Plymouth meeting, at Royal Agricultural Society of England meeting held at Cardiff, and at the last meeting of the Royal Dublin Society.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office; 28 miles from Cork, 7 from Mallow, and 5 from Buttevant (head office). Doneraile—situated on the banks of the Awbeg (Spenser's Mulla")—is one of the most pleasant and pretty little towns in the county, much resorted to in summer by visitors. The country around is very romantic, and rich in trout streams. Two miles of Doneraile is Kilcolman, celebrated as the residence of the poet Spenser. To the north are the Ballyhoura mountains, or, as Spenser terms them, the mountains of Mole: "Mole, that mountain hore." "And Mulla mine, whose waves I whilome taught to weep." A mile east of Doneraile is Castle-saffron, so called from large quantities of that plant formerly growing there. In 1737 three large urns, each about 4 feet high, and containing human remains, were discovered near Castle-saffron, placed in a kind of triangle in the earth, about a 100 yards from a Danish entrenchment; they were made of fine clay, dried by the fire, which soon mouldered in the air. Near this place are several quarries of beautiful variegated marble. About a mile below Castle saffron, on the Awbeg, are the ruins of Ballynemoney castle, once belonging to the Nagles. The lands of this district, so far as they rest on the limestone, are fertile and produce excellent crops; the southern. most portion however rests on the shale, and are clayey and wet. The northern lands, although they rests on the limestone, are nevertheless so covered with the drift from the Ballyhoura mountains, that they partake too much of the character of the latter, and are not, therefore, as fertile as the usual run of calcareous soils. Doneraile was formerly a borough, and returned a member to the Irish parliament; it gives the title of Viscount to the St. Legers—letters patent dated 23rd June, 1703, 2nd of Queen Anne. Sir William St. Leger, who was Lord President of Munster in the reign of Charles I., held his court here. Sir Anthony St. Leger, who is generally praised for his wise and impartial administration during the crisis of the Irish civil war, was five times Lord-Deputy of Ireland between the years 1540 and 1559 Nothing can be finer than the Doneraile demesne, which is open to the public during the summer months. The Duhallow Club hounds are kept here

DONOUGHMORE.

Sub post-office, 15 miles from Cork (head office). Donoughmore lies 8 miles to the north-east of Coachford, and bounds a mountainous tract, called by Smith "the Boggra." The tract, although it stands high, is flat, and surrounded by higher grounds almost on every side. In winter it is for the most part marshy; in summer it is grazed by vast herds of cattle. Several considerable rivers, besides an infinite number of brooks, have their rise in this district, the most considerable of which are the Blarney, Rathcoola, Shournagh, the Dripsey, tributaries of the Lee; and the Clyda, Lyre, and Bantyre, tributaries of the Blackwater. The patron saint of Donoughmore was named St. Lachteen. As described in topographical notice of Coachford, cromleachs, pillar stones, etc., are to be found in this neighbourhood, many of them inscribed with the Ogham character.

DOUGLAS.

For Douglas Roads, see Suburban Directory, City of Cork.

Suburban post and money-order office, 2 miles south-east of Cork. There is a large flax mill at Douglas, worked by Messrs. Wallis and Pollock, employing 750 persons, with houses and gardens for the employees. As early as 1726, there was one of the largest sail cloth factories in the kingdom here, having 100 looms at work, and giving employment to about 800 persons in the different departments. The old church of Douglas has lately been taken down, and a much improved structure raised in its stead. The churchyard, which already contains some costly monuments, is now regarded, and availed of, as one of the principal cemeteries in the suburbs. There are many good seats in this neighbourhood, as Grange, Maryborough, Donnybrook, etc.

DRIPSEY.

Sub post office, 12½ miles from Cork and 2 from Coachford. Near Dripsey the waters of the important tributary of that name commingle with those of the Lee. The Dripsey rises out of the Boggra mountains, on the borders of Muskery, and, after being joined by the Rylane, runs through the west end of the parish of Donoughmore. On this river stands the Dripsey paper mills, the property of Alfred Greer, J.P., and the ruins of the castle of Carrig-na-muck, belonging to the Mac Carthys. Two miles east of Dripsey are the ruins of the abbey of Innisluinga, erected by St. Senan, of Scattery; and one mile further east are the remains of a castle, called Castle-Inch, which gave the title of baron to Justin, Lord Viscount Mountcashel.

DROMAGH.

Sub post-office, 36 miles from Cork, 3 from Kanturk railway station, 4 south-west of the town of Kanturk, and 5 north-east of Millstreet. The district of which Dromagh is the post town, lies for the most part on the north side of the Blackwater, in the midst of an agricultural and coal or culm district. The Mining company of Ireland work an extensive colliery near the village of Dromagh. The fairs are generally well stocked, and well attended. The only place of antiquarian interest here is Dromagh castle, formerly a stronghold of the O'Keeffes: the large courtyard still remains, and is flanked by four strong towers. Lord Muskery marched out of this castle in 1652, to encounter Lord Broghill, at the famous battle of Knocknaclashy. The site of the battle is about half-amile from Banteer bridge, which crosses the Blackwater near Clonmeen. This engagenient was the last of importance in this country during the civil war, and was immediately followed by the surrender of Limerick.

DUNKETTLE.

For Lota, Lotabeg, and Lotamore, see Suburban Directory, City of Cork.

Sub post-office, in the north-east suburbs of Cork, 3 miles from the city, and one from the village of Glanmire. Trains call at Dunkettle station (G. S. & W. Ry—Cork, Youghal, and Queenstown section) every hour—fares, single, 6d., 4d., 3d., return, 8d., 6d., 5d. This district is situate on the north banks of the river Lee, at the western extremity of the Little Island, and is divided from the suburbs of Lota by the small but graceful river of Glanmire, which discharges itself into the Lee at Dunkettle: it consists for the most part of handsome detached mansions, with grounds sloping down to the water's edge, and affording a fine panoramic prospect of a great part of Cork harbour and the river. The picturesque Mathew Tower, which forms so striking an object from its lofty site on the Glanmire hills, about a mile from the railway station, was erected by the late Mr. William O'Connor, merchant tailor, of Cork, to perpetuate Father Theobald Mathew's fame, and as commemorative of the kindly reception he met with from all classes of society in London. The foundation stone was laid October 30, 1843.

DUNMANWAY.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 36 miles from Cork, and 17 west of Bandon (head office). Dunmanway is the terminus of the West Cork Railway, running from Bandon: it consists of one street of about half a mile in length. There are Protestant, Catholic, and Wesleyan places of worship, court-house, bank, etc., in the town; and the Commissioners of National Education have established a model school here. This town is intimately associated with the name of Sir Richard Cox, the Irish lord chancellor in the reign of Queen Anne. He established an English colony here, made new roads, erected a handsome stone bridge over the Bandon river, and removed the parish church of Fanlobbus into his new town; he also established the manufacture of linen, diapers, fustains, and girthwebs; to encourage which he give a house rent-free to the man who, through the year, had made the best and greatest quantity of linen. Sir Richard died in 1733, at the advanced age of eighty-three. Although the first Sir Richard did much for the introduction and prosperity of the linen trade, yet it did not attain the same strength and dimensions in his time as it did in that of his grandson and successor; for in twenty years after his death the houses in the town had more than doubled, and the flax and woollen wheels had increased from 138 to 254. The present church of Fanlobbus was erected in 1821, at a cost of £1,000, on the site of the old church erected by Sir Richard Cox. The castle of Dunmanway, built by Catherine Fitzgerald, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Desmond, stood at the western end of the town, now called Castle road. The whole of this famous old fortalice was a few years ago completely destroyed, to furnish building material for the erection of a flour mill in the vicinity. On the suppression of the Desmond rebellion, Queen Elizabeth granted "the town, castle, and lands of Downemoenwye" to Tiege McDermod Downy, and heirs male. The estates of the McCarthy-Downys—who sided energetically with the royalist party on the breaking out of the civil war-were forfeited by Cromwell. Togher castle, four miles north-west of Dumanway, was another seat of the McCarthy-Downys (or O'Downys); it is a large imposing edifice about eighty feet in height and sixty in breadth, built on the northern side of the Bandon river. Ballynacarriga castle, about four miles south-east of Dunmanway, was built in 1585 by Randal Oge Hurley. The castle is a strong square tower, nearly one hundred feet high, and stands on the crest of a bold bare rock which rises upwards of forty feet above the waters of an adjoining lake. A short distance from the town, at a place called Dromdrasdil, Dr. Smith found a light chalybeate spring. There is a slate quarry in the parish of Drinagh. A few miles to the north of Dunmanway, towards Inchigeela, is a new parish church, dedicated to St. Edmund; it consists of a nave fifty four feet long by twenty eight feet broad, a chancel, and a spire ninety feet high. It is built on a little rocky eminence, and in the centre of a valley which lies within the arms of those solitary Alps-the Shehy mountains.

DURRUS (late CARRIGBOY).

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 59 miles from Cork, and 6½ south-west of Bantry. Durrus (or Carrigbuie—that is, "the yellow rock") lies in a well-sheltered vale at the head of Dunmanus bay, one of the great inlets of the Atlantic. Dunmanus bay is telebrated for its oysters, which are sometimes very abundant. The copper mine:

in this locality are favourably known; the flag quarries, which overhang the sea, produce flags of a fine buff colour, and are represented as capable of being worked to great advantage; and the slate vein, already traced to a length of two miles, are found to have an average width of 90 feet. M. H. Morris, J. P., has lately opened a valuable slate quarry on his land at Friendly cove, which gives employment to a great number of the people. The slate procured here is nearly equal to that imported from Wales. Most of the lands were forfeited by the Irish proprietors in 1641; the principal landed proprietor now is the Earl of Bandon, who has much improved the place of late years, and who has a residence called Durrus court within a mile of the village; it is situated on a gentle eminence, commanding a good view of the bay with its surrounding scenery. Within a few yards of this court stand the ruins of the first house of Protestant worship in this parish. A small noisy river, called "Four-mile Water"—so called from being four (Irish) miles from Bantry—empties itself into the sea here. The peninsula, washed on the east by Dunmanus bay and on the west by Bantry bay, is generally called "Muntervary." The extreme point of this tract is called "Sheep's Head. Dunmanus castle, erected on the east banks of the bay, and Dunbeacon castle, towards the head of the bay—both in ruins—belonged to the sept of the Mahonys. Four miles west of Durrus is O'Donovan's cove, the residence of the late Timothy O'Donovan, J.P.: it was inhabited by his family for centuries, and was at one time a beautiful place. The house is now almost in ruins. All this country is mountainous, rocky, and boggy.

ENNISKEAN.

Sub post office, 27 miles from Cork, and 7 to the west of Bandon (head office). Ennishean is situated on the northern side of Bandon river. There was formerly a Monday but this has long since fallen into disuse. It weekly market held here every Monday, but this has long since fallen into disuse. derives it name from Ennis-Keane-the Inch of the Keane-the sept Keane Mac Moyle More, one of the O'Mahonys, were connected with this locality long before McCarthy . More obtained a grant of it from the crown. A little east of Enniskean, at the foot of a low chain of hills, is Palace-Anne, erected in the reign of Queen Anne, formerly the handsome residence of a branch of the Bernards. The Bernards of Palace-Anne were descendants of Lieut. Arthur Bernard, the only brother of Judge Bernard, progenitor of the Earls of Bandon. Palace-Anne house, with the surrounding demesne and farm—the only remnant of the property of this branch of the Bernard family-has, within the last two years, been sold to a farmer-Mr. Creedon. This district, now inhabited by respectable farmers, was once famous for the manufacture of "potheen"—as many as fifteen "distilleries" could be discerned at full work by the graceful curling of the smoke.

EYERIES (or IRIES).

Sub post office, situated on Coulagh bay, west coast, 94 miles from Cork, 37 from Bantry, and 4½ from Castletownbere, from which it is divided by the Slieve Miskish mountains. It was in this district, at Eyeries begga, that Morty Oge O'Sullivan was killed by a military party despatched from Cork to arrest him for shooting Mr Puxley, ot Dunboy, in 1754. O'Sullivan had fortified his house, which he defended till his ammunition was exhausted, when he rushed forth and broke through the soldiers, but, when clearing a hedge, was shot through the heart. This event gave rise to some spirited lines in Blackwood's at the time, of which the following is a stanza:—

"The sun of Ivera no longer shines brightly
The voice of her music no louger is sprightly;
No more to her maidens the light dance is dear,
Since the death of our darling O'Sullivan Beare."

O'Sullivan's body was lashed to the stern of a king's cutter, and towed through the sea to Cork, where his head was spiked on the South-gate. Some of O'Sullivan's followers were killed and others wounded in his defence. On the road to the cemetery of Kilcatherine is a loose rock, having the form of a woman with pannier on her back, settled on the side of a cliff. This rock is called Caillagh Beara—the "Hag of Bere;" and the legend connected with it is, that it was once a real woman, that stole books from the monks of Kilcatherine, whose curse overtook her where she now stands. The lakes of Glenbeg, Detrizel, and Loughfadda, abound in trout, and there are very fine sea caves at Ardgroom.

FARRAN (or KILCREA).

Sub post office, 12 miles from Cork (head office); at Kilcrea is a station (Cork and Macroom Ry)—trains four times a day: fares, single, 2/8, 2/, 1/; return, 3/6, 3/, 1/7. The river Bride flows through a fertile tract of grazing land, which, up to 1700, was a vast morass frequented by wolves, called the great bog of Kilcrea. The Franciscan friary of Kilcrea is situated on the Bride: its name is derived from the Irish Killa Crea, signifying the cemetery of St. Cera, or Chera, who, it is stated, had a convent here. An antiquated bridge crosses the river close to the abbey, the entrance of which is shaded by a fine avenue of trees. A part of this building still remains, with the nave and choir of the church. On the south side of the nave is a handsome arcade of three gothic arches, supported by marble columns, more massive than those of the Tuscan order: this arcade continues to form one side of a chapel, being a cross aisle. The steeple, a light building, about 80 feet high, placed between the nave and the choir, is still entire, and is supported by Gothic arches. The friary, which was dedicated to St. Bridget, was founded in 1465 by Cormac McCarthy Laider, lord of Muskery, who lies buried in the choir, together with many other members of the house of Clancarty. In the south-west angle of the nave is the tomb of Arthur O'Leary, termed the "Outlaw." Another remarkable personage interred here was Roger O'Connor, the ardent republican and freethinker, who, with his more famous brother, Arthur, who died in France, took a leading part in the rebellion of 1798. Thomas O'Herlihy, titular bishop of Ross, was interred here in 1579, in the southern transept: he was one of the three Irish prelates who attended the Council of Trent, for which he was declared a rebel, and spent three and a half years in the tower of London. After his release, he retired to a small farm near Macroom, where he spent the remaining portion of his life. A little to the west of the friary, by whose founder it was built, stands the castle of Kilcrea, once a keep of the Clancartys: it consists of a square tower, seventy feet high, in a good state of preservation; the bawn and moat still exist, but the batteries and outworks are a mass of ruins. The interior of the building is bare and gloomy, but the view from the summit—the ascent of which is by a flight of marble steps—is varied and extensive. About a mile from Kilcrea abbey, in a north-westerly direction, on a commanding eminence, is the new R.C. church of Farran; and further on the Protestant church and old churchyard of Aglish: there is no service at present held in the Protestant church. Aglish, Kilbonane, and Moviddy ecclesiastical parishes are now combined; services held in Kilbonane and Moviddy churches. Richard Good, esq, of Aherlow, is well known as an importer of thorough-bred and prize agricultural sires. His Suffolk Punch, Brian Boru, took numerous prizes throughout England; and his French thorough-bred sire, Manola, is connected by blood with some of the most celebrated race-horses of the day.

FERMOY.

Head post, money order, and telegraph office, and an important barrack station, 22 miles from Cork by road, and 37 by rail (Fermoy branch G. S. & W. Ry). The town of Fermoy contains several good streets, with numerous respectable shops. The river Blackwater flows through the town, and is spanned by a magnificent cut stone bridge. On the northern side are extensive infantry and cavalry barracks, called the old and new barracks; also the railway station. The principal buildings consist of a Catholic cathedral, handsome Protestant church, Presbyterian and Methodist chapels, two colleges, court house, several large flour mills, three branch banks, hotels, etc. The weekly markets are well attended. It is governed by commissioners under the provisions of the "Town Improvement Act." Fermoy, an insignificant village when Smith wrote his history of Cork, about 150 years since, is now third in point of population in the county. This district is part of the ancient territory of Fearna Maighe-Feine, of which the O'Keeffes were chieftains or kings. Donagh MacKeeffe, king of Fermoy, commanded an expedition against the Danes in 954. After the Norman invasion it was granted to the Flemings, from whom it passed to the Roches, barons of Fermoy. The monastery of Fermoy, founded by St. Finnchua, was one of the most celebrated Irish educational establishments in the 7th century. An abbey of Cistercians was founded here in 1270, by Sir Richard de Rupella, who was lord justice of Ireland in 1261. About two miles up the river, is the beautiful demesne of Castle-Hyde—called after Arthur Hyde, one of the English settlers in Elizabeth's reign. During its entire course, a distance of 75 miles, the Blackwater runs through a country rife with historic recollections, memorials of the piety or chivalry of by-gone ages being frequent along its banks. The source of the Blackwater is a bog near the boundaries of Cork and Kerry: it runs into a tolerably direct course from west to east through this county, receiving in its progress many tributaries. Near Fermoy are some ruined castles of the Condons. In 1642, the castle of Ballymacpatrick (now Careysville, the seat of Edward K. Carey, J.P.), was taken by the Earl of Barrymore after a vigorous defence, and the garrison executed. The Ashfield herd of shorthorns, the property of Mr. John Downing, are well-known prize takers in the Irish show yards.

FREEMOUNT and TULLYLEASE.

(Post Town-Charleville.)

Agricultural district north-west of Cork, near borders of county Limerick, served by rural messenger from the Milford sub-office. Freemount is 36 miles from Cork, 15 from Mallow, 10 from Buttevant, and 11 south of Charleville; Tullylease is 12 miles from Charleville, 3½ south of Milford sub-post office, and 3 from Freemount. The river Allow (the "echoing river"). from which the barony of Duhallow derives its name, flows by Freemount from the borders of Limerick, and falls into the Blackwater below Kanturk. Tullylease is the site of a church said to have been built by St. Benignus, a disciple of St. Tullylease is the site of a church said to have been built by St. Benignus, a disciple of St. Patrick's. On St. Ben's day, 6th February, the country people for miles around come to pray at two holy wells—St. Ilen's well and Our Lady's well—and before a large slab called St. Ben's stone, on which a curious Celtic cross is carved. This church was about 90 feet long and 27 broad; the eastern end, a pointed gable, and the southern wall in which the door was, alone remain.

GLANDORE.

Sub post office, 52 miles south-west of Cork, 8 miles from Skibbereen, 4½ from Rosscarbery, and 14 from Dunmanway. Glandore is situated on the east side of Glandore harbour, and near it is a castle of the same name, built by the Barretts, and subsequently belonging to the O'Donovans, chiefs of Clann-Loughlin. The harbour, though small, is an exceedingly good one. Nothing can be more wild or magnificient than the coast from Glandore to the extreme west of the county, with its bluff headlands. There is an old legend connected with a rock in the harbour, called Cliodhna, and the tradition is that a wave beats on it called "Cleena's wave," which utters a plaintive sound whenever a southern monarch dies. Cleena was a fairy princess. In 1812 there existed a cupriferous peat bog here, fifty tons of the dried peat produced, when burnt, one ton of ashes, containing from ten to fifteen per cent of copper. Near Glandore, manganese ore is especially abundant and pure: pure manganese is white, with a faint reddish tinge, and is very hard and brittle; it takes a fine polish, and does not tarnish in the air. This metal (discovered in 1774) is as yet of no service alone in the arts, but plays an important part in some alloys, and especially when mixed to a small extent with some kinds of steel. Its chief ore is the black oxide of pyrolusite, large quantities of which is used in the manufacture of bleaching powder, and of both clear and coloured glass.

GLANMIRE.

For Lota, Lotabeg, and Lotamore, see Suburban Directory, City of Cork.

A suburb, 4 miles from the city of Cork, and I from the railway station of Dunkettle. The derivation of the name of this place is Gleann-Maghair—"the valley of the little fishes." Glanmire is remarkable for its richly-wooded hills and beautiful scenery. The small but graceful river of Glanmire, one of the latest tributaries of the Lee, flows through a deep and romantic valley, pleasantly wooded on either side: this river is navigated at high water by lighters, which pass through two swivel bridges at Dunkettle going and returning. There are large flour mills here, worked by the "Glanmire Mills Company."

Postal.

Mails are despatched from Cork for Glanmire via Dunkettle at 2 0 p.m. and 1 30 a.m.; and are despatched from Glanmire at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

GLANWORTH.

Sub post office, 26 miles by road and 34 by rail from Cork, 14 north-east of Mallow (head office), 5 from Castletownroche, 5 from Fermoy, and 3 from Ballyhooly—the latter a station G. S. & W. Ry. Glanworth-or Glanore, "the Golden Glen"-was anciently a corporation. It is situated on the Funcheon, on a rock overhanging which are the magnificent ruins of Glanworth castle, built by Fleming, the first Norman knight who gained possession of these parts; it was occupied as late as the 17th century by a Lord Fermoy. The ruins consist of a square tower or keep, connected with which was a more modern building of superior construction containing the state apartments, within a quadrilateral enclosed by strong walls defended at each angle by a tower; near it is a stone bridge over the Funcheon. On this river are some ruined castles of the Condons, viz, Dunmahon, Curraghane, and several others. At a place called Labacally, near Glanworth, is a dolmen, the most ancient of sepulchral monuments, called the "Hag's bed"probably the grave chamber of some noted person. It is an oblong chamber formed by great stones, forty feet long on the outside, and fourteen feet broad. The top stone is seventeen feet long, nine feet wide, and in the middle three feet thick. There is no stone of the description nearer than a distance of about ten miles. At Cloutinty (the meadow of the fires), according to ancient Irish MSS., the Druids held four grand festivals during the eyear in honour of fire, under the denomination of Beat-tinne. A Dominican friary was founded here in 1227 by the Roches, and dedicated to the Holy cross, vestiges of which still remain. Near this abbey in a holy well, dedicated to St. Dominick. There is a large woollen and tweed factory at Glanworth, worked by water power, and giving employment to several hands.

GLENGARIFF.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 65 miles from Cork, and 11 from Bantry (head office). Glengariff is picturesquely situated in a deep rocky glen, at the head of harbour of the same name, in Bantry bay. This alpine valley is about six miles in lengt) and a quarter mile in breadth, and enclosed by precipitous hills; the rocks are wild an rugged in the extreme, but endowed by nature with a rich and luxuriant growth of fernarbutus and holly, and majestic yew trees, effectively contrasting with the cultivation anart displayed in Lord Bantry's lovely demesne, with his handsome residence—Glengarit cottage-in the centre. From every part of the glen some attractive object may be seen; but from the steep of Old Berehaven road-near the old bridge, called Cromwell's bridge, now a picturesque ruin-is to be obtained a glorious panorama of ocean, mountains, rivers, waterfalls, glen, and bay. The Caha mountains, extending between Bantry bay and the Kenmare river, are of all founds, altitudes, and outlines, the highest summits being about 2000 feet high. The most prominent amongst them is the Sugar-loaf—Sieve-na-goil, "the mountain of the wild people"-6 miles west of Glengariff: 8 miles west of this mountain is a fine waterfall of 800 feet [see Adrigole.] In a little island off Glengariff, known as Brandy island, is a cave used as a depository of smuggled goods in the days when temptation to illicit trade was great; and in connexion with which many wild tales are related. bay of Glengariff they dredge up coral sand, a very valuable manure. The distance fr Glengariff into co. Kerry is about six miles, by a road ascending a mountainous ride. constructed by the celebrated Scotch engineer, Nimmo, and through a tunnel of about two hundred yards in length. There are two fine hotels at Glengariff, with first-class accommodation for tourists and visitors; public cars run via Killarney and Macroom during the summer. To the botanist this district is specially interesting. stices of the rocks innumerable ferns, mosses, and lichens grow in the wildest tuxuriance; and there exists in a native state many Spanish, Mediterranean, and American flowering plants, and very many American and tropical cryptogamia. In the neighbourhood are numerous loughs, etc. abounding in trout,

INCHIGEELA.

Sub post-office, 33 miles north-west of Cork, 11 from Macroom, and 24 from Bantry. Inchigeela possesses Protestant and Catholic churches, a constabulary station, two school-houses, hotel, etc. The surface is mountainous, rocky, and of wild aspect, but towards the east more level, and in a profitable state of cultivation. About ten miles west of the village is the romantic "lone" lake of Gougane Barra—the source of the Lee. This lake is situated in a picturesque and sequestered spot, in a lofty chain of mountains between Cork and Kerry, the utter loneliness and stern magnificence of which it is difficult to conceive; and in whose jugged and precipitous acclivities the golden eagle is said still to breed. St. Finbar—who founded a large school or monastery, towards the end of the sixth century, around which the city of Cork sprung up—lived for some time as a hermit in a cell on a small islet in the lake. A long series of ascetics succeeded him here, the last of whom was one named Mahony, who lived in this lonely spot for twenty-eight years, and died in 1700. This small island, nearly midway in the lake, is overshadowed by venerable ash trees. It is connected with the shore by a rude artificial causeway, and the greater portion of its surface is covered by the ruins of a chapel, and a cloister containing eight cells, rudely constructed of brown stone. Close to the mountains encircling Gougane Barra is the celebrated Pass of Keimaneigh (the path of the deer), through which runs the high road between Macroom and Bantry. A mountain has been divided by some convulsion of nature: precipitous walls of rock, clothed in wild ivy, ferns, and mosses, rise to a height of several hundred feet on either side of the gorge. Between the lake of Gougane and Inchigeela the Lee expands into a broad sheet of water, called Lough Allua, the eastern extremity of which is about a mile from Inchigeela. The lake (or rather series of lakes) is about four miles in length by one in breadth. All the adjacent country is called Iveleary, from the sept of the O'Learys, its ancient owners, and to whom also belonged the castles of Carrignacurra (Castle-Masters) and Dromcarra, on the Lee, towards Macroom. Carrignacurra was garrisoned by Cromwell's troops, and is still in tolerable preservation, consisting of a square tower about 100 feet high. About two centuries ago this locality, now almost entirely destitute of timber, was a vast forest of oak, birch, ash, and yew, abounding with red and fallow deer. There are vast marshes here, clothed with heather and aquatic plants, and, in their seasons, frequented by great quantities of water fowl.

Attempts, hitherto abortive, have been made to drain this extensive quagmire. Formerly, some metallic cubes, yellow and shining like gold, were found in this district, and metallic ores have, from time to time, been washed out of the adjacent rocks during floods. midway between Inchigeela and Gougane is the village of Ballingeary, with a Catholic church and National schools.

INNISCARRA.

Sub post-office, 8 miles west of Cork and 3 from Ballincollig. At the confluence of the Lee and the Bride, are the romantic ruins of the old church of Inniscarra. It was founded by St. Senan of Scattery—the same commemorated by Moore in his song of "Saint Senanus and the Lady." Here is to be found some of the most exquisite scenery on the Lee—richly wooded demesnes and extensive tracts of grazing land meeting the eye on every side. Ardrum, the residence of Mrs. Bayly, sister of Sir George Colthurst, bart, is a fine old-fashioned structure, in excellent preservation, and of considerable extent.

INNISHANNON.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 20 miles by rail (Cork and Bandon Ry.) and 15 by road, south-west of Cork; 4 miles from Bandon, 8 from Kinsale, and 2 from the Kinsale Junction. Three trains daily to and from Cork—fares, single 3/9, 2/9, 1/6; return 5/6, 4/6, 3/. Innishannon was formerly a walled town, and a place of some note, the foundations of several castles and large buildings having been discovered in its neighbourhood. Innishannon means "Island of John,"—from Innis (island) and Shoncen (John). The "Book of Leinster" contains a record that Inis Eoganian [Innishannon], on the river Bandon, was demolished by the Danes on their first invasion of Ireland. In 1412 the town of Innishannon, together with its ferry, was granted to Philip de Barry by Henry V. The new parish church is a very fine Gothic structure, completed in 1856, and has a lofty spire and handsome enclosure of gates, etc. There is also a R. C. church. From Innishannon to Kinsale the scenery on the Bandon river is very beautiful, and the adjoining hills are covered with woods and handsome residences; this scenery has received much praise from the poet Sterne. The river is navigable for trade to about half-a-mile of the bridge. About 1½ miles below Innishannon is the ancient castle of Poul-na-long, or Ship-pool, built by the Roches in 1544. It was besieged and taken by the Bandonians in 1642, by which means they opened a correspondence with Kinsale. Between Innishannon and Bandon are the ruins of the castle of Dundaneere, or Downdaniel, built in 1476 by one of the Barry Oges, which stand near the confluence of the Bandon and the Brinny. About the year 1612 the East India Company paid £7,000 for woods, and established a depot for smelting works not far from Downdaniel Castle. Adjoining the castle is a chalybeate spring, the waters of which were at one time held in high repute. Formerly Innishannon possessed linen and cotton manufactures, but these ceased with the present century.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 33 miles north-west of Cork, and 11 from Mallow (head office). Three trains daily between this and Cork—fares, single 6/5, 4/9, 2/8, return 10/9, 8/, 4/6; public cars run to and from each train. Kanturk is a thriving little market town, at the confluence of the rivers Allow and Dalua, which flow into the Blackwater two miles below the town. The Mac Carthys formerly held the property, but forfeited it in 1641. In Elizabeth's time Mac Donough Mac Carthy commenced the erection of the castle near this place. The ruins of this castle are remarkable; they consist of a paralellogram 120 feet long by 80 wide, flanked with four square towers. It was never completed, for the erection was stopped by order of Elizabeth's council, as it promised to be a place of too great strength and importance for a subject. It remains as then built, in be a place of too great strength and importance for a subject. It remains as then built, in good preservation, and contributes much to the scenery of the neighbourhood. Within the past few years a large and handsome R. C. church, school, and convent, have been erected here, through the exertions of the Ven. Archdeacon O'Regan, now P.P. Mallow. The Protestant church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a neat, modern, but unostentations building. The Earl of Egmont, of Lohort castle, Cecilstown, is the principal landed proprietor of this district. Egmont, which gives the title of earl to the Perceval family, lies a little to the north of Liscarroll. John, successively Baron Perceval of Burton (near Egmont), and Viscount Perceval of Kanturk, was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Egmont in 1733, reign of George II. The Rev. Sir William Lionel Darell, bart, rector of Fretherne, Gloucestershire, holds some property near the town—a lot of newly built cottages, and some few hundred acres of land. cottages, and some few hundred acres of land.

KILBRITTAIN.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 26 miles from Cork, 6 south of Bandon, and 81/2 south-west of Kinsale. Kilbrittain, or Cill-Brittain, parish of Rathclarin, was once described as "a fair town, in the barony of Carbery, and county of Cork." It is situated in a deep and picturesque glen, at the head of a narrow creek running up from Stuated in a deep and picturesque gien, at the nead of a narrow creek rinning up from Courtmacsherry bay: the environs are very interesting, and richly wooded. Kilbrittain castle, for several centuries the principal residence of the Mac Carthy-Reaghs, is said to have been built by one of the De Courceys, lords of Kinsale. When this castle was up, it was a stately building, environed with a large bawn, and fortified by six turrets on the walls. It was taken down about a century and a-half ago by Jonas Stawell, esq, who erected the present mansion on its site, now the seat of Colonel Alcock-Stawell, D.L, J.P. Protestant and R. C. churches. The land is generally good, and well cultivated.

KILDORRERY.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 26 miles north of Cork by road, and 39 via Ballyhooly (G. S. & W. Ry); 11 from Mallow (head office), and 5½ from Ballyhooly. Kildorrery, an open, dry, and healthy place, near the borders of Limerick, stands on the crown of a hill of considerable eminence. It is supposed that the church founded by St Molaga lay about a mile to the north-east of Kildorrery, on the bend of the river Funcheon, at present the site of considerable ruin; near which is St. Molaga's well. There is a ruined church in Labha-Molaga middle, 8 miles north-east of Kildorrery, and 33 north-west of Mitchelstown; these ruins are of great antiquity, and date back to the 7th century; the masonry is cyclopean and massive. Here there is a kind of cist—consisting of a large flag stone, standing on two side stones, and having an open space underneath—known as St. Molaga's bed. With the exception of some mountain pasture, the land in this district is chiefly under tillage, and in general good, and there is an abundance of The districts outlying Kildorrery are-Ballingyroe and Scart, adjacent; Farahy, I mile; Glenahulla, Graigue, and Marshalstown, 2 miles; and Straherla 3 miles. KILLAVULLEN (or Killawillin).

Sub post-office, on the southern banks of the Blackwater, 18 miles from Cork, 7 east of Mallow (head office), and one from Castletownroche (station G. S. & W. Ry). is picturesquely situated at the foot of the range called the Nagle mountains, from the name of the family that for several generations possessed this district. The Blackwater is here crossed by a stone bridge of three arches, at the south end of which is an immense limestone rock overhanging the river, wherein are subterranean caverns, of considerable extent, formed by the action of the water. The road from the bridge winds round the steep rock, and branches off towards the east through a romantic mountain pass on the old Fermoy road. Ballymacmoy house stands on the summit of the rock before mentioned, and commands an extensive view of the surrounding scenery, which is here of the most picturesque and diversified character. The air is salubrious, and the river affords excellent salmon and trout fishing. Protestant and R. C. churches. Near the village are the ruins of Monanimy; there are traces of very large buildings, thought to belong to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. Monanimy castle is in a good state of preservation, and The celebrated Edmund Burke passed his early childhood at Ballyduff, the inhabited. residence of his maternal grandfather, and he often revisited the place in subsequent years; at Ballygriffin may be seen the house in which the equally celebrated Nano Nagle was born. About a mile eastward of the village is Carrigacunna castle, a square massive tower 70 feet high. This castle was the residence of Sir Richard Nagle, attorney-general for Ireland in the reign of James II, and who accompanied that monarch into exile.

KILLEAGH.

Sub post-office, 22 miles from Cork (head office), and 7 from Youghal. There is a station at Killeagh (Cork & Youghal Ry): three trains a day—fares from Cork, single 3/10, 2/10, 1/8, return 5/9, 4/3, 2/9. The name is thought to mean either grey church—cill-liath, or grey wood—coill-liath. The village consists of two streets, neatly built; Protestant and Catholic churches. The pretty little river Dissour, which flows by here, and discharges itself into Youghal bay, is remarkable for its serpentine course. A nunnery of canonesses is said to have been established at Killeagh in the 7th century, by St. Abhan, who appointed St. Conchere as prioress: its site was were the parish church now stands. The principal demesnes are Mount Uniacke, Dromdihy house, and Aghadoe house; the latter place, the seat of Sir William de Capel Brooke, bart, is not more remarkable for natural beauties than for its having remained in the same family more than 600 years; being grauted in 1172 to Philip de Capell, lineal ancestor of the present baronet. The ruins of Inchiquin castle stand about one and a-half miles south of Killeagh. This manor was formerly a distinct barony in itself, belonging to the house of Ormond.

KILLINARDRISH and AGHINAGH.

Sub post office, 20 miles west of Cork (head office), 5 miles east of Macroom, 4 from Crookstown station, and 3 from Coachford. The principal object of interest in this district is the picturesque ruins of Carrigadrohid castle, before the walls of which Lord Broghill hung the Catholic bishop of Ross. This castle, like the celebrated Mäuse-Thurm on the Rhine, stands on a steep rock in the midst of the Lee: a bridge on either side conmeets it with the banks of the river, whence the castle derives its designation—signifying the "rock of the bridge." It was built by the Mac Carthys in the 14th century, who committed it to the keeping of the O'Learys; it is now the property of R.W.T. Bowen, J.P. This bridge and castle formed a noted pass in the civil war of 1641, and was often taken and recovered by the parliamentarians and royalists. The church of Aghinagh stands on an elevation on the north banks of the Lee, and, having a square tower, has an imposing effect when seen at a distance; the parish church of Cannaway is also near Killinardrish.

KILWORTH.

Sub post-office, 24½ miles by road and 40 by rail (viå Fermoy) north-east of Cork, 2½ from Fermoy, and 24½ from Mallow (head office). The town of Kilworth, situate at the foot of a large ridge of mountains of that name, and on the banks of the river Funcheon, consists of one irregular street; with some good houses. This neighbourhood was the scene of some battles in the time of the civil war. The strong castle of Cloghlea, built by the Condons, was taken by the Parliamentarian soldiers, under Sir Charles Vavasor, in June, 1643; who were immediately afterwards defeated, with a loss of 600 men, by the Irish party. From this castle is a subterraneous passage to the Funcheon. Moore Park, the seat of the Earl of Mountcashel, is situated on the north banks of the Funcheon. The demesne consists of a fine mansion and a deer park, commanding magnificent views of the windings of the river.

KINGWILLIAMSTOWN, and Parish of Nohavaldaly.

Sub post-office, on the borders of the county Kerry, 53 miles north-west of Cork (via Mallow, G. S. & W. Ry., thence by the Tralee and Killarney railway to the Rathmore railway station); 15 miles from Kanturk, and 7 from the Rathmore railway station. Knocknagree is distant 2 miles from the railway station of Rathmore. Kingwilliamstown, called after William IV., is of recent erection, and formed part of the forfeited territory of the O'Keeffes. The O'Keeffes were an important southern sept, styled princes of Fermoy, their territory having extended over what has been since denominated the baronics of Fermoy, Orrery, Kilmore, and Clongibbons. The confiscation, resulting from the Norman invasion, the Desmond war, and the civil war in 1641, greatly despoiled this family. The last parcel of their territory, and still bearing testimony of its ancient proprietary by its designation of "Pobble O'Keeffe," remained in the hands of the Crown as an undisposed forseiture until a very recent period. A sum of £25,000 was expended by the Crown and Grand Juries of Cork and Kerry, in draining, planting, building, and road making; the improved land was then put up for purchase. Its present proprietor, Nicholas Dunscombe, J.P., of Kingwilliamstown house, has also expended a great deal of money, and displayed much skill and enterprise in their improvement. The town, which has been doubled in size by Mr. Dunscombe, is nicely situate on the banks of the Blackwater, in a valley about 4 miles from the source of the Blackwater at Muinganine-near where the great Earl of Desmond had his hiding place, prior to his capture by Kelly; and the spot to this day is called "Reylan-tee-an-Earla." The river Blackwater separates the town from Kerry. The new road from the county Cork to Tralee, Castleisland, and Abbeyfeale, county Limerick, passes through Kingwilliamstown. Anciently this part of the county Cork formed a portion of the Kingdom of Kerry; at the period of the Down survey it was annexed to Cork.

KINSALE BOROUGH.

Head post, market, seaport, and garrison town, 24 miles south of Cork by rail (Cork and Kinsale Junction Ry), and about 18 by road. The town is built on the side of Compass hill, at the mouth of the river Bandon, which is crossed by a ferry, and also by a bridge about two miles from the town. Some of the streets are so steep as not to admit carriages. The public buildings consist of Protestant and Catholic churches, a convent, Carmelite friary, two Methodist chapels, endowed school, town hall, prison, workhouse, custom house, assembly rooms, and military barracks. The town is supported chiefly by the resort of summer visitors for sea bathing, and its fisheries. The harbour of Kinsale is capacious, deep, and well sheltered, capable of accommodating between 300 and 400 sail of vessels at a cable's length from the shore; it is defended at the entrance by a strong fort, mounting six 24 and six 32-pounders, called Charles fort—so named in honour of Charles II.—erected by the Duke of Ormond in 1681. On the tongue of land round which the Bandon river winds are the vestiges of the Old Fort, that give a very correct idea of Spanish engineering and fortification in the days of Elizabeth and Philip of Spain. Kinsale is the great centre of the mackerel and herring fishery of the South of Ireland, the Cork markets being almost exclusively supplied from it. Sprats and herrings are taken in seines, within the bay as far as the Old Head, four miles south of the town; mackerel, haddock, turbot, gurnet, cod, ling, haak, and conger eels in the open sea, and salmon in the river. The fishermen are esteemed the most skilful of any in Ireland, both in their own calling, and as pilots. The Kinsale mackerel fishery is considerable. Fifteen years ago, only 25 local hookers and 10 Isle of Man luggers were engaged in the fishery. Last season (1874) there was at Kinsale a fleet of about 320 sail of first-class Irish, Manx, English, and Scotch fishing luggers, taking an aggregate quantity, for twelve weeks, of 120,000 boxes, or 14,400,000 mackerel, the value of which was about £100,000. The fleet was manned by 2,240 men and 320 boys; there were 500 men engaged in packing and preparing the fish for despatch, and seven steamers and sixteen cutters in carrying it to English ports. Twelve schooners were used as store vessels in the harbour, and 3,000 tons of ice used in curing the fish. The value of the fleet of 320 sail, as they ride in Kinsale harbour, with fishing gear, equipped for sea, would be about £160,000. The fish merchants had in use about 40,000 fish boxes, of the value of four shillings each, for packing for export, and 60 yawls, of from 24 to 27 feet keel, to attend the fishing fleet. Besides the above fleet, there were about 300 sail of French fishing boats off the coast-vessels nearly three times as large as our boats, and each manned by 25 to 30 men and boys. These vessels carried large cargoes of salted mackerel to the French ports. Kinsale (Ceann-saile, "the head of the sea") is one of the oldest corporate towns in Ireland, its first charter being granted in 1333, by Edward III., as a reward for loyalty, with power to the townsmen to elect a in 1333, by Edward III., as a teward to loyary, which peaks to sovereign and burgesses, co longer exists; the paving, cleansing, lighting, etc., is vested in 15 commissioners, under the provisions of the "Towns' Improvement Act." The borough returns one member to Parliament. The town has been subjected to several sieges. It was several times in the occupation of Spaniards, who had possession of it so far back as 1380; and who, in 1601—under the command of Don Juan de Aquila, largely aided by Hugh O'Neil and other Irish chieftains-for a considerable time kept at bay the English army under Lord President Sir George Carew. On the 12th March, 1689, James II. arrived in Kinsale harbour, with a French fleet and army, and there commenced the struggle to regain the throne he had abdicated. In 1689, the old and new forts and Ringrone castle were taken by the Duke of Marlborough—after a gallant defence, however, when the garrisor was allowed to march out "upon honourable conditions." These were the last and most important political and warlike events connected with this old corporate town. St. Gobban, a disciple of St. Ailbe, founded an abbey of regular canons here in the 7th century. There was also an abbey of Carmelites, or White friars, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, founded by Robert Fitz-Richard Balrain in 1334. The parish church is dedicated to St. Multose, a female saint, by whom it is said to have been erected in the 14th century.

In this church are several interesting old monuments. On the outskirts of the town is the village of Scilly, inhabited by fishermen. These were originally an English colony who settled here after the defeat of the Spaniards in Elizabeth's reign. Dr. Smith, writing about 150 years since, says: "They never marry out of the village, so that they are all related to each other." Three miles north-west of Kinsale is Dunderrow, so named from a large Danish encampment near it. Dunderrow belonged to the Roches, who had a castle near the banks of the Bandon river. The military barrack stands on a fine eminence, and contains accommodation for 600 men, to which is about being added "married quarters." Kinsale gives the title of Baron to the De Courceys, descendants of Milo de Courcey, son of the Earl of Ulster. John Fitzroy de Courcey (of Ringrone, Kingsbridge, Devonshire), the present and 31st Baron Kingsale, Baron Courcey and Baron of Ringrone, Premier Baron of Ireland, succeeded his kinsman 15th April, 1874.

N. J. WALSH,

Successor to John Lordan,

WINE AND SPIRIT MERCHANT, KINSXLE.

This old-established House is celebrated for the purity of the WINES and SPIRITS it has sent out for more than half a century.

The present proprietor has taken over from MR. LORDAN Six Thousand Gallons of Whiskey, together with a corresponding Stock of WINES and BRANDIES, all in bond. This will be a guarantee to the public that they will at all times be able to get OLD and well-matured Wines and Spirits from the establishment.

The present proprietor calls attention to his Special Blend of very fine OLD IRISH WHISKIES, to which he has given the name "OLD HEAD." Bottles will bear his Registered Trade Mark—"The Old Head, Kinsale, Ireland"—and, as a protection to the public, will have a label over the neck and cork, bearing the words, "WALSH, KINSALE" on one side, and "WHISKEY, IRELAND" on the other, with his Trade Mark ON THE CORK in the centre.

LEAP.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 49 miles south of Cork, 23 from Bandon (head office), 11 from Dunmanway, 4½ from Rosscarbery, and 6 from Skibbereen. The watering-place of Leap is situated at the head of Glandore harbour, in a glen called "the Leap"—hence its name. The neighbourhood is very romantic and beautifully picturesque, being surrounded by mountain, wood, and water, charmingly diversified. To the rear is a range of majestic hills; fronting it, an extensive and richly wooded demesne (Myross wood), extending two miles along the water's edge; and crossing the glen before mentioned is the beautiful and picturesque road from Rosscarbery to Skibereen. The Protestant church of Leap is a handsome building, with a lofty square tower; the R. C. church is large and commodious. There is a very respectable hotel in the village; cars from Bandon to Skibbereen, with mail, passengers, etc., call twice a day. The celebrated Benduff and Froe slate quarries are about four miles from the village. The bay is spacious and secure, and during the mackerel season wears a very animated appearance, the fishing roads lying quite near the mouth of it. There are several small lakes, stored with trout; many of these have small floating islands. On a hill near Ballin lough is an ancient rath, said to have a subterraneous passage (guarded by fairies) to the bottom of the lake, where flourishes the Thierna-na-oge—"the land of perpetual youth." At Carrigfadda is another ancient rath, where there is supposed to be a "wishing-chair," over which the fairies keep watch and ward.

Sub post office, and market town, 341/2 miles north of Cork, and 6 from Buttevant (head office). The castle of Liscarroll was ruined in the civil wars of 1641. In 1642 it was besieged for thirteen days by about 7,000 of the Irish party; on the day following its surrender a bloody engagement was fought beneath its walls by the Parliamentarians under Inchiquin and the royalists under Mountgarret, resulting in the victory of the former; later on, in and the royalists under Mountgarret, resulting in the victory of the former; later on, in 1646, it was again besieged, and taken without opposition by the royalists, consisting of 5,000 foot and 500 horse, under Lord Castlehaven. The castle is a rectangle, 240 feet by 120, flanked by four circular and two quadrangular towers. It is said to have been built in the reign of King John, and was for many years possessed by the Barrys, before it belonged at the time of the civil war. To the north of Liscarroll is the fine old mansion of Altamira, formerly occupied by the Purcell family. It is well known as the rendezvous of the Duhallow hounds. To the south of Liscarroll is Highfort house. It was in this mansion that the venerable Mr. Purcell (afterwards Sir Idhp.—""the blood, red knight" mansion that the venerable Mr. Purcell (afterwards Sir John-"the blood-red knight," either killed or wounded no less than five of the Noonans of Tullylease, who came to rob him on the night of March 11, 1811. The Noonan gang bore the sobriquet of "Jackets," and were previously notorious for their daring robberies. For his singular intrepidity on this oceasion, Mr. Purcell was knighted. Dromina house, three miles north of Liscarroll, was built in the beginning of the 18th century, and has been occupied for many years by the O'Leary family. At a place called Killabrahar, between Liscarroll and Charleville. was formerly a ruined monastery. Near this town are several subterraneous passages, and to the south is a hole, called Kate's hole, said to be unfathomable. This neighbourhood rests partly on the carboniferous shale, and partly on the limestone, formation. The shaly lands are steep, and retentive and cold in their character; but the lands in the limestone district are among the richest in the country, especially those of Annagh and Kigrogan.

LISLEVANE-see Timoleague.

Sub post office, 31 miles from Cork, 11 south of Bandon (head office), and 2½ from Timoleague. Lislevane is situated in the parish of Abbeymahon, on the promontory of Seven Heads—bounded on the east by Courtmacsherry bay, and on the west by Clonakilty bay.

LISSARDA.

Sub post office, 21 miles west of Cork, and 5 from Macroom. At Dooniskey is a station (Cork and Macroom Ry.)—four trains daily between this and Cork; fares, single 3/8, 2/8, 1/8, return 5/6, 4/, 2/8. Warren's court, the seat of Sir Augustus Warren, bart., consists of a fine old-fashioned mansion, partly built of hewn stone; with well-stocked deer park and ornamental lake, orchards, gardens, etc. This demesne comprises the townland of Kilbarry, belonging to the parish of Ballinadee, though in the midst of Kilmurry parish. In Kilmurry stands the ruin of Clodagh castle, once a stronghold of the Mac Sweeneys, a military clan, who formed the gallowglasses of the Thane of Muskery. This family was anciently famous for their hospitality. On the west side of the high road, near Dooniskey, it is said they had a stone set up, with an Irish inscription, signifying to all passengers to repair to the house of Mr. Edmund Mac Sweeney, for entertainment. The river Bride bounds the southern portion of this district.

LITTLE ISLAND.

Sub post-office, 5 miles by rail (Cork and Queenstown Ry) from Cork (head office)trains nearly every hour between this and Cork; fares, single 8d, 6d, 4d, return 1/, 9d, 6d. Little Island-so called to distinguish it from Great Island-is situated on an estuary of the Lee, and separated by a branch of that river from the parish of Caherlag, with which it communicates by a causeway of hewn stone. The land is chiefly under tillage, and in a high state of cultivation, and the island is embellished with several handsome seats-a pure atmosphere, fertile soil, and beautiful sylvan scenery, having induced several wealthy families to settle here. In the demesne of Little Island house are the ruins of an ancient church or oratory, formerly called Sancti Lappani, and the ruined tower of Wallinstown castle; they are situated nearly adjoining each other, under some aged trees. There is a very handsome newly-built little Protestant church on the island, dedicated to St. Lappan. Limestone abounds, and is worked to a considerable extent for agricultural and building purposes, and as ballast for vessels, for which latter purpose it is supplied by a contractor to the Cork Harbour Board. A creosote factory is established at Little Island, for the purpose of working up the coal tar produced by the Cork Gas Co, and other similar works in the South of Ireland.

MACROOM.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, and market town, 25 miles by rail (Cork and Macroom Ry.) west of Cork (head office). Macroom, formerly spelt Macroomp, is thought by Windell to be derived from Maigh-cruim, the plain of Crom—who was the Supreme Power of the ancient Irish; his altar was the Crom-leac, and his priest the Crom-thear. For centuries after the introduction of christianity, the bards held their assemblies here. The town is situate on the Sullane—a river which, for extent and beauty, rivals the Lee—and surrounded by an extensive and fertile vale, bounded in the distance by a range of rugged hills. The Catholic church is a spacious structure, with an embattled helfery exceed in the 18th century; and from its situation on the slope of a bill. battled belfrey, erected in the 18th century; and, from its situation on the slope of a hill; has a very fine appearance at a distance. The castle of Macroom is very ancient, or rather parts of it are of very remote antiquity. Sir R. Cox says it was built in the reign of King John; Windell attributes its erection to the O'Flynns, who once held extensive possessions in this part of the county. The O'Flynns were dispossessed of the castle by Dairmid McCarthy-More, whose clan ruled over Macroom for centuries. The castle consists of one hugh square of masonry, with embattled parapets, of no particular style of architecture -attributable, doubtless, to the fact of each successive occupier having made alterations or additions to it in his own taste; and it is not now easy to distinguish the ancient from the modern portion. Notwithstanding, the castle looks extremely picturesque, with its ivy-mantled walls towering above the Sullane. It is now the residence of Earl Bantry, of the last of "the good old Irish gentlemen." The castle possesses much historical interest. It was besieged in 1602, by Sir Charles Wilmot, when the castle took fire accidentally, and the besieged had to surrender. In 1641 it was again burnt down, but was rebuilt the same year, by Lord Clancarthy. In 1650 it was garrisoned by the Roman Catholic bishop of Ross; but being threatened by an imposing force, under Broghill, the bishop set fire to it, and concentrated his men in the park, where, after a brief but bloody struggle, he was defeated and made prisoner. This bishop was afterwards hanged by Broghill before the walls of Carrigadrohid castle. Ireton, when lord president of Munster, caused the castle to be burnt down; and it was again besieged by the troops of James II. A celebrated battle is said to have been fought a little to the south-east of the castle, between Brian Boroihme, King of Munster, and the O'Mahonys of Carbery; the latter were assisted by a large body of Danes. This battle was to revenge the murder of Mahoun, Brian's brother and predecessor. The Annals of Innisfallen say that Mahoun was murdered at a place, supposed to be the Mushera mountains, north-west of Macroom, where it is stated that there is a heap of stones called "the Tomb of Mahoun." Among the many handsome residences on the banks of the Sullane, which joins the Lee about three miles below Macroom, the following places are conspicuous: Mount Massy, Rockborough, Sandy hill, and Firville. On or near the river Sullane-into which the rivers called Bughill, Foherish, and Lany, all run—are the ruined castles of Carrigapooka and Mashanaglass. Mashanaglass was formerly a fortalice of McSweeneys, forfeited in 1641; it now consists of a high square tower. Near this place is a rugged and romantic glen, called Glencaum—the crooked glen. Between Macroom and Kilcrea there are several castles, once the strongholds of the McSweeneys, feudatorics to the lords of Muskery. At the junction of the Foherish with the Sullane, west of Macroom, stands the castle of Carrig-a-Phooka, or the Rock of the Spirit. It is now a single tower, somewhat dilapidated, placed on the summit of a solitary rock. It is accessible only by a narrow and slippery ledge of rock. This stronghold belonged to the Mac Carthies of Drishane, and is chiefly memorable as having been the retreat of Cormac Teige Mac Carthy, after the defeat of the Spaniards at Kinsale in 1601. The walls of Carrig-a-Pooka are invested with an additional charm by one of the fairy legends of Ireland—the Phooka, a terrible phantom assuming the form of a wild horse. Near this castle are the remains of a druidical circle. The ruin of the castle of Dundareirke, built by the Mac Carthys, is about a mile south of Carrig-a-Phooka. About half-a-mile to the north-west of Macroom is a chalybeate spring, the waters of which are said to resemble those of Leamington.

side, which forms a portion of the borough. The public buildings consist of Protestant, Catholic, Methodist, and Presbyterian places of worship; convent; Christian Brothers', national, convent, and industrial schools; workhouse, police and militia barracks, courthouse, oridewell, dispensary, spa house, gas-works, branch banks, agricultural and hunt clubs, hotels, extensive flour mills, tanneries, etc. The country seats around it are numerous; and the beauty of its environs, together with the tepid mineral waters for which it is celebrated, have made it a place of fashionable resort, and gained for it the name of the "Irish Bath." The spa was discovered in 1724. The water issues from a limestone rock, and discharges 20 gallons a minute. It contains a great deal of gas, the constituent parts of which are 93'5 of nitrogen, and 6'5 of oxygen; the temperature varies from 66' to 72°. The water, which resembles that of Clifton, near Bristol, is considered a powerful restorative to debilitated constitutions, and likewise efficacious in scrofulous and consumptive diseases. Sir Denham Norreys has erected a new spa-house and baths on the spa walk, and a new castle on his beautiful demesne. The old castle-a noble pile of buildings, ruined during the civil wars of 1641—was built by one of the earls of Desmond, whose property was inherited by Sir Thomas Norreys, lord president of Munster in Elizabeth's reign. The town was once reckoned to be the best village in Ireland. In 1641, at the time of the breaking out of the civil war, it consisted of 200 houses, 30 of which were strongly built and slated. It was incorporated in 1688, but the charter was used only for a short time. The borough returns one member to parliament, and its local government is vested in commissioners under the provisions of Act 9, Geo. iv., c. 82.

There are two mountain ranges in this district, from east to west, with a lower central elevation running midway. The northern range comprises the Ballyhoura and Castleoliver mountains, and is formed of that variety of old red sandstone termed conglomerate or millstone grit. The southern range is known by the name of the Nagle mountains, composed of ordinary old red sandstone. The lower central range referred to, and which rises to an average height of about 500 feet above sea-level, is composed—and is, indeed, a continuation-of the coal measures or carboniferous shale found in the Dromagh colliery district. Repeated searches have been made for coal, but hitherto without success, From the different rock formations, it will at once become evident that a great diversity of soils must present themselves, and a co-relative variation in their fertility. In the valleys between the ranges of hills the Blackwater and Awbeg flow, the plains on either side resting on the mountain limestone. Of these tracts, Rev. Horatio Townsend, M.A., in his "Statistical Survey of county Cork," says :- The calcareous part of the district under consideration presents a most extensive range of land, admirably adapted to the purposes of husbandry. Less luxuriantly rich than the fat and heavy grounds of the county of Limerick, it is more tractable to the operations of culture, from the drier and lighter texture of the soil. The greatest profusion of natural ornament is found on the banks of the rivers, where many spots of peculiar beauty have derived new charms from the taste and assiduity of their respective owners. Some of these improvements are of recent date, and the number will probably experience a rapid increase, so many are the inducements still held out to the admirers of rural elegance,"

MIDLETON.

Head post and market town, 13 miles from Cork (Cork and Youghal Ry); three trains daily between this and Cork—fares, single 2/4, 1/10, 1/, return 3/6, 2/9, 1/8. The rising town of Midleton—so called from its being nearly midway between Cork and Youghal—was originally called Chore Abbey, from the abbey of Mary de Chore, established by the Barrys or Fitzgeralds, about the year 1180. The town is pleasantly situated in the northeast angle of Cork harbour, a river running at each end of it, and the tide flowing up to it: and consists of one main street, uniformly built, with a few off branches, comprising Cork road, Mill road, Charles street, Thomas street, Broderick street, and Park. It has a market house, handsome Protestant and Catholic churches, convent, an endowed school. Christian Brothers schools, bridewell, gasworks, union workhouse, and large distillery. A good business is carried on in the town, notwithstanding its proximity to Cork. Midleton distillery, the property of the Cork Distilleries Company, is one of the largest in the south of Ireland, and gives employment to a large number of persons. Midleton college was founded 1709, by the Lady Elizabeth Villiers. She expended a considerable sum of money in building this house, and settled a good estate on the endowment, for the support of a master, two usher assistants, a writing master, and £50 a year for scholars entered from this school into the university of Dublin. It was at this school that Curran received the first rudiments of education. The town gives title of viscount to the Broderick family. Allan Broderick, of Midleton, lord chancellor of Ireland, was created Baron Broderick, of Midleton, in 1715, reign of George I., and viscount of same 1717. Midleton was a parliamentary borough up to the time of the Union. It received a charter of incorporation from Charles II, dated June 10, 1670, again in 1687, from James II.; and was governed by a sovereign, two bailiffs, and twelve burgesses. The town is now governed by Commissioners, under provisions of the "Towns Improvement Act."

MILFORD.

Sub post-office, 43 miles from Cork, and 8 west of Charleville (head office); situated at the extreme north of the county, on the borders of the county Limerick. The castle of Kilbolane, formerly a seat of the Earls of Desmond, is a fine Anglo-Norman building, said to have been erected, soon after the coming over of Strongbow, by the Cogans—from whom the Desmonds had this estate. It is now a good mansion. Castle-Ishen house, standing near the ruins of castle Ishen, is a fine old-fashioned mansion of the early English style. It was built by the Fitzgeralds, a branch of the house of Desmond, who occupied it up to 1812. Other places in this district are—Prohurst house, Fortwilliam, and the ancient mansion of Gibbingsgrove. The land in the immediate vicinity of Milford village is calcareous and fertile, and mostly under stock for butter and beef; the remainder requires outlay, and is not fit to produce beef. Freemount and Tullylease served by rural messenger from Milford—(see p. 224).

MILLSTREET.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 41 miles north-west of Cork by rail (Cork and Tralee branch G. S. and W. Ry.), and 30 by road; 20 from Mallow, and 13 north of Macroom. Three trains daily between this and Cork: fares, single, 8/-, 6/-, 3/4; return, 13/3, 10/., 5/9. The railway station is distant a mile from the town: post cars attend all trains. The market town of Millstreet is romantically situated, on the south side of the Blackwater, amidst the lofty mountains of Muskery: the road from Cork to Killarney, and that from Mallow to Kenmare, pass through the town. The scenery around is exceedingly interesting, and in its vicinity are several elegant residences. In the town are Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, infantry barracks, market house, There are also, in this district, Catholic churches at Rathduane, Cullen, Demagree, and Kilcorney. There are good fairs he'd in the town on the 1st of every month, and a well known horse fair on the 1st of March. Near the town is Drishane castle, built in 1436 by Dermod McCarthy, and forfeited in 1641. The picturesque castle of Duarrigle overhangs the north banks of the Blackwater; it originally belonged to the sept O'Keeffes, who also owned the castles of Dromsicane and Dromagh. On the south side of the town is the demesne of Mount Leader, the seat of Captain Leader, whose family have been in possession of the property for over two centuries. South of Mount Leader is Kilmeedy, a small castle of the O'Donoghues, now in ruins. The whole district south and south-east of Millstreet abounds with Dividical remains, raths, etc, full of antiquarian interest. The land lying to the south of the town is uneven and mountainous, the soil light and sharp; to the north the country is flat, and of a very heavy rich soil, but wet and damp in winter. Slate is found in several places, also white clay of a tenacious quality; and near Drishane castle is a good bed of limestone. Cullen, 5 miles distant, is served by rural messenger from Millstreet.

MINANE BRIDGE.

Sub post office, 12 miles south of Cork, 8 from Kinsale (head office), and 4 from Carrigaline. Minane lies near the coast, between Crosshaven and Ballyfeard. Ringabella, the residence of Capt S. Hodder, J.P., is near a dangerous sandy bay of the same name. The adjoining coast is unhappily full of melancholy relics of shipwrecks. The Ordnance map has "Killarney steamer wrecked here," at Reanies bay, about four miles west of Ringabella. This steamer was wrecked in 1838, when many persons perished. The osprey, one of the most interesting of predaceous birds, but now rarely seen within the confines of the British isles, is said to breed in the cliffs near Britfieldstown.

MITCHELSTOWN.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 31 miles north-east of Cork, and 47 miles by rail (vid Fermoy); 21 from Mallow (head office), and 9 from Fermoy. It is a thriving market town in the parish of Erigown—near the junction of the counties of Cork, Limerick, Tipperary, and Waterford—and situated in an elevated valley between the Kilworth and Galtee mountains, which rise immediately above the town in splendid abruptness. The famous caves of Mitchelstown are about six miles from the town, just outside the county—in Tipperary. They occur in the carboniferous or mountain limestone, and are remarkable for their extent and the beauty of the stalactites. There are two sets of them: the western-that of Skeeheenarinka-has long been known; the eastern, and more remarkable, was discovered in 1833, by being accidentally penetrated by a limestone quarry. These caves consist of irregular and crossing passages, which lead to several large chambers. Of the latter the Upper Mildle cave is probably the most striking; it measures, in feet, 180 by 80, by 20 in height. The stalactites hanging from the roof, and stalagmites rising from the floor, are very beautiful and curious, assuming every variety of form and every graduation of colour; sometimes they join, and form complete pillars supporting the roof. They form, also, other curious masses, some of which are named, as the Organ, the Table, etc. In some of the chambers the stalagmites rise in the form of massive pyramids, ornamented at the base with successive tiers of crystallizations of the most fanciful forms. The Lower Middle cave is less striking, but of greater height, viz., 35 feet. The Garrett cave measures 255 by 50 feet; its incrustations also are remarkable. The Kingston gallery is perfectly straight, measuring 175 feet, by 7 feet. The whole extent of the galleries and caves is 870 by 572 feet. No bones, etc, were found therein; the caves having been inaccessible until accidentally pierced as above mentioned. A castle was erected at Mitchelstown by Fitzgibbon, the White Knight, from whose heiress, Margaret Fitzgeraid, descend the Earls of Kingston. The present Mitchelstown castle is a magnificent modern castellated building, erected at a cost of £20,000, from designs by Mr. Pain, an architect of Cork. A number of almshouses, called the Kingston Charity College, and a minister's house, have been erected here, to which an endowment of £1,200 a year is attached. The principal buildings in the town consist of Protestant and Catholic churches, convent and schools, Christian Brothers' schools, workhouse, market house, military barracks, accommodating a detachment of 60 men, etc. Colgan says Brigown was a bishopric, founded by St. Finnchua. In 1720 a violent storm threw down the round tower of Brigown, which stood about thirty yards from the south-west angle of the church—now in ruins, a mile east of the town. Archidall says that it was once a remarkable place, and called a city. The holy well of Mitchelstown—dedicated to St. Finnchua—has been an object of pilgrimage for many centuries. A mile west of the town is the ruined castle of Carriganure, built by the Condons. This district is a rich limestone soil; there are marble and limestone quarries—the marble is well marked, and takes a good polish.

MONKSTOWN.

Sub post and money-order office, 8 miles from Cork (head office), and 2 from Passage. River steamers ply between Monkstown, Passage, and Queenstown, nearly every hour; fares, single 1/3, 11d., 8d., return 1/10, 1/4, 11d. The Citizen river steamers, direct from Cork, call at Queenstown about six times a day during the summer months. There is a ferry from Monkstown to Rushbrook. This fashionable watering-place is beautifully and romantically situated on the shore of what may be styled the inner harbour. It was formerly confined in the gorge of a deep and richly-wooded glen, but has gradually extended itself along the shore; and now consists of terraces of excellent houses, pretty villa residence, handsome Protestant and Catholic churches, three hotels, etc. The newlybuilt Catholic church is a richly Decorated building, situated on the slope of a hill, and forms a graceful object in the landscape. Monkstown castle, though now a complete ruin, was in repair and used as a barrack during the great French war. It was built in 1638, by the family of Cody. The building was large, and flanked by four square towers. The founder's tomb may be seen in the ancient burial ground of the ruined chapel or chantry of Temple-en-Bryn, to the rear of the castle. He died in 1660, and a long inscription in Latin records his virtues. The place is said to derive its name from a small community of Benedictine monks, called Legan abbey, belonging to the priory of St. John, Waterford; and that the monks received a grant of the land from the MacCarthys, in the 14th century.

Meelin is 3½ miles north of Newmarket. Newmarket formed a part of the forfeited estates of the Mac Aulifies, and was granted to the Aldworth family, who established a new market here—hence the name: it consists of one regular street, and is a considerable thoroughfare into county Kerry. The Protestant church of Newmarket is a handsome structure of hewn limestone, with a lofty tower and spire; and the R.C. church is a spacious edifice, the altar of which is a copy of that of the ancient abbey of Quin, and is much admired. The air is salubrious, and the neighbourhood abounds with interesting scenery. Newmarket house, the seat of Richard O. Aldworth, J.P., the lord of the manor, and a descendant of the St.

Legers, is a stately old-fashioned building, composed of two regular fronts of hewn stone, situated in a demesne richly embellished with ancient timber. The Priory, Newmarket, the residence of the celebrated John Philpot Curran, a native of this town, was the favourite resort of many distinguished literary and political characters, who used to meet under the auspices of Lord Avonmore (Barry Yelverton), also a native of this place; and, from their conviviality at the Priory, obtained the appellation of "the Monks of the Screw." Of the ancient castle of McAuliffe, formerly the chief seat of the sept of that name, the foundations alone can now be traced.

NEWTOWN-SHANDRUM and DROMINA.

The sub post office of Newtown is 42 miles north of Cork, and 4 from Charleville (head office). Dromina lies between Newtown and Freemount, 6 miles south-west of Charleville. A large tract of the land in this district was reclaimed, at a great expense, from a deep and dangerous morass; it now consists of fine plantations and well improved pasture and tillage lands. It was at Newtown that the celebrated flat races of Newtown were annually held, for six consecutive days, from 1806 to 1813. There is no Protestant place of worship. The principal residences are Miltown castle, Dromina house, and Teeveny house. On the Miltown demesne are vestiges of a castle of the Fitzgibbons. Maurice Fitzgerald, of Miltown, in the reign of Elizabeth, slew John Mac John Fitzgerald, of Kilbolane, and fourteen of his followers, being assisted by four of his sons; Fitzgerald having instigated the Earl of Desmond to hang one of Fitzgibbon's family a little before. This castle was of some strength; it was unsuccessfully besieged by the Irish party in the civil war of 1641.

OVENS.

Sub post office, 9½ miles west of Cork, and 3½ from Ballincollig. Within a quarter mile of Ovens is the Kilumney station (Cork and Macroom Ry)—trains four times a day; fares, single 2/, 1/6, 10d., return 3/, 2/3, 1/4. Near the bridge of Ovens over the river Bride is the entrance to the celebrated limestone caves, which Smith, in his history of Cork describes as 18 feet high, but from the accumulation of rubbish they are now not more than 3 feet high, and are nearly filled with water. They branch off into several ramifications, and from the roofs of some of them depend stalactites of various forms; their dimensions have never been satisfactorily ascertained. Grange is the site of an abbey, said to have been founded by St. Cera, who died in 679. The Protestant church is a neat ancient structure, the Roman Catholic church a handsome edifice of hewn limestone.

PASSAGE WEST and GLENBROOK.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 6 miles from Cork (head office). Passage is the terminus of the Cork, Blackrock, and Passage Railway; trains every hour during the day between this and Cork—fares, single 1/2, 10d. 7d., return 1/6, 1/2, 9d. Steamers in connection with trains ply between Passage, Glenbrook, Monkstown, Ringaskiddy, Queenstown, Crosshaven, and East Ferry; and the direct steamers from Cork call here. There is a ferry from Passage to Carrigaloe. The Bristol, London, and Liverpool channel boats land their passengers at the quay at Passage, and vessels of large tonnage moor off this part of the river. The busy town of Passage is well situated on the southern banks of the inner harbour of Cork; and consists of 400 houses, including two or three good terraces, a line of houses running along the river, and many excellent villa residences. There are Protestant and Catholic churches, Wesley chapel, convent, three hotels, wharfs, docks, etc. The period of the extension and improvement of Passage, which is not even mentioned in Smith's history of Cork, is uncertain; the cause, however, is sufficiently obvious in its excellent and sheltered situation, just at the termination of the deep harbour, and in its great salubrity. The most important establishment in Passage is the Cork Harbour Docks and Warehouses Co.'s premises: they consist of a system of graving-docks, shipbuilding yards, and warehouses, worthy of any harbour in the world. In 1874, the Faraday, the largest ship in the mercantile marine excepting the Great Eastern, was accommodated there. The registered tonnage of the Faraday is 5000 tons; and she had, when in the Passage docks for repairs, 4500 tons of cable and 1200 tons of coal on board. The company employ about 350 persons, for whose accommodation they have erected a number of dwellings.

At Glenbrook, a rising bathing-place half a mile below Passage, is the Victoria hotel and baths. It is a handsome and effective building, with tapering minarets in the Moresque style. Behind the baths is Carrigmahon—Dr. Curtin's Hydropathic establishment,—a fine mansion, commanding a splendid prospect. The Turkish bath and hydropathic system is conducted with great ability and professional skill by the proprietor. The Cork Harbour Rowing Club have a club-house at Glenbrook, and annual regattas are held there under the auspices of its members. There is a chapel-of-ease to the parish church of Marmullane in Glenbrook school-house.

As a marine residence, Passage, Glenbrook, Monkstown, and Queenstown, possess more than ordinary attractions. They are easily accessible from the city, and from all the chief points of interest in this part of the county. Inland the country is full of charm, and offers a constant change of picturesque and enlivening rambles.

QUEENSTOWN.

Head post-town, 12 miles from Cork by rail, on the south side of the Great Island. It is the terminus of the Cork and Queenstown Ry.; trains every hour during the day between this and Cork—fares, single 1/4, 1/, 8d., return 2/, 1/6, 1/. The Citizens river steamers, direct from Cork, and the steamers of the Cork and Passage Ry, ply to and from the town. Queenstown is also the port of call of eight lines of Transatlantic steamers, and the station of the flag-ship of the naval commander-in-chief of the coast of Ireland. In the town are three yacht clubs, and one of the finest hotels in the kingdom (the Queen's), besides several very respectable hotels and inns. It contains places of worship for Episcopalians, Catholics, Presbyterians, and Wesleyans; and a splendid Catholic cathedral, estimated to cost £100,000, is in course of erection. The Royal Cork Yacht Club, whose station is at Queenstown, is the oldest of its kind in the United Kingdom. It owes its origin to the Water Club of Cork Harbour, established in 1720. The R.C.Y.C. received the Admiralty warrant in 1831 to fly the old flag (burgee) of 1720, with "a harp and crown on a green field in the centre." The Royal Western Yacht Club of Ireland, established in the centre. lished in 1827, obtained an Admiralty warrant in 1832, and their burgee is blue, with the royal crown surrounded by a wreath of shamrocks. The third, the Queenstown Model Yacht Club, is only recently established. The two former have commodious club-houses at Queenstown, and are famous for their annual regattas. As a watering-place, Queenstown ranks with the best in the kingdom. The shore is covered with villas, which rise above each other in terraces, surrounded by luxuriant foliage. Queenstown was formerly called Cove: it received its present designation from Her Majesty, on the occasion of her visit in 1849, in compliance with an address from the inhabitants, presented by Mr. Philip Scott. In 1786, Cove is described as a small village, consisting of a few huts. The initiative in the improvements that have been made here within the last few years, was taken by James Scott and Co., who erected Westbourne place, Scott's square, the Upper and Lower Park, Bellevue terrace, etc. Its salubrity and equibility of climate, cause it to be much frequented by valetudinarians and summer visitors. Of the mildness of its climate, the following is a record for eight months:-

April. May. June. July. Nov. Dec. Jan. Feb. Mean highest... 53 ... 63 ... 63 ... 70 ... 57 ... 52 ... 49 ... 50 ,, lowest ... 47 ... 50 ... 50 ... 51 ... 47 ... 46 ... 43 ... 43

A splendid promenade along the shore (erected in 1848 by Lord Midleton) connects the town with the suburb of Rushbrook; consisting of handsome villas and newly-built Protestant church. Wolfe, the author of the lines on the burial of Sir John Moore, and Thomas Tobin, author of the "Honeymoon," etc, are interred in the burial-ground of the ancient and ruined church of Clonmel, about a mile to the rear of Queenstown. At the west side of the Great Island (or Barrymore Island as if was whilom called) stands Belvelly castle, built by the Hodnetts—at the foot of the bridge which connects it with Fota island. One of the square towers is still standing, and in good preservation. It is 60 feet high, with a breadth at base of 30 feet. The Four Masters, under the age of the world 2859, state that Nemedius, a chieftain who came from the Euxine sea, together with 2000 of his followers, died of a pestilence in the island of Ard-Neimhidh—the ancient name of the Great Island. A battle was also fought here in 125 between Ængus, King of Ireland, and Niadh Nuaget, a tributary prince, in which the latter recovered the crown of Munster; and in the 12th century the island maintained its independence against the English, for some time after they had acquired possession of Cork and adjacent country.

A. H. Smith Barry, of Fota, the lineal representative of the Barrymore family, is patentee—lord of the manor. The Barrymore title became extinct in 1823.

The magnificent harbour of Cork is pre-eminent for its capacity and safety. Exclusive of its numerous creeks and bays, it is four miles in length by two in breadth, completely landlocked, and capable of sheltering the whole British navy. Its entrance is by a channel two miles long and one broad, defended by forts (Camden and Carlisle) on each side, and by others in the interior. On Rochespoint (four miles from Queenstown), at the right-hand of the entrance, is a lighthouse, 49 feet high, and 98 feet above the sea, showing a red revolving light. There is a fixed white light at the bottom of the tower. In a single year two and a-half million tons of shipping entered the harbour, besides 300,000 for the local coasting trade of Cork. A deep-water quay, of about 300 feet in length, is now being constructed at Queenstown, and a boat harbour at Copper point. An apparatus for giving Greenwich time daily, for shipping purposes, has been recently erected here.

Within Cork harbour are six islands, viz.: Great, Little, Fota, Spike, Haulbowline, and Rocky; the latter island is an important government powder magazine. Haulbowline, a depot for naval and military stores, was so called from a chain or cable being formerly drawn from Whitepoint across the channel to Haulbowline, and made fast to the bow of a vessel: it was hauled up every night to prevent vessels passing through the narrow channel in the dark. This island was anciently called Inis-Tinneach, or Fox Island. Spike Island is directly in front of Queenstown: it commands the mouth of the harbour, and, from its position, forms a natural and admirable breakwater. The island is about a mile in circumference, and used as a convict depot. The prisoners, who vary from 500 to 800, are chiefly employed in the fortifications of the island, and the Royal Naval Dockyard at Haulbowline. Spike is also an important military station, with a strong fort. The fort is nearly rectangular, with six bastions, mounting 28 guns, and two 25-ton guns. Ancient Irish MSS state that St. Cairthage, or Mochuda, established a monastery on Pick (now Spike) island, and that "Pick island is a most holy place, and most pious people reside in it perpetually." The Government Dockyard, now in construction, is intended to comprise a basin of twelve acres, and wharf accommodation of 2000 feet. Camden and Carlisle forts, at the mouth of the harbour, have sea batteries of heavy guns, and formidable land fortifications. There are five martello towers in the harbour: three at the back of the Great Island, one at Haulbowline, and another to the south-east of Ringaskiddy. On the western side of the harbour, at the mouth of the Carrigaline river, is the high round headland called Currabinny. Smith says, "on its summit is one of the ancient tumuli, raised to the memory of some Irish or Danish hero in former ages." At the back of the Great Island, near the south-eastern extremity of the harbour, is the embouchure of a stream, which flows through beautiful scenery to the East Ferry, Ballinacurra, and Midle-The Great Island is approached by three ferries: the western, between Passage and Carrigaloe; the middle between Monkstown and near Rushbrook docks; and the East Ferry, from a point between Eastgrove, the beautiful residence of Mr. Bagwell, and Garranekinefeake. The Rushbrook docks form a portion of the premises of the Cork-Harbour Docks and Warehouses Company, whose chief establishment is at Passage. These docks are capacious, 420 feet long, by 60 feet wide.

RATHCORMAC.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 17½ miles from Cork, and 4½ from Fermoy (head office). Rathcormac is a pleasantly situated little town, near the Bride, and has Protestant and Catholic places of worship, session house, and constabulary barracks. Near it are many pleasant country residences and well-planted demesnes. It was formerly a market town and parliamentary borough—sending two members to the Irish-Parliament up to the Union. One of its last representatives was Curran, the distinguished orator, advocate, and patriot. The town belonged to a branch of the Barry family, seated in that district for about 500 years; David de Barry, of Rathcormac, sat in the upper house, in a parliament held in 1302, 30th of Edward I. The former residence of the De Barrys is in possession of W. A. Stawell-Riversdale. To the north of Rathcormac are the Nagle mountains, the last of which, to the east, is named Cairn-Tierna—the Thane's heap; said to take its name from the thane or lord of this part of the county holding judicial assemblies thereon. The principal landowner in Rathcormae is W. A. S. Riversdale. There is a tan yard and flour mill here, both of which are now idle

RINGASKIDDY.

Sub post-office, 9 miles from Cork (head office), 3 from Passage, and 2½ from Queenstown. The steamers of the C. B. & P. Ry. call here, from Passage and Queenstown: fares from Cork, single 1/4, 1/-, 8d., return 2/-, 1/6, 1/-. The pretty marine village of Ringaskiddy—or Rinnaskiddy, the "Promontory of Skiddy," a family of Danish descent, whose name often occurs in local history-lies opposite Monkstown, on the south side of Cork harbour. This neighbourhood, including Ringaskiddy, Ballybricken, Fort Prospect, Currabinny, and Coolmore (which form a peninsula), were called in the old Irish MSS. the Long-a-Gragan—"the ship of Cogan." In the parish of Barnahely are the ruins of an old castle of the De Cogans, incorporated with a modern structure called Castle Warren. Above a doorway of cut stone is an effigy of a knight; and near by is the graveyard of Barnahely, where tradition says Milo de Cogan, one of the two knights to whom Cork was originally granted by Henry II., is buried. "Ballybricken," says Bishop Dives Downes, writing in 1700, "is supposed to be the same with Templebrackney, in the Visitation Books." Shannon park was formerly the seat of the Earls of Shannon, who had a house and a fine park here. There are 12 men of the Royal Artillery stationed at Ringaskiddy, under the command of the officer of that corps at Spike Island.

RIVERSTOWN.

Sub post-office, 5 miles from Cork (head office), and 2 from Dunkettle—(Cork and Queenstown Ry). The picturesque hamlet of Riverstown is situated in a fertile and richly-planted valley near the confluence of two small rivers—hence its name. Here are to be had some of the finest prospects in the county, and in the immediate neighbourhood are numerous large and handsome houses. There are large flour, paper, and woollen mills, etc. in the neighbourhood, and all the adjacent lands are well cultivated. About a mile to the north-east is the Protestant parish church of Kilroan, a small edifice in the early English style.

ROCHESTOWN.

A suburb, 4 miles from Cork by rail (Cork, Blackrock, and Passage Ry). Trains stop (by signal) nearly every hour during the day; fares from Cork, single 1/2, 10d, 7d., return 1/6, 1/2, 9d. It is pleasantly situated on the southern banks of an expansion of the Lee, called Lough Mahon, and consists principally of pretty villa residences. Upon an eminence, within twenty minutes' walk of the railway station, is the newly-erected convent of the Capuchin order. The building has three storeys, and the accommodation is ample. It is intended to serve not only as a monastery for the Fathers of this community, in connection with the church of the Holy Trinity, Charlotte quay, Cork, but also as a seminary and house of retreat.

ROSSCARBERY.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, and market town, 40 miles south-west of Cork, 12 from Dunmanway, 8 from Clonakilty, and 20 from Bandon (head office). The ancient cathedral town of Rosscarbery was formerly called Ross-Alithir, the Wood of the Pilgrims. A charter of incorporation, by which many privileges were secured, was granted to it by King John. The cathedral is said to have been founded in the beginning of the 6th century, by St. Fachnan Mongach, "The Hairy," who lived in the time of St. Finbar, and who had been abbot of Molana, a monastery on an island in the Blackwater, near Youghal. His memory is held in great veneration in Rosscarbery, of which diocese he is patron saint. According to Hanmer, "There was here anciently a famous university, whereto resorted all the south-west part of Ireland for learning sake." A description of the city of Ross is given in the Consistorial Acts of 1517. It was encompassed with a wall, and contained about two hundred houses. In the centre of the town was the cathedral church, dedicated under the invocation of St. Fachnan, an Irish saint confessor. The walls of the church were of cut stone; there were two entrances—one lateral, the other in the front-and in both you descended by three steps to the level of the church. Its floor was unpaved, and its roof was of wood covered with slates. interior of the church presented the form of a Latin cross. It was divided into central nave and aisles, and the nave was separated by stone pillars from the aisles. The churchyard is a short distance from an arm of the sea. The cathedral, which has always been used as a parish church, was rebuilt in 1612. It is a neat gothic structure, with a square tower. St. Fachnan also founded an abbey here of regular canons, the ruins of which still remain. In 1747 some underground passages and chambers were discovered near the cathedral, similar to those found near the cathedral church of Kinneigh, and are thus described by Smith:-"The roof of each cell consisted of a gothic arch formed of a stiff clay, from the centre of which to the ground it was no more than five feet two inches high. The walls were made of stone, smoothly plastered." About a mile to the west of Ross is Banduff castle—Beann-Dubh, the black gable—a fortalice of the O'Donovans, and afterwards called Castle Salem. Two miles to the south-west are the ruins of Coppinger's court, erected by Sir Walter Coppinger. This house, mentioned by Smith as "the largest house in Carbery," was destroyed in the Confederate wars of 1641. At Temple Fachnan, about a mile and a half from the town, are the ruins of a house erected by the Knights Templars in 1301. It was at Ross the last act in the drama of the civil war of 1641 was performed; when the town was surrendered to the English, and a peace concluded between General Ludlow on the side of the parliament, and Lord Muskery on behalf of the confederates. on the 22nd June, 1652. Camden says the harbour was formerly navigable for ships, but it is now so shallow that no vessel can come up to the town. There are some fine caves on the coast near Rosscarbery, which have been worked out by the sea; some of them have puffing holes opening up to the surface of the ground above, through which the waves send jets of spray to a great height, after the manner of Mac Swine's gun in Donegal. In this district are slates for roofing at Benduff and Froe, manganese, and sulphate of barytes. The soil, though light, is fertile. In the parish of Castleventry are remains of an heathen temple, called Bealad, in the neighbourhood of which have been found several ancient ornaments and some celts of stone and bronze.

ROSTELLAN and LOWER AGHADA—see Whitegate for Upper Aghada.

Sub post-office, on the east side of Cork harbour; 16 miles from Cork, 3 from Cloyne, 7½ from Midleton (head office), and 4 from Queenstown. The steamers of the Cork and Passage Ry. ply between Passage, Queenstown, and Aghada daily; fares from Cork, single 1/6, 1/2, 9d.; return 2/-, 1/6, 1/-. The Citizens river steamers, direct from Cork, also call here. Since the great facilities afforded by the river steamers—which stop at Aghada pier—for travelling to Cork, and thence by cars to Cloyne and Ballycotton, the value of property in this part of the harbour is improving, and a number of good houses and pretty cottages are springing up along the shore. Adjoining Aghada is the village of Farsid: the whole harbour of Cork was in early times called Beala-far-sid. Rostellan demesne, formerly belonging to the O'Briens, Marquesses of Thomond, now the property of J. P. Wise, J. P., occupies a tongue of land about a mile broad, between the creeks of Farsid and Saleen. The present modern mansion was built on the ruins of an ancient castle of the Fitzgeralds, who were for centuries seneschals of Imokilly. The demesne is extensive and highly cultivated; the grounds (open to visitors on Thursdays) are arranged with great taste, and richly embellished with woods and plantations.

ST. ANN'S HILL.

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 61/2 miles from Cork (head office), and 11/2 from the village of Blarney. St. Ann's Hydropathic Establishment, opened by Dr. Barter in 1846, stands on a fine eminence, and is surrounded by pleasure grounds, upon which the late Doctor displayed great taste, and expended much money. This establishment enjoys the distinction of being the birthplace of the improved Turkish Bath in Western Europe, erected here in 1856. Here the Turkish Bath, with more than Eastern luxury, and the Hydropathic System, is perfection—under the superintendence of a skilful physician.

SCHULL (or SKULL).

Sub post, money order, and telegraph office, 63 miles from Cork, 15 from Skibbereen (head office), and 25 from Dunmanway (nearest Ry. station). Schull—once a famous collegiate town—lies at the head of the harbour of the same name, on the north side of Roaring-water bay. The town, which is small, has Protestant, Catholic, and Wesleyan places of worship, schools, coastguard station, constabulary barracks, union workhouse, the constability of the same range of the same range. hotel, etc. The harbour is well sheltered, with from six to three fathom water in it; near the mouth are some sunken rocks, but the entrance is at all times perfectly safe. Excellent anchorage is to be had in Long Island channel, adjoining the harbour. A white circular lighthouse, 45 feet high, is placed on the point of Rock island: it has a fixed white light, 67 feet above high water mark. The geological formation of this district (primitive schist, or clay slate) is most favourable for the production of minerals. There are copper mines at Coosheen, Ballycumisk, Cappagh, and Horse island; sulphate of barytes at Dunbeacon and Derreenalomane; red hæmatite iron ore, and iron pyrites; and there are extensive quarries at Cappagh, producing slates of excellent quality. Mount Gabriel, bleak and barren from the foot to the summit, stands to the north of Schull, about 1145 feet above the sea level. On the top of it is a remarkable lough, but a few yards broad, with its eternal serpent, and depth that has never been fathomed. From the ordad, with its eternal serpein, and depth that has never been fathorised. From the erection of several strongholds by the various native septs, this locality appears to have been regarded as of very great importance in the earlier periods of Irish history. The O'Mahonys had castles at Dunbeacon and Dunmanus, to protect the boundary between their territories and those of the O'Donovans; the former sept also erected Leamcon, Ardintenant, Rossbrin, and Black castles. On the shores of Dunmanus bay are the beautiful ruins of the church of Kilcommane, and at Bawnaknockane those of an ancient monastery. Fairs.

SHANAGARRY.

Sub post-office, 26 miles from Cork, 9 from Midleton (head office), 2 from Ballycotton, and 4½ from Cloyne. At Shangarry are the ruins of a castle which was successfully defended by the Earl of Desmond against Queen Elizabeth's troops; it was held by the Irish in 1641, but was captured by Cromwell, by whose orders it was dismantled. The Shanagarry estate was granted by Charles II. to the father of the famous Quaker, William Penn, in exchange for Macroom, which was restored to its proper owner, Lord Muskery. The castles of Ballycrenane and Garryvoe, now in ruins, were built by the Carews. In the church of Garryvoe is an ancient tombstone of the family, but the inscription is not legible. SHANBALLYMORE.

Sub post office, 34 miles north of Cork, 11 miles from Mallow (head office), and 5 from Castletownroche railway station. The river Awbeg, noted for its salmon, trout, etc, winds through this district. The land is calcareous; and along the banks of the river most fertile, and its natural ornaments most profuse: at the northern extremity it abuts on the Castleoliver mountains, and the soil is more silicious and poor, and its pasture herbage short and scant. Wallstown, especially, is a highly improved tract. Here was formerly a castle; of which no vestiges are in existence. James Byrne, J.P., of Clogher demesne, president of the Mallow Farmers' Club, has done much to improve the splendid breed of cattle now to be found in the good pastures in the neighbourhood of Cork, Mallow, Fermoy, and Bandon. His herd, over 100 head, possess in a high degree all the characteristics of high-class shorthorns, having proved themselves both in the English and Irish showyards. Richard Welstead, J.P., of Ballywalter, also possesses a splendid herd of the best breed, and has taken gold cups on several occasions from the best stock-rearers in England and Ireland.

SKIBBEREEN.

Head post and market town, 53 miles from Cork and 16 from Dunmanway (West Cork Ry). Skibbereen-formerly called Skubbareen and Stapletown-lies upon the southern bank of the river Ilen; it consists of seven streets, and is the last town of any importance in this the most southern corner of Ireland. Its site, and the country around for miles, anciently formed the domain of Gortnaclough—a fief belonging to the great sept of McCarthy-Reaghs, of Kilbrittain. This place, as well as Dunmanway, Clonakilty, and Bandon, formerly carried on an extensive trade in the manufacture and sale of woollen and linen cloth; but this belongs to their past history. It is still, however, known as a seat of the provision trade—large quantitities of butter, corn, pigs, and cattle, being annually disposed of in its weekly markets and fairs. It is very advantageously situated for a trade of this kind, being in the centre of a wide and improving district. The tide from the harbour of Baltimore flows up to the town, and the river Ilen is navigable for vessels of 200 tons to Old Court, two miles below the town. Facilities are afforded by this water-way of exporting its produce, and, by means of lighters, landing in its very streets the various imports which the town and country require. The Protestant church of Abbeystrowry is situated in Bridgetown. The Catholic cathedral church of Skibbereen is a beautiful Grecian edifice, erected in 1826, under the direction of Dr. Collins, bishop of Ross. There is also a convent, Methodist chapel, town hall, sessions house, market house, workhouse, hospital, dispensary, inns, numerous schools, etc. The market of a Saturday is considerable. The government of the town is vested in trustees, under the provisions of the "Towns Improvement Act." To the west of the town are the ruins of the ancient abbey of Abbeystown. Nothing is known as to the foundation of this abbey. "In it," writes Smith, "are several old tombs, and, in particular, a large one of the Roches." Not far from Skibbereen is the singular salt water lake of Lough Ine. The coast south-west of Skibbereen is dotted with islands, the most famous of which are those of Cape Clear and Innis-kerkin, lying off the mouth of Baltimore harbour. The country is hilly, and the soil rich and fertile, with gravel and slatey bottom. The valleys are of gray clay, and the mountains of no considerable size. There are no mines in this district, and no limestone nearer than Muskery. There are slate quarries at Drimoleague, Drinagh, and Droumusta, and freestone quarry at Skerkin. There are numerous large and handsome houses near the town.

Summary of Census, 1871. - Township of Skibbereen.

SUMMERCOVE—see Kinsale.

Sub post-office. This village is beautifully situated on the harbour of Kinsale, one mile from the town, and is much frequented for sea bathing. The Protestant parish church of Ringcurran and the extensive garrison of Charlesfort are in the immediate vicinity.

TEMPLEMARTIN.

Sub post-office, 25 miles south-west of Cork, and 5 from Bandon (head office), on the road from Kinsale to Macroom. There are many Danish raths in the parish—one on the lands of Garranes, including three acres, and surrounded by three ramparts and a fosse; another at Castlenalact, where are four upright stones of clay-slate; they are supposed to be druidical, or to have been erected to commemorate a victory obtained here by the Danes in 968. On the same townland was formerly a castle, now quite demolished. At Garranes are ruins of an old fortified mansion of the Baldwins. The Protestant parochial church is a plain building with a square tower, erected in 1793; the Catholic church is a plain edifice.

Sub post, money-order, and telegraph office, 28 miles south-west of Cork, and 8 south of Bandon (head office). Timoleague—formerly spelt Tagumlag, Tymulagy, etc.—derives its name from Ty-Molaga, the house of Molaga, an Irish saint, who lived in 665, and to whom the abbey, built in the beginning of the 14th century, was dedicated. This saint founded a monastery near Kildorrery; and it is probable he had a house or cell at Timoleague-Timoleague was formerly a place of some note, being resorted to by the hence the name. Spaniards, who imported large quantities of wine here; and it is said to have contained more than a dozen hostelries. It was known as a seaport town in 1589, and mentioned that year in conjunction with Kinsale, both being described as "market and haven towns, the furthest not a myle from the maine sea." The venerable ruin of the abbey of The venerable ruin of the abbey of Timoleague is in a fair state of preservation; and has a handsome Gothic tower still standing, about 70 feet high. The Four Masters say the monastery was founded for Franciscan friars in 1240, "by Mac Carthy Reagh, lord of Carbery, and his own tomb was erected in than in 1240, "by Mac Carthy Reagh, lord of Carbery, and his own tomb was erected in the friary. In this monastery, also, Barrymore, O'Mahony of Carbery, and the Baron Courcey, were interred." There are several tombs belonging to the O'Cullinanes, the O'Donovans, the Deasys, the O'Heas, and other old Irish families of distinction to be found within. Up to the latter end of the 17th century there were friars living in the abbey; but from that period up to the present it has only been used as a burying place. This district anciently belonged to the O'Cowigs, and subsequently to the Hodnetts. In the reign of Henry III. a great battle was fought here between the Hodnetts and Barrys, when the former were routed, and the Barrymores took possession of the place; with whom it remained until some few years since, when it was purchased by Colonel Travers. On the strand, between the abbey and Barry's hall, is a light chalybeate spring, said to be good for indigestion, loss of appetite, etc. On the eastern side of the town is another chalybeate spring, dedicated to the Virgin Mary. Between Timoleague and Dunworly are the ruins of an hospital for lepers, of which little remains now save the northern wall. Arigadeen-the silver stream-flows by Timoleague, and empties its waters into the bay This river is celebrated as a salmon river, and also abounds in white of Courtmacsherry. trout and other fish. There are slate quarries at Lehenagh.

UNION HALL.

Sub post-office, 51 miles south of Cork, 25 from Bandon (head office), 13 from Dunman-way, and 2 from Leap. Union Hall is situated on the west side of Glandore harbour, in the parish of Myross. This district forms an obtuse peninsula between Castlehaven and the harbour of Glandore, with the main ocean to the south. Here was anciently an abbey called de Sancto Mauro, founded 1172 by Dermot Mac Cormac Mac Carthy, king of Cork, for Cistercian monks. The foundations of the buildings and the cemetery may be traced at Corrigillerhig. On a lofty eminence above the wood of Myross are the remains of the church of the union; it occupied the site of the abbey of Fonte Vivo. Opposite Castletownsend are the ruins of Rahene castle, and about a mile to the east are fragments of castle Ire. Close to the village is the Protestant parish church, a handsome cruciform building erected in 1827, with a tower; and not far distant the Catholic church of Myross, a large plain building erected in 1830. In the immediate vicinity are several handsome seats. At Rock cottage, now the residence of the Rev. Thomas Allin, Dean Swift wrote the poem "Carberiae Rupes." The soil is shallow, resting on a substratum of schist; but it is tolerably fertile, producing excellent crops of corn, flax, and potatoes.

UPTON.

Sub post-office and railway station (Cork and Bandon Ry.), 151 from Cork, and 21 from Innishannon. Six trains daily between this and Cork; fares, single 3/4, 2/4, 1/6, return 5/-, 3/8, 2/6. Near Upton is St. Patrick's Reformatory, established under 21 and 22 Vic., c. 103. It consists of a plain substantial building on the hillside. There is a farm of 112 acres in connection with the house, which provides abundant and wholesome employment for the inmates. Judges and magistrates are empowered to send boys under sixteen years, and who have been sentenced to imprisonment for fourteen days and upwards, to this and similiar institutions, and to direct that they shall, if necessary, be detained for a period not less than three, and not exceeding five years. The parents of such children will, if able, be obliged to subscribe towards their maintenance. Cork is principally indebted to the Hon. Judge Berwick for the erection of this institution. It is under the charge of the Brothers of the Order of Charity.

Here is a ruined abbey, called Ballymacadane, founded about the year 1450 by Cormac Mac Carthy Teige Laider, for Augustine nuns. Part of the walls still stand. Rochfordstown and Castlewhite are pretty demessnes, with good gardens, etc. Bishopstown was built by Dr. Peter Brown, bishop of Cork 1709-35. The house and chapel were erected at an expense of about £2,000, and left to his successors free from any charge. The house is now in the occupation of a farmer, and the chapel in ruins.

WATERGRASSHILL.

Sub post-office, 12 miles from Cork, and 10 from Fermoy (head office). This place is said to stand on the highest ground in the county; the ascent by the road from Cork is almost uniform, but so gradual as to be scarcely perceptible. Watergrasshill gives name to the R. C. union or district, of which it contains the principal church. This place is famous as the residence of Father Prout.

WHITECHURCH.

Sub post-office, 5 miles from Cork. In a romantic and well-planted glen on the western boundary of this district are the Monard ironworks, an extensive manufactory for spades and shovels. The land is chiefly under tillage; the soil is light, resting on a substratum of clay-slate. A large quantity of flags and building stone are furnished from this locality. The Protestant parish church, rebuilt in 1800, is a spacious structure in the early English style, with a square tower, surmounted by a low spire. The R.C. church is a large and very neat edifice; and near it is a tower, erected in 1834, by the Rev. Mr. Horgan, in imitation of the ancient round towers.

WHITEGATE and UPPER AGHADA.

Sub-post, money order, and telegraph office, 17½ miles from Cork, 11 from Midleton (head office), and 1½ from Aghada pier. This marine village lies embayed on the south side Cork harbour, and is inhabited chiefly by fishermen. Corkbeg is a pretty little peninsular, mentioned in old documents as an island. It originally belonged to the Condons, who were buried here; and near the modern mansion of R. U. Penrose Fitzgerald, J.P., are the remains of one of their strongholds, built in 1396. William Condon sold the property to John Fitzedmond Fitzgerald, of Cloyne, in 1591, from whom it descended to the present proprietor. The site of Carlisle fort—so called after Frederick, fifth Earl of Carlisle, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in 1780—and the heath around it, was sold to the Government by the late Mr. Penrose Fitzgerald. Carlisle is a battery of 20 guns, and is to have 30 more. There were here, in Smith's time, the remains of a large regular fortification, with platforms for gun batteries, level with the water. This work was erected towards the end of Elizabeth's reign, but suffered to go to decay. On the high ground near the fort, stands Rupert town; and further south, near the mouth of the harbour, the police barrack; and round the south-east point, Roche's tower. In the valley, at the other side of this line of hill, is Trabolgan—according to Windele, the shore of the Belgæ—an old seat of the Roches, barons of Fermoy. Trabolgan makes a fine appearance from the sea, just before entering Cork harbour. The approach from the land side is fully a mile in length. The sea coast from Trabolgan to Ballycotton is wild and precipitious. Between these two points is a bold and lofty cape, called Power Head, on which are the ruins of an old castle, standing on a cliff which rises precipitately above the waters, that roar beneath it. Near Trabolgan, outside Cork harbour, is the fishing village of Gyleen.

YOUGHAL BOROUGH.

Head post and market town, 27 miles from Cork (Cork and Youghal Ry.); three trains daily between this and Cork—fare single 4/-, 3/-, 2/-, return 6/-, 4/6, 3/-, Youghal, situated on the west side of the estuary of Blackwater, is an ancient borough; and before the Act of Independence returned two members to the Irish Parliament. It received its first charter of incorporation from King John, in 1209. The principal buildings consist of two Protestant churches, Catholic church, two convents, Methodist chapel, Friends' meeting house, hospital, dispensary, town house-in which are assembly rooms, a prison, and barrack, etc. The borough returns one member to Parliament, and its local government is vested in commissioners under the provisions of 9th Geo. iv., c. 82. This is a splendid shore for sea-bathing. The flat strand, washed by the waves of the Atlantic, is a clean sand, entirely free from mud, and over three miles in extent. It was formerly used as a racecourse. The tide comes in so gradually, that children may play and amuse themselves on the sands with perfect safety. Of late years this place has been very much improved; and can now successfully vie with the most fashionable seaside places in Englandnot alone for its bathing accommodation, but for its splendid residences, esplanade, carriage drives, and pleasure grounds. The river Blackwater, from Youghal to Lismore, surrounded by lofty and beautiful scenery, splendid demesnes, receding distant views, and ruins full of deep interest, affords an outlet to the inhabitants and visitors of Youghal not to be equalled in the United Kingdom. A steamer plys upon the Blackwater, between Youghal and Cappoquin-which latter is about four miles from Lismore, and an equal distance from the Trappist monastery of Mount Mellery. The most interesting objects in the town are St. Mary's collegiate church and the old house of Sir Walter Raleigh. The house-now called

Myrtle grove—is in the old English style, with high pointed gables. Here Sir Walter resided in 1588-9, during which two years, according to the records of the corporation, he was mayor of Youghal. It was at Youghal, tradition says, he planted the first potatoes imported into Europe. Adjoining Myrtle grove is the church, which, in an architectual point of view, is one of the finest, and in a historical point of view, one of the most interesting ecclesiastical structures in this country. It is a massive mediæval cruciform edifice, consisting of a nave, with aisles, north and south transepts, and a choir or chancel, In the angle of the nave and north transept stands a massive square tower, about fifty feet This noble building was re-built in 1464, by Thomas Fitzgerald, 8th Earl of Desmond, who, with his wife, the countess, were buried here. There was a religious foundation here from a very early period. Almost all the massive pillars, which form the numerous lofty arches of the church, are based on stone coffin lids, of the 8th and 9th centuries. The most beautiful portion of the church is the choir, which is in the Decorated English style, and contains an east window, that in Ireland, at least, has not its equal in size, beauty of form and tracery, or for the richness of its stained glass. The roof is of massive dark Irish oak, until lately covered over by a lath and plaster ceiling. The tombs massive dark Irish oak, until lately covered over by a lath and plaster ceiling. The tombs are rich and interesting. In the south transept is the monument of the first (called the great) Earl of Cork, with figures of himself, his two wives, and the various members of his femily. Also the monument of Lord Broghill, the Earl of Cork's ablest son; of Thomas Fleming, Lord of Slane; of Sir Edward Villiers, who died Lord President of Munster in 1626; of the Smyths of Ballinatray, the Meades, the Bennetts, the Haymans, the Drews, etc. The churchyard is also an interesting spot. The restoration of this beautiful church is owing to the untiring exertions, and, in many instances, to the individual liberality of the Rev. P. W. Drew, of Heathfield towers. The college of Youghal was also founded by Thomas Fitzgerald, 8th Earl of Desmond: there is scarcely a vestige of the old house in The present college, a good substantial square building, was erected by Mr. Giles in 1782. On the west side of the harbour was the nunnery chapel of St. Anne, founded in 1190; on the side of a hill to the south of the town, stood a Franciscan priory, founded in 1224, and called the "mother" of the Franciscan Order in Ireland; the Dominican friary, commonly called the North Abbey, was founded in 1268. The surrounding country is highly cultivated and well wooded. The salmon fishery of the Blackwater is extensive; and sprats, herrings, whiting, etc., visit the bay in large quantities. Coarse earthenware and bricks are manufactured here.

POST TOWNS

The County in which situate, and the distance of the Office from the nearest Telegraph and Money Order Office.

TELEGRAPH OFFICES are marked thus (t). Money Order Offices and Savings' Banks thus (*).

INSURANCE AND ANNUITY OFFICES thus (†).

Certain places where the Railway Companies collect and deliver Telegrams on behalf of the Post Office are marked thus (1).

The Initials R.S.O. following the name of a place, indicates "Railway Sub-Office." Letters for such offices should have the initials "R.S.O.," together with the name of the county.

TELEGRAPH AND MONEY ORDER OFFICES .- The Head Offices in the second column of the follow-

TELEGRAPH AND MONEY ORDER OFFICES.—The Head Offices in when second column of the following list are Telgraph and Money Order Office; and where two are given, the second is the Money Order Office nearest to Sub-Office!—this latter being given for the information of those who may desire to send noney to the neighbourhood. The figures after the Offices in second column, indicate their distance in miles from the Sub-Office.

Telegrams are delivered free only within a radius of one mile of the telegraph station, porterage being charged at the rate of 6d, per double mile (that is, a mile out and a mile back), for distances not exceeding three double miles; greater distances, by mounted messenger, at the rate of 8d, per double mile. In order that the charges for porterage may be properly assessed, the sender is expected to state, as accurately as possible, the distance at which the addressee lives from the telegraph station.

Weakened and Falling Hair are Remediable.

A few from the numerous Testimonials receibed.

Provincial Bank of Ireland.
Enniscorthy, 13th April, 1874,
GENTLEMEN,—Having on a former occasion occasion experienced great benefit from using your Cantharidine Hair Wash, I beg to trouble you again for another bottle of that valuable fluid. It is the best specific I know of for the prevention of dandriff, and I have every confidence in its efficacy.
Yours obediently,
R. W. Nolan.

Messrs. Pigott & Son, Cork.

Lisronagh, Clonmel, Nov. 7, 1874.

Messrs. Pigott & Son.

Gentlemen—I must again trouble you for a bottle of your Cantharadine Wash; the last bottle did my hair much service -Yours truly,

A. H. DAUNT.

Co. Derry,
25th Feb., 1875
Mrs. W. desires to say that she will not require the coils of hair ordered. Mr. Pigott's wash so much improved her hair already that she thinks she can dispense with them.
Messrs. Pigott & Son

Mrs. W. will thank Mr. Pigott if he sends her the Hair Wash that she heard he has, as the front of her hair has become quite bald in patches, and she can't keep it from falling off.

Mrs. W. will thank Mr. Pigott to send her another bottle of his Hair Wash, as this last one did her hair the greatest good. She encloses P.O. Order for 3/6. Parcel to be sent, care of Dr. Murphy, Asylum.

Cork, 14, St. Nicholas Square
Messrs. Pigott & Son,—My hair was all falling out from some unaccountable cause, but after using two bottles of your Cantharidine Wash, it ceased to fall out, and is now as thick as ever it was.

THOMAS O'MAHONY.

Compass Hill, Kinsale.
Mr. PIGOTT,—I received such benefit from your Cantharidine Wash, I should like another bottle.
Send it by Mr. Newsom's man,
Mrs. Leith Adams.

St. Vincent's View, Mardyke,
Cork, 1st April, 1874.

Str.—I have pleasure in testifying to the efficacy of your Cantharidine, which, assisted by a couple of applications of the razor, completely cured in a few months a bald spot on my head, which had appeared there quite suddenly.—Yours truly,
R. Martin, Jun.
Mr. Joseph Pigott, Marlboro' Street.

15, Nelson Place, Cork, 4th December, 1873.

Mrs. J. Williams can with confidence recommend Mr. Pigott's Cantharidine Hair Wash, as she used it with the best results, after having a severe illness which caused nearly the entire loss of her hair.

64, Botanic Road, Belfast,

Will Messrs. J. Pigott kindly send to Rev. Edward Daunt, at the above address, a bottle of Cantharidine Wash for the hair. He has found it so useful that, though at such a distance, he thinks it well worth the trouble of sending for.

Tralee, 27th January, 1874.

Mrs. G. would thank Mr. Pigott to send her another bottle of his famous Cantharidine Hair Wash. She encloses 36; if it is more, kindly let her know.

Barracks, Longford, 31st May, 1867. Captain Fletcher, 12th Lancers, will thank Mr. Pigott to send him, as soon as possible, two bottles Cantharidine Wash (Pigott's).

Oxenden, Northampton.

Mrs. Oliver would be much obliged to Mr. Pigott to send her three bottles of his Cautharidine Wash, as he sent them before to London. If he would address this to John Oliver. Esq., Carlton Club, Pall Mall, Mrs. Oliver will receive it in due time.

43, Marlboro' Street, Cork,

Sth Dec., 1871.

DEAR SIR,—I have great pleasure in certifying that after a heavy fever some twelve months ago, I lost all my hair and beard, and at your recommendation I tried your Cantharidine, with the wonderful success in restoring them, and by far thicker than they were before.

F. Veille.

11, Bridge Street, Cork, 11th Dec., 1871.

DEAR Str.,—I have much pleasure in certifying to the beneficial effects produced by your celebrated Cantharidine Wash. After recent severe fever my hair was fast falling out, but the regular use of your preparation has resulted in restoring it to more than its original luxuriance.—Yours truly,

JOHN LANGLANDS.

8, Grand Parade, Cork,
Nov. 7, 1871.

After a very heavy fever my hair commenced to fall out, in fact 1 looked upon it as a hopeless case, without shaving as a last resource. I tried Mr.
Pigott's Cautharidine Wash at his advice, and the consequence is my hair is now as thick as ever.
HUGH D. BROOKS.

Cork Gas Consumers' Co.,
Offices—72, South Mall, Cork,
7th December, 1871.

Dear Sirs,—It pleases me much that I am able to congratulate you on the success of your system of restoring the hair subsequent to fewer. After my severe sickness, occasioned by typhus fever, I was daily loosing my hair very rapidly, so that my head was becoming actually bald. You simply recommended a stimulant which I still use (Cantharidies) with extraordinary success.

CITY OF CORK.

and the state of the property of the property of the state of the stat

HISTORICAL AND DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY.

THE earliest notices of the city of Cork date from the time of SS. Finbar and Nessan, towards the end of the 6th century. "It took its rise from a school or monastery established by St. Finbar, at Lough Eirc, in the 6th century, to which such numbers flocked, from all parts, that it changed a desert, as it were, into a large city."-Colgan. "I take this lake, called by the name of Lough Eirc, to be that hollow or basin in which a great part of the city of Cork now stands, and which the industry of the inhabitants hath, from time to time, reclaimed and built on."-Ware. The ancient city stood on the hill to the south of of the Lee, and appears to have grown up around the cathedral; but what from a very early period has been more especially regarded as the city occupied two marshy islands, separated by a small channel of the Lee. This channel—which runs beneath the houses at the south side of Castle street, till it reaches the arches under the Grand Parade-intersected the Main street at right angles, and divided the old island of Cork into four parts, over which separate high and petty constables were appointed. There existed other marshy islands above and below the original city: in the reign of Charles II, the corporation began to grant leases of these tracts, and in a few years they become important parts of the city. The origin of the island-city is ascribed to the Danes, who, after repeatedly plundering the old city on the hill, and its religious establishments, settled here in the 11th century. At the time of the Anglo-Norman invasion, in 1172, that portion of the city between the present north and south bridges, and the adjacent country subsequently known as the Ostmen's Cantred, were in the undisturbed possession of the Danes, who held them under Dermot McCarthy, prince of Desmond.

Henry II, about the year 1177, granted to Robert Fitz-Stephen and Milo de Cogan the whole kingdom of Cork, except the city and the cantred belonging to the Ostmen settled there, which he retained in his own hands; but they were unable to take possession of more than seven cantreds lying nearest the city, receiving tribute from the other twenty-They introduced other Anglo-Norman families and their retainers, and the military colony thus established was never completely uprooted. Large tracts of country were successively held by the Carews, De Courceys, and other families. The Carews, who were styled Marquesses of Cork, built the castle of Dunnamarck, near Bantry, and others in Imokilly, for protection against the natives. The chief men of this family, with many other English settled here, removed into England on the breaking out of the civil war between the houses of York and Lancaster; while De Courcey, who remained, lost a considerable portion of his possessions by the superior power of the natives. The English element was subsequently further weakened by the usurping measures of the Earls of Desmond, to whom Robert Fitz-Geoffry Cogan granted all his lands in Ireland, including one-half of Cork; but the whole was forfeited by the attainder of the last earl, in 1582. The forfeitures, with the exception of a considerable portion re-granted the Fitzgeralds, were divided into seigniories and granted by letters patent to Englishmen, who were called undertakers, from being bound to perform the conditions mentioned in the articles for the plantation of the province with English, who were consequently settled here in great numbers. At the termination of the war of the Commonwealth, the English element was further strengthened by the settlement of republican officers, soldiers, etc. Among the entire population of the county there is a considerable intermixture of English surnames, but the names of the ancient Irish families also remain. Except in the mountainous districts, the peasantry generally speak the English language—an interesting table on this subject will be found on p. 103.

Between the reigns of King John and George II, Cork received several charters. That granted by John, Earl of Morton, when viceroy of Ireland in the reign of his father, Hen. II, in the preamble states: "I have granted and given, and by this my charter confirm to the citizens of Cork all the fields held of my city of Cork, and the ground on which the city is, now for my benefit to increase the strength of the citizens. This is to them and their heirs to hold to me and my heirs, and to remain in frank burgage, by such custom and rent as the burgesses of Bristol, in England, pay yearly for their burgages; and to secure my city of Cork I grant this to the same my citizens of Cork all the laws, franchises, and customs or freight which are in Bristol, on whatsoever sails. And firmly commanding that the aforesaid my citizens of Cork, and their heirs and their successors, have the aforesaid city of Cork of me and my successors as is aforesaid, and have all the laws and franchises and frank customs of Bristol; and as those were wont to be used and written in my court, and in my hundred of Cork, and in all business. And I forbid that any wrong or hinderance be given to the aforesaid laws and franchises, which gift from us are given and granted," etc. The charter of 26th Hen. III. granted the city and its appurtenances in fee-farm, at an annual rent of 80 marks, with prisage of wine, custom and cocket, within the jurisdiction of the port, and certain personal privileges to the citizens, among which was an exemption from toll and all other customs throughout his dominions: under this charter the chief officer of the corporation was called "provost." Edw. I. granted two charters, in the 19th and 31st of his reign, the latter of which authorized the bailiffs and men of Cork to have murage, as in other towns in Ireland, for six years. The charter of the 11th of Edw. II. is the first in which the office of mayor is named: the same monarch, in the following year, confirmed the charter of the 19th of Edw. I, and gave to the mayor-elect the privilege of being sworn before his predecessor in office, instead of going to Dublin to take the oaths before the barons of the Exchequer. Charters were also granted in the 4th and 5th of Edw. III, 5th of Rich. II, and 2nd of Edw. IV.; the last of which, after reciting that the mayor and commonalty had eleven parish churches within the city, with suburbs extending one mile in every direction, that had been for fifty years preceding destroyed by Irish enemies and English rebels, on which account they were unable to pay the fee-farm rent, remitted all arrears, and granted them the cocket for the construction of the walls, to be held until they could travel peaceably one mile beyond them. In the 15th of Edw. IV, all former charters were confirmed, and the mayor and citizens were allowed to enjoy all their franchises both within the city and suburbs and through the entire port; it then releases, during pleasure, ail arrears of the rent of 80 marks, and grants that the corporation, in lieu thereof, shall in future render at the Exchequer 20 lbs. of wax. Hen. VII. granted a charter of inspeximus; and Hen. VIII, in the 1st of his reign, gave a confirmatory charter, and in the 28th another, which also conferred upon the mayor the privilege of having a sword carried before him, the sword-bearer to wear "a remarkable cap," and granted him the custody of the castle. Edw. VI, in the 3rd of his reign, granted a charter of confirmation; and in the 18th of Eliz. the mayor, recorder, and bailiffs, and the four senior aldermen who had served the office of mayor, were constituted keepers of the peace within the city, both by land and water; and they, or three of them, of whom the mayor and recorder were to be two, were appointed justices of over and terminer, and general gaol delivery, with power to enquire into all felonies, trepasses, etc, within the city and liberties; this charter also contained a grant to the corporation of all fines and amercements. The charter of Jas. I. after granting that Cork should be a free city, and changing the style of the corporation to that of mayor, sheriffs, and commonalty, with power to make bye-laws for the regulation of the municipality, constituted the city and surrounding district, to be marked out by commissioners, a distinct county, over which the powers of the justices of the peace for the city were extended, and released the corporation from their annual payment of 20 lbs. of wax: this charter also granted permission to hold two fairs, with all tolls, etc. and created a corporation of the staple with privileges equal to those of London or Dublin. In the 7th of Chas. I, a confirmatory charter was granted, which, after declaring that justices of the county of Cork should have no jurisdiction within the city, further directs that each mayor, on retiring from office, shall be an alderman, and that all aldermen shall be members of the common council, provided the number do not exceed twenty-four; it also empowers the corporation to elect a town clerk, clerk of the crown, and public notary; and likewise six aldermen of the ward, who should have power to determine all causes not exceeding 40s, arising within their respective wards. By the charter granted in the 9th of Geo. II. all the aldermen, immediately on retiring from the office of mayor. were made justices of the peace within the county of the city; the same monarch in the 21st of his reign granted another charter, which is the last given to the corporation, authorising them to hold two fairs annually at a place called the Lough, within the liberties, and to take the usual tolls.

The first magistrate of Cork on record was John Despenser, who was provost in 1199, succeeded by a long line of 537 magistrates, unbroken to the year 1843, save during the ten years of the war of the Commonwealth. The proper jurisdiction and prerogatives of the mayor of Cork were not properly defined till 1843. By the Municipal Act of that year (3 and 4 Vic.) that part of the county of the city of Cork, not within the municipal boundaries of the borough of Cork, was constituted a barony of itself; and for grand jury, civil and commercial purposes, a part of the county of Cork. Its ancient style of "mayor, sheriffs, and commonalty" was altered to "mayor, aldermen, and burgesses." The elective constituency was changed, and the power of electing vested in £10 householders. The town council constituting the governing authority is composed of a certain number of aldermen and councillors for each of the seven wards of the city. Onethird of the council go out annually, and half the number of aldermen go out triennially. The mayor is chosen by the town council on the 1st December in every year, out of the aldermen or councillors of the borough, and the borough elections take place on the 25th November. The mayor is, as of old, an ex officio justice of the peace, and by this statute is created returning officer at elections of members to serve in parliament. In lieu of two sheriffs, as of old, the city now possesses but one.

For centuries the annals of Cork are little more than records of skirmishes between English settlers and Irish clans. In 1492, Perkin Warbeck, in his assumed character of Richard, Duke of York, visited Cork. For abetting his pretensions, John Walters, the mayor, was executed with Warbeck, and the city for a time deprived of its charter by Hen. VII. In 1541 the mayor of Cork was one of the four commissioners appointed in lieu of the Irish brehons or judges, to hear and determine all controversies among the natives of the province. At the commencement of the great Desmond insurrection the city became the head-quarters of the English forces. At this period Cork is described by Camden as of an oval figure, surrounded by walls, environed and intersected by the river, which was passable only by bridges, and as consisting of one straight street continued by a bridge; "it is, however, a little trading town of great resort, but so beset by rebellious neighbours as to require a constant watch as if continually besieged." In a tract, printed in London in 1622, entitled "A relation of the most lamentable burning of the city of Cork by thunder and lightning," occurs the following account of old Cork: "The citie of Corke hath its beginning upon the side of a hill, which descendeth easily into one wide and long streete; the only principall and chiefe streete of the citie. At the first entrance there is a castle called Shandon castle, and almost over against it a church built of stone, as the castle is, a kinde of marble, of which the country yeeldeth store. The citie hath many houses built of the same stone, and covered with slate. But the greater number of houses are built of tymber or mudde walls, and covered with thatch." On the death of Elizabeth in 1602, the mayor and corporation refused at first to proclaim the accession of Jas. I.; the citizens took arms, and set guards upon the gates to prevent any soldiers from entering the town. In the contest between the Crown and Parliament, Cork generally remained firm to the cause of the monarchy, but succumbed to Cromwell. The city was early in declaring for Chas, II, he being proclaimed there eleven days before the proclamation was made in London. In 1688, General McCarthy took possession of the city for Jas, II, who made a public entry into Cork the following year, after having landed at Kinsale with a French army. Its most noticable event was the siege by William III.'s army, under Marlborough and the Duke of Wurtemburg, in 1690, when the garrison surrendered after holding out five days. As a military exploit it was one of no great difficulty. rounded by steep hills, nature has precluded Cork from even becoming a place of military strength. But in a political view it was important; and the achievement at the time being proportionably magnified for party purposes, it laid the foundation of the future fame and fortune of the hero of Blenheim. Here the military history of Cork ends: its political importance being derived exclusively from its position as a seaport, with one of the finest harbours in the world; and as the first commercial city in Ireland.

The county of the city (parliamentary borough) comprises a populous rural district, of great beauty and fertility, watered by several small rivulets and intersected by the river Lee and its noble estuary: it comprehends nine entire civil parishes, together with parts of ten others, within its limits. The general appearance of the city is picturesque and cheerful; the principal streets are spacious and well-paved, and most of the houses are large and well-built. The scenery around the city is exceedingly beautiful. The striking nature of these views is owing to the abrupt ascent of the hills, and the extension of handsome suburbs along their sides. The oldest of these suburbs is that called Sunday's well—this quarter, from its supposed healthfulness, was sometimes styled "Little Buxton." The steep hill for a mile westward is crowded with rural residences. Eastward of the city a sort of Irish Clifton has sprung up; a variety of new streets, terraces, crescents, and detached villas have been erected on the sides and summits of the gentle aclivities along the north bank of the river, commanding magnificent views of the Lee, the city, Blackrock, and the beautiful and fertile district bounded by the hills of Carrigaline.

The noble harbour of Cork, which gives rise to the motto of the city—"STATIO BENE FIDA CARINIS," is admirably adapted to all the purposes of the most extended commerce; and from its convenient situation, the perfect security with which numerous fleets may winter in a land-locked basin, its excellent anchorage at all times, and the dense population on its shores inured to hardships and privations, tend to make Cork one of the most important places in the Empire. What is considered most peculiarly the harbour is situated nine miles below the city, opposite Queenstown, where vessels of any burden may ride in safety; vessels of great draught can pass up the river as far as Passage, within five and a-half miles of the city, and there is a depth of about ten feet at low water spring tides from deep water to Cork, so that at present ships of large draught can come up or depart only at full tide. It is however intended to give a minimum depth of at least fourteen feet at low water spring tides from deep water to Cork, and to widen the channel, at present 180 to 240 feet, to 300 feet, and to erect deep water jetties; thus allowing large vessels to arrive and depart, load and unload, at all times of the tide.

The commerce of Cork has increased enormously of late years. The tonnage of ships trading to the port was, in 1866, 510,899; in 1867,528,408; in 1868, 543,740; in 1869, 540,980; in 1870, 612,520; in 1871, 606,188; in 1872, 695,202; in 1873,678,244. The cattle trade is very considerable, cattle being shipped to Bristol, Plymouth, London, Liverpool, Glasgow, and Wales. In the year 1862, 29,000 cattle were shipped from this port; in 1872, 50,000; in 1874, 60,000. The harbour revenue from the grain trade has increased from £274 in 1855, to £7,204 in 1872. The butter trade is the staple one of Cork.

The principal manufactures of Cork are brewing, distilling, and tanning. There are three distilleries, worked by the Cork Distilleries Company Limited; and four breweries, manufacturing large quantities of single, double, and extra stout, for home consumption and exportation to England—viz., Sir John Arnott and Co.'s, Beamish and Crawford's, Lane and Co.'s, and Murphy and Co.'s. The chief tanneries are those of the Messrs. Dunns, Hegartys, Hacketts, Kelly, Lyons, McSwiney, etc.

There are several approaches by railway to the city: that by the Great Southern and Western Railway, consists of a main line from Dublin, with branches from Limerick, Tralee and Killarney, Fermoy, Lismore, etc. This line, in conjunction with the Waterford and Limerick Railway (junction three miles west of Tipperary) form a continuous road between Dublin, Tipperary, Waterford, and Cork. The local lines in connection with the city are, the Queenstown and Youghal, the Blackrock and Passage, the Bandon, the West Cork, the Kinsale Junction, and the Macroom railways. Besides the railways, the vessels of the City of Cork Steam Packet Company, the Great Western Railway of England, and the Clyde Shipping Company, place Cork in direct communication with England and Scotland.

STREETS, PLACES, PUBLIC BUILDINGS, ETC.

Patrick street.—Previous to 1783, the waters of the Lee flowed up this street, and vessels laded and unloaded on its quays. The south and east sides of the canal were called Hoare's quay, and Long's quay, and Dunscombe's marsh; and the north and west sides, Colville's quay: the channel is now arched over. In Patrick street is a bronze statute by Foley, erected by the citizens of Cork to the memory of Father Mathew, the Apostle of Temperance; it was unwelled Oct. 10, 1864.* Of the shops and warehouses, those of Carmichael and Co., The Munster Arcade, and Alex. Grant and Co., are among the most extensive in Ireland.

The North and South Main streets—properly one street—was the principal thoroughfare of ancient Cork, at the end of which stood the north and south gates of the old walled town, with their drawbridges and castles, the spikes of which were adorned with many a bloody head. Until 1837, the Exchange formed the point of division between these streets: this building occupied the site of the "Golden castle," erected by the Roches. At the north-eastern end stood Skiddy's eastle, the old powder magazine.

The Grand Parade, the widest thoroughfare in Cork, had a channel in the centre as late as 1780, when it was arched in; where the Berwick fountain now stands there was formerly a bridge connecting Tuckey street with Old George's street. At the north-western side of this street are the extensive shops and warehouses of John Daly and Company, and the Queen's Old Castle Company; at the south-western angle is the City Club, opposite which formerly stood an equestrian statue, in lead, of George II. The principal meat, fish, poultry, and vegctable market of Cork passes between the Parade and Prince's street.

The South Mall runs at right angles with the southern end of the Parade, and contains some very fine structures, including four banks, two club-houses, the Commercial buildings, Imperial hotel, etc, and consists principally of offices of the chief professional men and merchants of the city. The centre of this street was also occupied by a canal—crossed by wooden bridges—which was not arched, or closed in, till 1801. Over the entrance of the Royal Exchange Assurance office, on the south side of the Mall, is a figure of Minerva, carved in wood. This was Hogan's first work, executed whilst serving his apprenticeship to Sir Thomas Deane, the eminent architect.

Old George's street is long, extending from the Parade to the Custom house. Although it is nothing to boast of in breadth or style of houses, it is intersected at right angles by several good business streets.

Great George's street, the most regularly built street in Cork, occupies the site of a number of the worst lanes of the city. It runs from the Grand Parade until it unites with, or becomes part of, the Western road. Parallel with this latter is

The Mardyke, a fine avenue extending to a distance of one mile, and overshadowed by two rows of tall elms. The walk was formed by a Mr. Webber, in 1719, who built at its western extremity a red brick house (whence it was designated "The Red house walk,") and enclosed a tea garden much frequented by the citizens of the day.

* Rev. Theobald Mathew, superior of the convent of Capuchin friars. Charlotte quay, was a native of Tipperary; he died at Queenstown, Dec. 8, 1856, in the 66th year of his age, and was interred in St. Joseph's cemetery, Cork. The "Cork Total Abstinence Society," formed by Father Mathew, numbered in 1840 upwards of two million five hundred and thirty thousand names.

The Marina is a picturesque walk skirting the southern banks of the Lee, and connects the city with the suburb of Blackrock. This much frequented promenade is planted with a double row of elms, and borders the city racecourse.

Cork has but few street with any significant name. Graston's alley, is so called after the young Duke of Graston, who was killed on its site during the siege of 1690. Mulgrave street is so named to commemorate the visit of Lord Mulgrave, when viceroy. O'Connell street, after the Irish patriot; Duncan street, after Admiral Duncan, was previously called Grattan street, after the celebrated Grattan; George's street, after Geo. II,; and Irish Rising Liberty street (now called Liberty street) in commemoration of the volunteers of 1782. In Broad lane (about three yards wide), off the North Main street, the poet Spenser is said to have lived, when sheriff of Cork in 1597; and in Water lane, Great Britain street, was born the celebrated painter, James Barry.

The Bridges.—There are six bridges crossing the north and south channels, or branches of the river, that enclose Cork. On the south channel—Anglesea. Parliament, Southgate, and Clarke's bridges; and on the north—St. Patrick's and Northgate bridges. The The foundation stone of St. Patrick's bridge was laid by the Earl of Carlisle in 1859, on which occasion his excellency also cut the first sod of the Queenstown branch of the Cork and Youghal railway. The bridge was erected from the plan and under the superintendence of Sir John Benson. The width is 60 feet between the parapets, and it occupies the site of the old bridge erected in 1798, and destroyed by a disastrous flood in 1853.

The Quays.—On the northern branch of the river—Bachelor's quay, and opposite the North mall (were stood the ancient Franciscan abbey founded by McCarthy More in 1231); Kyrls, Coal, and Lavitt's quays, and opposite Pope's and Camden quays; Merchant's and Anderson's quays, opposite St. Patrick's and Penrose quays. On the southern branch—Lapp's quay, and opposite Albert quay; within Anglesea bridge, Morrisson's and Charlotte quays, and opposite Union and George's quays. The extent of quayage in Cork is only a few hundred yards less than that of Glasgow—4370 lineal yards as against 4774 at the latter place. They are formed of cut limestone, and cost, including the expense of their construction in 1825, about £300,000. The Cork Harbour Bill (1875) enables the Harbour Commissioners to construct 3900 feet of new deep-water quayage at Cork, at a cost of £140,000.

Queen's College (opened in 1849) stands near the site of Gill abbey, the ancient university of Cork founded in the beginning of the 7th century. This beautiful and chaste building, designed by Sir Thomas Deane, is in the Tudor-Gothic style, and consists of three sides of a quadrangle. The front or north wing, which contains the library and examination hall, is 200 feet in length: the library is a handsome room, and contains a large collection of the best editions in every department of science and literature; the examination hall is 90 feet long, 36 feet wide, and 56 feet high. The museum occupies two apartments, and contains a valuable collection of minerals, fossils, etc. The president has his residence in the college-(see also p. 43).

St. Finbar's Cathedral is erected upon the site of the old church of that name. The foundation stone was laid in 1865, by Dr. Gregg, bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, and consecrated in November, 1870. The cathedral is cruciform in shape, and consists of a lofty nave with aisles on either side, widening into twin transepts, and terminating in a magnificent circular apse. The style of architecture is in early French 13th century. The length of the nave is 162 feet, and with the aisles is nearly 50 feet in width. Rich foliage decorate the capital of the pillars. Seventeen windows give light to the chancel, which is approached from the nave by seventeen steps of polished Sicilian marble. One of the grandest features of the building is the western entrance, which consists of a central and two side doorways, embayed with deep portals. The pulpit and font are exceedingly handsome and beautifully sculptured. The chancel roof is surmounted by a life-size figure of the Archangel blowing the last trump, the gift of the architect, Mr. W. Bruges. The thirteen Masonic lodges in Cork presented the sculptured representations of the four wingod beasts of the Revelations, which decorate the spaces round the great west window. We are unable to give the date of the first erection of this cathedral. The church of 1690 received so much injury during the siege, that with the exception of the steeple it was taken down in 1725, and rebuilt in 1735. A round tower stood in the churchyard, about 100 feet high, of which no vestige now exists; this tower was marked on old maps as the "spire."

The Catholic Cathedral, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, stands on a commanding height on the north side of the city. It is a noble ecclesiastical structure, with a massive Gothic tower and a fine peal of bells. Mr. Windele says its interior "presents one of the richest specimens of the florid Gothic in Ireland." The altar and ceiling are gorgeously decorated. It was built in 1808 by Dr. Moylan, bishop of Cork 1786-1815, on the site of an older church erected in 1729.

Christ Church stands on the eastern side of the South main street. It is a plain structure, with gabled front. Its original erection is attributed to the Knights Templars. Protestants of Cork were confined in this church during the siege by Marlborough. present church was erected in 1720, with a lofty tower 136 feet high. The tower began to sink, so 36 feet were taken off, then 40 feet, and the tower finally removed in 1828. The graveyard contains some ancient monuments, one of them as old as 1494.

Holy Trinity Church, Charlotte quay, belonging to the Capuchin order of friars, is a beautiful though unfinished Gothic structure. The foundation stone was laid in 1832. Rev. Theobald Mathew, the Apostle of Temperance, was superior of this convent, which was originally established by the Rev. Arthur O'Leary. It contains a stained-glass window, purchased with the fund raised in Cork for the O'Connell monument.

St. Anne's Shandon (or Sean-dun, "the old fort") stands on Shandon hill. It was built in 1722. It is a plain structure, with a pepper-castor steeple 170 feet high, having a good chime of bells, placed there in 1750.

St. Finbar's Catholic Church (or the South Chapel), Dunbar street, is a commodious old edifice, erected in 1776. Here is "The Dead Christ," a figure in white marble, considered Hogan's masterpiece.

St. Luke's Church was consecrated by Dr. Gregg, bishop of Cork, Cloyne and Ross, 14th January, 1875. It is a beautiful Decorated structure, with ample sitting accommodation for a congregation of 2000. It was designed by Sir John Benson and Mr. Wm. H. Hill. The nave is lofty and spacious, its length is 88 ft, and, with the aisles, about 65 ft. in width; the chancel is lighted by richly stained-glass windows. This church is situated in the ancient parish of St. Brandon, and occupies the site of a chapel-of-ease to St. Anne Shandon, built in 1837.

St. Mary's Church, belonging to the Dominicans, is a semi-classical structure, with an imposing portico supported by lofty Ionic columns. The Dominican friars were originally established, in Cork, in the convent of St. Mary's of the Isle, which was founded by Philip de Barry in 1229. This Monastery of the Island at Cork, with all its appurtenances, lands, water mills, salmon weirs, fishing pools, was confiscated to the crown in 1544, and sold to William Boureman, at the head rent of 6s. 9d. a year. Jas. II, who came to Cork from Kinsale in 1689, lodged in the old island house. It was deserted by the brethren on the accession of William, Prince of Orange, and used as the residence of the mayor or governor of Cork. It afterwards became the town mansion of the Earl of Inchiquin. Its site is now occupied by the convent of the Sisters of Mercy. In 1721 the Dominican site is now occupied by the convent of the Sisters of Mercy. In 1721 the Dominican friars were living in a narrow lane off Shandon street, called Friary lane. Here they built a convent on the site of Shandon castle, and in 1784 they built a new convent and chapel on the same site; in 1832 was laid the foundation of St. Mary's church, Pope's quay, and in 1848 the foundation of the present convent immediately above the church.

St. Mary Shandon Church, built in 1693; the ground was given by Sir Henry Sidney. An old church of this name stood a little to the east of St. Anne's, which was destroyed during the siege of 1690, when Governor Macgillicuddy fired the suburbs. It is a plain structure.

St. Nicolas Church is a handsome cruciform structure, erected by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, from a design by G. J. Welland: it has a peal of bells. It stands near the site of the ancient church of St. Bridget. In 1752, the six parishes of St. John, St. Stephen, St. Mary Nard, St. Dominick, St. Bridget, and St. Nicolas, were formed into the rectory of St. Nicolas.

St. Patrick's Church, Lower Glanmire road, is a handsome Grecian edifice, erected in 1845, by Dr. Murphy, Catholic bishop of Cork. It has a portico supported by eight lofty columns; the cupola on the roof rests upon eight Corinthian pillars, each of which is supported by a figure of the apostle.

St. Paul's Church, Paul street, was erected by Dr. Peter Brown, bishop of Cork 1709-35. Paul street was at that time a highly fashionable locality.

St. Peter's Church is on the western side of the North main street. The patronage and advowsons of "Capelle Sct. Petri, Corcag," was confirmed to the bishop of Cork, and his successors, by a charter of Hen. III, dated 1270. In 1719, the corporation of Cork gave Captain Thomas Deane ground adjoining St. Peter's church, to erect a school and almshouses upon.

SS. Peter and Paul's Church—the finest ecclesiastical structure in the city—is a richly Decorated building, designed by Augustus Welby Pugin. This beautiful and spacious edifice is remarkable for the lightness, chasteness, and symmetry of its interior; and its erection is in no small degree due to the unwearied labours of the Ven. Archdeacon Murphy. It occupies the site of the old Carey's lane chapel.

The Augustinian Church and Convent is in Great George's street. The church was built in 1780, and enlarged in 1827. A convent of Augustinian Eremites, or Austin friars, was founded at Cork in 1420, by Patrick de Courcey. Vestiges of this place, called the Red abbey, still remain in Cumberland street. The Eremites disappeared from 1577 to 1741, when friars of this order are found living in "an obscure nook in Fishamble lane," from whence they removed in 1780 to Brunswick street.

The Franciscan Church and Convent is in Broad lane. The church was built in 1830, at a cost of £4500. The original foundation of the Franciscans in Cork was on the North Mall, the vicinity of which is still known as the North Abbey. It was founded in 1231 by MacCarthy More, whose tomb stood in the middle of the choir; and was called the Monastery of the Minorites, or the Friars of Seandun, or Shandon. When digging in 1804 for the foundation of the present line of houses on the North Mall, a number of stone coffins were discovered.

The Church and House of Retreat of the Congregation of the Mission S. Vincent's, occupy a commanding position in the Sunday's well road; the buildings are in the Decorated Gothic style, of red sandstone with limestone dressings. The church consists of a nave and aisles: the nave is divided from the aisles by Irish marble columns. At the east end of the nave is the high altar, richly gilt; at the east end also of each of the aisles is a smaller altar, ornamented; and over each altar are beautiful stained windows. On that over the high altar, scenes illlustrating the life of St. Vincent are most artistically depicted, together with devices of SS. Patrick and Finbar; those over the lesser altars represent the life of the Saviour. The foundation stone was laid by the lord bishop in 1851, and opened for religious services in 1856. The building was designed by Sir John Benson; the internal decorations, which bear testimony to great care and artistic taste, were from designs by Goldie of London. The adjoining grounds are laid out in terraces, from whence is procured a magnificent prospect of the city and surrounding country. The erection of this church was originally due to the energy of the Rev. Michael O'Sullivan—who died before its completion, and whose remains lie interred under the church—and subsequently to his successor, the present superior, who with his coadjutors labour hard in this thickly populated locality.

Wesleyan Methodist Chapels in Patrick street, Henry street, and Barrackton. The principal one is in Patrick street; that in Henry street, originally erected in 1762, is the oldest foundation of this body in Cork. John Wesley visited Cork in 1749.

Primitive Wesleyan Methodist Chapel, Frenchchurch street, originally belonged to the French Protestants, who settled in Cork after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

Trinity Presbyterian Church, King street, is a remarkably pleasing specimen of Decorated Gothic architecture, with tower and spire 140 feet from the ground. It occupies a commanding position, and its architectural proportions are seen to the best advantage.

The Independent Chapel, George's street, was built in 1831, on the site of the old Assembly rooms, from designs by Messrs. Paine, architects.

The Baptist Chapel is in Marlboro' street; the burial ground in St. Stephen's lane is in connection with it. Among the names on the headstones are those of Allen, Austen, Fowkes, Falkiner, Jones, and Lapp.

St. Finbar's Cemetery is in the Glasheen road. Its establishment by the Corporation, under the Burial (Ireland) Act, 1856, was consequent upon the prohibition of intramural interments. The cemetery, upon which was expended £10,000, is beautifully planted and kept in good order. A portion is set apart for Protestants and a portion for Catholics; It contains two mortuary chapels, which cost £2000.

St. Joseph's Cemetery—formerly the Botanic Garden, and converted to its present use by Father Mathew in 1830—is neatly planted, after the plan of the Pere La Chaise. Among the specimens of sepulchral architecture which it contains, is a sarcophagus of Portland stone, surmounted by a figure of an angel, by Hogan, a native of Corl., in white Italian marble.

The Royal Cork Institution consists of an extensive library, principally scientific works, together with the proceedings of all the scientific societies in the world, a collection of over 400 Oriental manuscripts, collected in India, and an apartment specially fitted up for records of patents taken out in Great Britain, United States, and Canada; a museum, with a small but select collection of Egyptian, Irish, Indian, and Chinese antiquities, arranged ethnologically, and a small cabinet of Eastern engraved gems and Indo-Bactrian coins, valuable fossils, shells, etc.; lecture and reading rooms. The society was founded by subscription in 1803, and in 1807 received a Royal Charter of Incorporation, and a grant of £2000 per annum, afterwards increased to £2500. This grant was discontinued in 1831, and the Institution became the property of a number of proprietors; its affairs are now managed a committee. The building now known as the Royal Cork Institution was erected in 1724 as the Cork Custom house, and used as such up to 1803.

, The Cork Library Society, South mall, was established by a number of Cork merchants in 1792, and contains upwards of 20,000 works on general literature, together with some valuable books of reference; a large number of newspapers and periodicals are also taken in, and the reading room is spacious and well-kept. It is governed by a committee chosen from the subscribers. The subscription is a guinea a year—admission by ballot.

The Library of the Cathedral of St. Finbar's, Dean street, comprises a valuable collection of theological and historical works.

The Munster Hall (formerly the Athenaeum) is capable of seating 2500 persons. It is a beautiful classical structure—constructed, for the most part, from the materials of the Cork National Exhibition, held in 1852. The exterior is of Bath stone, in Roman Doric; the interior is Corinthian, with fluted pillars, and possesses considerable beauty. It was opened in 1855, by his excellency, the Earl of Carlisle. The building was used originally for entertaiments, concerts, balls, bazaars, etc.; in the hands of a new proprietory, however, a number of alterations and improvements have been made, fitting it also for operatic and dramatic performances. The new Concert Room, adjoining, is capable of seating 700 persons.

Protestant Hall (County and City of Cork Assembly Rooms), designed by Mr. Richard Rolt Brash, is to the rear of the houses at the south side of the South mall, from which it has an entrance opposite Cook street. The hall is 98 ft. long, by 45 ft. wide, and 36 ft. high. It is lighted from the sides and end by large semi-circular headed windows, finished internally with pilasters and rich dressings. The piers between the windows are occupied by coupled Corinthian pilasters, which support a rich cornice and entablature, having breaks over the pilasters, running round the building. The ceiling is flat in the centre and covered in the angles. It is divided into panels by enriched stiles answering to the coupled pilasters. There also is the reading room of the Cork Young Men's Society, 30 ft. by 19 ft.; a lecture room, 45 ft. by 19 feet; the Conservative Registry offices, committee rooms, etc. The foundation stone was laid by Earl Bandon in 1860.

The School of Design was established in 1850, and forms a portion of the premises of the Royal Cork Institution. The school contains some good specimens of the talent of the pupils, together with a large collection of casts, taken under the personal superintendence of Canova from the finest specimens of Grecian and Roman art, preserved in the Vatican and the sculpture galleries of Italy. These casts were presented by Pope Pius VII. to George IV, when prince-regent; and by him presented to the Cork Society of Arts. On the dissolution of this society they were purchased by the Royal Cork Institution. Among the other figures in the sculpture gallery is that of the celebrated Apollo Belvidere, the group of Laocoon, Venus de Medici, Clytie, Diana, Germanicus, Adonis, Antinous, Lycian, Apollo, Hercules, Mithridates, Juno, Ariadne, Adonis, Bacclus, Cicero, Socrates, a boar, a cow, a lion, and many other specimens of gods and goddesses, remarkable animals, etc. In the school is also a fine collection of busts, relievi, masks, etc.; together with engravings of the six allegorical frescoes painted by James Barry, in 1777-83, on the walls of the Adelphi, or Society of Arts, London. This eminent artist was born at Cork in 1741; he died in 1806, and was interred in St. Paul's cathedral. He painted some of the historical frescoes in the I arliament houses, and for one of his pictures, the marriage of Strongbow to Eva, he receiv d 18,000 guineas. Cork has produced many other distinguished artists: Maclise, Hoga:, Grogan, Forde, Heffernan, Fisher, etc.

The Butter Exchange is a handsome building with a fine portico. In 1849 it was considerably enlarged. It is under the management of a Committee of Merchants, elected annually, and to whom are delegated the power of fixing prices, enforcing the regulations of the Exchange, together with the supervision and control of the staff re pired for carrying them into execution. The essential feature of these regulations is, the system of inspection by sworn inspectors, who classify, according to a recognized standard, the quality of butter sent to them for examination; the butter is then branded as firsts, seconds, thirds, fourths, and fifths, as the case may be. Owing to the good faith with which the integrity of the brand of quality fixed in this manner continues to be maintained, Cork butter, which has its quality thus guaranteed, finds a ready sale in England. [For illustration of the brand, etc, see p. 541.]

The Custom Ho: 42 stands in the fork of the river, which here divides itself into the North and South channels. After embracing a large portion of Cork, the severed streams re-unite at the western extremity of the town.

The Packet Office, Penrose quay, is a graceful structure, surmounted by St. George and the Dragon; adjoining which is

The Great Southern and Western Station, a fine Corinthian-Gothic building. This railway runs under Cork Barracks, and is tunnelled through the solid rock—the old red sandstone.

Cork Barracks, for infantry and cavalry, are situated on a commanding eminence to the north-east of the city. Mr. Windele says they occupy the site of an ancient entrenchment called Rath-Mor, or the great fort. It occupies a splendid area, and contains accommodation for four regiments of infantry and 1,000 cavalry. It was first occupied in 1804.

The Corn Exchange, Albert quay, is a spacious erection, containing a northern hall, 75 feet square, by 45 feet high. The Cork National Exhibition was held here in 1852.

The Turkish Bath, Greville place, was erected by the late Dr. Barter. It is furnished with private dressing rooms, and capable of accommodating about 50 bathers at a time. There are Turkish bath establishments also in Maylor street, Warren's place, and Nelson's place.

The Cork Savings Bank, situated on Lapp's quay, is a handsome building, and possesses a fine marble statute, by Hogan, of William Crawford, a citizen of Cork.

The Cork Agricultural School, Western road, was erected in 1859, under the auspices of the National Board. Each pupil pays £12 a year, for which he is comfortably lodged, boarded, and instructed in English and agriculture. The pupils work on the farm, which consists of 120 acres.

Corporation Waterworks, a mile west of Cork, were erected in 1857. The pumping apparatus is capable of raising two million gallons of water to the height of 180 feet in 24 hours.

District Lunatic Asylum, on the northern banks of the river Lee, to the west of the city, is the largest of the kind in Ireland. It is divided into three main compartments, of which the central is appropriated to the harmless and convalescent, the eastern to the violent, and the western to those in the lowest state of insanity. The ground enclosed consists of fifty-seven acres, the greater part of which is cultivated by the inmates. The style of architecture is of the 14th century, the chapel and tower of a more advanced period. The building was commenced in 1847, and erected at an enormous expense.

The County and City Court house was built in 1835, after a design by Kearnes Deane, at a cost of £20,000. It has a graceful Corinthian portico, raised on a platform of eleven steps. The building is surmounted by three figures of Law, Justice, and Mercy.

The County Gaol is an extensive building on the Western road. It has a beautiful portico, consisting of four Doric columns, copied from the Temple of Bacchus, at Athens.

The City Gaol, Sunday's well, is a spacious castellated building, with a hundred and two separate cells.

The North Charitable Infirmary, Mulgrave road, was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1751; it was originally established by the members of a musical society in 1744. It is supported by Corporate and Government grants, and voluntary contributions, and is under the charge of the French Sisters of Charity.

The South Infirmary and County Hospital, Blackrock road, was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1763. It is supported by Corporate and Government grants, Grand Jury presentments, and voluntary contributions.

The Mercy Hospital, Henry street, founded in 1857, is under the charge of the Sisters of Mercy. It is a plain substantial edifice, erected in 1767, formerly the Mansion house—the official residence of the mayors of Cork. It is supported by voluntary contributions, and maintains 60 beds.

The Christian Brothers schools—Peacock lane, Sullivan's quay, and Blarney street—impart an excellent education, including geometry, drawing, and physical science, to 2100 boys. The examination hall attached to the Peacock lane schools was built by a benevolent citizen, Mr. Jeremiah Buckley, at a cost of £2400. It is supplied with a large collection of philosophical instruments, admirably selected and arranged. The pupils of these schools have been remarkable for their intelligence and high moral bearing. Gerald Griffin, the author of "The Collegians," etc., was a member of the community of Christian Brothers who conduct them, and his remains lie interred in the charming little cemetery within the enclosure of the monastery, and convenient to the schools in which he taught. The establishment dates its existence from the year 1811, and is supported by voluntary contributions.

The Presentation Brothers conduct large and efficient National schools, in Douglas street, Greenmount, and Lancaster quay, with 2000 pupils on their roll. They also have charge of Greenmount Industrial school and St. Patrick's Orphanage.

The Convent of the Sisters of Mercy of St. Mary's of the Isle was founded by Miss Catherine Macaulay. It is a beautiful Tudor structure, designed by Mr. Wm. Atkins; the foundation stone was laid in 1850, and the house opened and occupied by the sister-hood in 1852. They clothe and educate orphan children, whom they fit for domestic servants; they also superintend a school under the National Board, and have the charge of the Mercy hospital. There is a newly-erected chapel attached to the convent, used for public religious service.

The North and South Presentation Convents are in Clarence street and Douglas street. The ladies of these convents conduct very large poor-schools.

The Sisters of Charity, Peacock lane, have charge of a Magdalen Asylum, founded in 1809 by Nicholas Terry; and also conduct a large poor-school for girls.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, Sunday's well, have charge of an Industrial girls' school, and a Magdalen Asylum. The buildings, which occupy a commanding position north-west of the city, are handsome and extensive.

Greenmount Industrial School is a handsome and substantial edifice, built of red brick, in the domestic Gothic style of architecture, and affords ample accommodation—dormitories, lavatories, etc, for upwards of 200 boys. An area of ten acres of ground around the building is cultivated by the boys, and the work produced by them in the workshops of the institution is extremely creditable.

Blue Coat School occupies the site of the chapel, convent, and leper hospital of St. Stephen. Baron Worth made a grant of the house to the mayor and constable of the staple of Cork, in 1699, for the support and education of poor boys, and endowed it with the North and South Spittal lands; the "poor boys to have blue coats and caps, with other clothing, meat, drink, and lodging."

The Green Coat School, in connexion with St. Anne's Shandon, was established in 1720. This school is endowed by a bequest of Stephen Skiddy, a vintner, of London, made in 1784; a grant from the Corporation, and another bequest under the will of Roger Brettridge, made in 1683.

Skiddy's and Brettridge's Almshouses, St. Anne's churchyard.—In these establishments are supported 41 Protestant widows and seven old soldiers.

The Blind Asylum, Infirmary road, established 1841, for supporting and training up in useful arts and industrious habits blind children. Supported by payments from Poor Law Guardians and voluntary contributions Lane's Institution, dedicated to SS. Joachim and Anne, for the relief of aged and destitute females, was first founded in 1843. The present building in Anglesea street was opened in 1860.

NEWSPAPER PRESS.

Cork Constitution, established 1822: its tone is decidedly aristocratic, and its principles distinctly Protestant and Constitutional; circulates largely in the city of Cork, and amongst the landed gentry and military of counties Cork, Kerry, Limerick, Waterford, and Tipperary, and partially in other parts of Ireland. Advocates the interests of agriculture and commerce: gives reports of local occurrences; scientific, literary, commercial, and political meetings; and general financial, political, military, and miscellaneous intelligence.

Cork Examiner, established August 30, 1840: the principal organ of Catholicism in the South of Ireland, devoted to the interests of the church, clergy, and people. It was the leading advocate of the tenant cause in Ireland, and has adopted the Home Rule movement, but is most earnest in its endeavours for the promotion of industrial enterprise in the South. Circulates in Cork city and county, in Kerry, Limerick, Clare, Tipperary, and Dublin, and generally throughout Ireland, and to some extent in Manchester and other English towns. It is a literary as well as a political journal; supplies the fullest local and general intelligence, and is much read.

Cork Herald, established June 21, 1856: aims at being a family newspaper. It advocates the general interests of agriculture, commerce, and manufactures, and every measure favourable to their development in the South of Ireland, but whilst being Catholic and National in principle, it attaches itself to no party. Gives local news very copiously, and is noted for a comprehensive and carefully-prepared summary of all the general news of the day, both foreign and domestic.

Cork Weekly Herald, is in policy similar to the Daily Herald; it is essentially a family as well as a general newspaper, and as such contains all the news of the week.

quality, of the make of 1874.*

The quality is marked on it—three separate times, and in three distinct varieties of form. Firstly—it is cut by a sharp instrument in transverse lines, a line for each number: thus a Second has two lines cut, or scratched across one another; a Fourth would have four. This cutting or scribing is done by the market porter, when the inspector pronounces the quality, and is meant as a guide for the brander.

Secondly—it is branded in letters. Thirdly—It is branded as a number.

The brand, Cork C. M., signifies Cork Committee of Merchants, to whom the brand belongs.

The letter S, or whatever other letter may be branded before the number of the quality, denotes merely the name of the Inspector who pronounced the quality, which it is often necessary to know, as there are five Inspectors daily a work in the market.

The numbers to the right represents the weight and tare of the Firkin of Butter: thus 29.14 stands for 2 qrs. 29 lbs. or quite correctly, 3 qrs. 1 lb., with a tare of 14 lbs.

Although the brands may vary very slightly from year to year, the above explanation should enable any unskilled person to immediately detect any fraud which might be tried to be perpetrated by the erasure or disfigurement of the brands of either quality or weight.

*The Publisher is indebted to Messrs. Adams Bros., butter merchants, for this explanation; as also for the following table of the highest and lowest price of each quality of butter in the market from rst June, 1870, to end of season, 1874-51 Highest and Lowest Price of each Quality of Butter in Cork Market, for four years, from 1st January, 1870, to end of season, 1874-75.

GENERAL GENERAL GENERAL

LINEN & WOOLLEN DRAPERY

ESTABLISHMENT,

PATRICK STREET, CORK.

Robertson, Ledlie, Ferguson & Co.

• DESIRE to return their best thanks to the Public for the very liberal patronage they have enjoyed since the commencement of their business in Cork.

They have much pleasure in announcing greatly increased accommodation, in consequence of their recent extensions in the George's Street portion of their premises, and the addition of the House, No. 29, Patrick Street, lately occupied by J. B. McKenzie & Co. The latter Extension has enabled them to give a Second Entrance to the Establishment, thereby preventing overcrowding in ingress and egress.

The principle upon which their business was founded, viz: "presenting the best Goods at the lowest possible Cash prices," is rigidly adhered to.

4840	160	10	4	1

In measuring an acre by yards, the usual practice is to trace off 70 yards in length and 70 yards in width. This, in a rough way, may be considered near enough for practical purposes; but as 70 yards either way make 4,000 sq. yards, it exceeds one acre by 60 yards. To determine an accurate acre, it may be measured 70 yards in length, by 60 1-7th yards in width. The same result may be arrived at by measuring 220 feet in length and 198 feet in width, or by measuring 73¼ in length by 66 yards in breadth.

DRUG & CHEMICAL WAREHOUSE,

Established 1805.

WM. HARRINGTON & SON, 80, PATRICK STREET, & 10 & 11, CAREY'S LANE CORK.

THE recent building alterations in this long existing Medical Establishment, will afford its Proprietors the opportunity of extending their business in many of its details.

THE RETAIL DEPARTMENT

Will be supplied as heretofore with every article of the most genuine description, including a large assortment of Proprietary Preparations and PATENT MEDICINES of every description.

THE WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT

So long receiving Public and Professional support has been re-organized, and will give increased advantages to those who may favour the Proprietors with their commands; it will also contain a variety of Medical and Surgical Appliances.

THE COMPOUNDING DEPARTMENT.

THE PROPRIETORS,

Anthorised by the Apothecaries Hall of Ereland, continue this Department with the same care and attention it has hitherto received for so many years. It being essential that all Medicines should be according to the prescribed forms of the Pharmacopæia, the different preparations are manufactured in their own Laboratory under the superintendence of the Principals

In consequence of increased Postal and Railway facilities, they are enabled to transmit Medicines, ordered by prescriptions, to any part of the Country.

In thanking the Public and the numerous Patrons of their Establishment for past favours, the Proprietors hope to merit a continuance of same, by strict attention to all Orders intrusted to their care.

CURRENT ACCOUNTS.

Parties having Current Accounts with the Eark can transfer any portion of their Credit Balance to Deposit Account. Balances at the Credit of Current Accounts may be drawn out by Cheques, without previous notice, but no overdrafts are permitted. At the half-yearly Balances in June and December, the Account must be settled by exchange of Vouchers, and an acknowledgment of the Balance be signed by the Helder of the Account, or by a party duly authorised to sign and settle the same.

DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS.

On Sums deposited for One Month, and longer, Interest is allowed at the rate sanctioned by the Court of Directors on such Deposits. Notices of the Rate allowed, and of any variation therefrom, are posted up from time to time in the Public Offices of the Bank; and Depositors are requested to observe that no other Notice regarding Interest, beyond the Public Notice so put up in the Bank Offices, will be given. Ten Days' Notice previous to withdrawal is required to be given by Depositors. When payment of the Principal or Interest is required, the Deposit Receipt must be produced at the Bank.

INVESTMENTS, LOANS, PURCHASES.

ANY persons wish to invest Money on Mortgage of Landed Estates, thus procuring a higher rate of Interest that that of the Funds, avoiding the fluctuations to which the Funds are subject, and possessing the best of all securities, that of Land, without the responsibility of Proprietorship, but cannot succeed in doing so. Others have ample security to offer, and desiring to procure Loans for purposes of Improvement or otherwise, who do not know how or where to effect them; while others, again, want to purchase in the Incumbered Estates Court, &c., but cannot do so for want of a portion of the capital which many would be so ready to advance as a first charge on the whole. It is the Subscribers' object to bring these several parties together, to procure for the Capitalist what he wants—a first-class investment; for the Proprietor what he wants—a loan on fair terms, and at moderate interest; and for the intending Purchaser the means of completing his purchase.

Persons wishing for First-class Investments on Mortgage should therefore register their names with Subscribers. They will be supplied in the order of their application. They will be free of all costs, under all circumstances, except, after agreeing to a particular loan, they fail to advance the capital. Six per cent. is the highest rate of interest which Subscribers will undertake to negociate, and this only for sums under £300.

Persons wishing to borrow Money on Mortgage should apply at once. None but First Charges and First-class Investments entertained. Not less than £100 will be lent, and on the usual Mortgage Deed.

Persons desirous to purchase in the Landed Estates' Court or otherwise, in the City or County of Cork, or adjacent Counties, will be supplied with one-third of the necessary capital.

No charge to Lenders. Fixed and moderate tariff of charges to Borrowers.

In case it be desired to Discharge Principal and Interest by easy Monthly or Quarterly Instalments spread over a series of years, on the principle which operates so advantageously with the Board of Works, the Subscribers will be ready to negociate advances on this plan with the Cork and South of Ireland Building Society, of which Mr. Mac Carthy is the sole Solicitor.

"The Patriotic" is an Irish Company. The Head Office is in Dublin; the Directors, and nearly all the Shareholders, reside in Ireland; so that, while both Life and Fire Assurances can be effected with "The l'atriotic" on as satisfactory terms as other solvent offices, the assured has the advantage of dealing with the Head Office on the spot, and can ascertain, what is so important at the present time, the thorough solvency of the Company, and its ability fully to meet all demands which may be made upon it.

In comparing the annexed Balance Sheet with those of other companies, it should be borne in mind that the business of this Company is almost entirely restricted to Ireland.

HOW TO SELECT AN OFFICE FOR LIFE ASSURANCE

Extract from the Board of Trade's Report, 2nd July, 1874.

"Taking insurance business as it exists in this country, the public cannot be misled if, when seeking an office in which to effect an insurance, they select one which transacts its business at a small per-centage of working cost, and does not anticipate its profits."

THESE TESTS ARE ENTIRELY FULFILLED BY THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

HE Report itself showing that of all the English Provincial Offices, and all the Scotch offices, the Royal's ratio of expenses to its Premium Income is the Lowest, and the Company having never anticipated a single shilling of Profit,

THE SCOTTISH PROVIDENT INSTITUTION,

No. 6, ST. ANDREW SQUARE, EDINBURGH.

THIS SOCIETY differs in its principles from any other Office.

Instead of charging rates admittedly higher than are necessary, and afterwards returning the excess, or a portion of it, in the shape of periodical Bonuses, it gives from the first as large an Assurance as the Premiums will with perfect safety bear—reserving the Whole Surplus for those who live long enough, to secure the Common Fund from loss.

A Policy for £1200 to 1250 may thus at most ages be had for the Premium usually charged for £1000 only; while, by reserving the surplus, large additions have been given—and may be expected in the future—on the Policies of those who live to participate. In a few cases, Policies which have shared at the whole four divisions of Surplus have been doubled.

ITS TERMS are thus well calculated to meet the requirements of intending Assurers. They are specially adapted to the case of Provisions under Family Settlements or otherwise, where it is frequently of importance to secure, for the smallest present outlay, a competent provision, of definite amount, in the case of early death.

The 37th Annual Meeting was held on 31st March, 1875.

The NEW BUSINESS effected during the year 1874 was—2461 Policies, assuring £1,120,572.

This Business has been exceeded by only one Office in the Kingdom.

Number of Policies in force, 20,022, assuring £9,885,753.

The Realised Fund was at 31st December last £2,419,004.

TESTS.—At last General Meeting, Professor Macpherson reviewed the various Tests of the position of an Office which have been recently suggested—such as Expenses, relative and actual; Funds, their amount, and their proportion to Premium Income, and the progressive Increase of the Funds;—showing, in regard to these, that "the more fully the Institution is tested along the whole line of its operations, the more impregnable will its position be found to be."

On the last of these Tests, which may be viewed as the corollary or inference from the others, the Professor says—"All I say upon that point is, that the ratio in which for several years past our Funds have increased in proportion to our Income has largely exceeded that of any other office in the kingdom."

Full STATEMENT of PRINCIPLES will be found in the ANNUAL REPORTS.

Actuary and Secretary: - HAROLD ENGELBACH, Esq. Bankers :- THE BANK OF IRELAND

This Company was founded in the year 1822, with a view of affording to the Irish public, through the medium of a purely Irish Institution, all the advantages to be derived from Insurance in its several branches.

Perfect Security to the Assured arising from the large Capital, Reserves, and Accumulated Funds of the Company.

The Premiums required, although moderate, entitle the Assured to two-thirds of the whole Profits realized in the Life Department.

No expense whatever incurred on effecting Life and Fire Assurances, beyond payment of the Premium.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES.

All Policies upon the lives of persons not in the Military, Naval, or Maritime Service, and upon which age is admitted, are declared free from all conditions, except the payment of Premium, when they have been in force Five Years, provided the Life has attained the age of 30 years, and has not, during the continuance of the policy, exceeded the usual prescribed limits.

MARK.

TO BUTTER MAKERS.

Important Caution!

R. J. FULLWOOD & CO.

BEG to inform the BUTTER MAKERS of Ireland that the use of Spanish Annatto has been discontinued for some time by the leading Makers, and that

R. J. FULLWOOD & CO. have obtained the highest commendation for their choice preparations made from the purest Annatto, which, for BUTTER COLOURING is unsurpassed; it can always be depended upon for a beautiful pure Colour, and its mixing readily with the Cream; produces a RICH GOLDEN COWSLIP tint, so universally approved in the London and other great Markets.

THE BUTTER COLOURING prepared by the undersigned is free from all impurities, and possesses three times the strength of any other, and whatever price the raw materials may be, the quality and strength will always be the same.

THE GREAT CELEBRITY of and increasing demand for Fullwood's make has led to spurious imitations, and to guard the public from being mlsled, a Registered Trade Mark, "A Stag with Olive Branch," has been adopted, to imitate which is felony.

All Druggists and Grocers sell R. J. FULLWOOD'S Annatto, but Butter Makers are advised to see Name, Address, and Trade Mark on each Package, and if unable to find it, should write direct to
